WHAT A WAY TO COOL IT

Roxanne Wright leads a hesitant Mark Litchfield, both of San Rafael, into the bubbly, cooling waters of a Northgate Shopping Center pool to beat the heat. The thermometer soared into the 90s in parts of Marin and Southern Sonoma yesterday and more of the same was expected today. Novato was Marin's hot spot yesterday with a reported 96 degrees. It was 95 in Terra Linda and Petaluma, 94 in San Anselmo and 91 in San Rafael. Woodacre reported 90 and Fairfax, 87.

Two More Killed By Campus Shots

Guard At Three Colleges

COMBINED AP & UPI

Two students were killed and 11 persons, including six girls, were hospitalized today as police fought demonstrators at Jackson State College in Jackson, Miss. National Guardsmen, "under strict orders not to fire," were called to the campus.

National Guard troops also were summoned to Ohio University in Athens and to the University of Maryland to cope with student disorders. Southern Illinois University students voted more than 2-1 to keep their school closed.

SNIPERS ARE

The Jackson disturbance erupted about 1 a.m. when police attempted to disperse a crowd stoning cars near the school. The youths began throwing objects at the police and authorities said shots were fired from several dormitories. No policemen were hit by gunfire.

Two of the injured students were listed in critical condition. Two coeds were suffering from "hysteria."

Five hundred National Guardsmen, called to alert after the Wednesday night incident, were sent to the campus after the shootings. An officer said the men were issued live ammunition and tear gas but were given "strict orders not to fire" their rifles.

OHIO TROUBLE

For the first time since four students were killed at Kent State University, National Guard troops were ordered into an Ohio college community today after Ohio University students fought with police in downtown Athens. Dr. Claude Sowle, university president ordered the school closed until the beginning of the summer quarter.

An additional 800 Guardsmen were ordered to the University of Maryland in College Park Thursday night after 500 state police and Guardsmen battled over 1,500 students who had blocked traffic on U.S. 1.

CLOSURE VOTE

Students at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale voted 8,224 to 3,675 to keep the school closed. SIU was closed earlier in the week after students demonstrated at the university president's house and then other students demanded it be reopened. The school's board was to meet today to decide what action to take. The faculty voted in favor of opening the school.

There were other less violent protests at some campuses. About 60 long-haired youths at North Carolina State University had their hair cut by volunteer

'QUESTION HIS WORD'

Nixon Forces Rip Cambodia Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces in the Senate, facing an uphill fight, say approval of restrictions on U.S. military spending in Indochina would cast doubt on President Nixon's judgment and credibility.

Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan told newsmen Thursday Senate approval of the Church-Cooper amendment to bar further use of U.S. troops in Cambodia "would suggest the President doesn't mean what he says and that the Senate doesn't believe him."

"It appears to question his judgment. It appears to question his word as commander-in-chief," declared Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., in a floor speech.

Griffin and Dole made their comments as the administration sent a top-level three-man team to lobby at a closed-door meeting for the support of the 43-member GOP bloc.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, national security adviser Henry Kissinger and Undersecretary of State Elliot Richardson told the divided Republicans the administration vigorously opposes approval of any amendment appearing to tie the President's hands in Southeast Asia.

Reaction to the session was mixed. Some senators came away saying Nixon seems bent on forcing a constitutional confrontation, but others said they saw no such prospects.

The floor debate, meanwhile, moved swiftly to the heart of the issue—the President's powers to protect U.S. troops whether Congress restricts funds or not.

Voting on the first in a series of amendments aimed at curbing funds was put off until next week at the earliest, probably Tuesday.

Republicans denied any intention to stall. But Griffin conceded to a newsman delay won't hurt administration efforts to defeat or water down the crucial Cooper-Church amendment to a $300-million foreign military sales bill.

Although Griffin would not comment, other GOP leaders said the amendment would carry on a straight up or down vote now.

The amendment, sponsored by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, would bar the use of funds for retaining U.S. troops in Cambodia after July 1 and would allow no money after that to support advisers or instructors for Cambodian troops or U.S. air support for Cambodian soldiers.

The Church Cooper proposal, tacked onto the sales bill in the Foreign Relations Committee, will be the last amendment voted on after a half-dozen or so weaker versions are offered as substitutes.

In New York, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said support is growing in the Senate for the antiwar measures. "There will be action on the Senate floor in the next two weeks to express the Senate's feelings. This utilization of presidential power is unwarranted."

Kennedy said at a news conference that 34 senators already support a proposed amendment co-sponsored by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., to require withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam by mid-1971.

Campus Involvement Defended

Student unrest and the abandonment of normal classroom activity are directly tied to the deep student concern about the Indochina war and racial injustice at home, according to Sonoma State College President Ambrose R. Nichols Jr.

His statement came against a background of dissent, most of it peaceful, that has reached from colleges into high schools, although outward signs of anti-war activity appeared still on the wane today in Marin and Southern Sonoma County.

"The young people in our colleges and universities are particularly involved with these issues, in part because education has as part of its prime function the asking of big questions about man and his role," Nichols said yesterday.

He said that hundreds of students and dozens of faculty members at Sonoma State are spending many hours in organizing, planning and carrying out peaceful efforts to build up political pressure against the current military policy in Indochina.

"The great majority of both students and faculty members are carrying out these activities in addition to their normal educational responsibilities," he said.

He reported some students have reduced their school programs or dropped out completely. "While this is not a basis for punitive action, they know and accept the fact that this may mean substantial delay or loss so far as their educational goals are concerned," he said.

Nichols noted that some faculty members have gone off the payroll for specified times and that department chairman are working out alternative arrangements so the students are not penalized.

"It is clear that both students and faculty who are so actively involved in 'the movement' feel that it is important that their work not be discredited by charges that they are not willing to take the consequences of their commitments," Nichols said, defending the activists.

"At Sonoma State College, despite the stress of the times, there has been a sustaining level of trust between and among students, faculty, staff and administration," he said. "Many people are working to perpetuate that trust."

He said he believes students and faculty, working as individuals or with groups, are profoundly in earnest about their concern for peace and social justice.

Nichols said the college is providing a supportive setting for the peace efforts while fulfilling its own responsibilities as an educational institution.

The Sonoma State campus remained quiet today, although many students continued their class boycott. Action committees scheduled meetings to take peace petitions to homes in Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties.

A steering committee also set a meeting with Third World students to plan a joint convocation at 10 a.m. Tuesday to mark the birthday of Malcolm X and to consider new antiwar activities.

Officials at College of Marin said that campus was also quiet, with no sign of a repeat of yesterday's incidents which saw students blocking doorways to the business education building and library.

The student strike at Tamalpais High School entered its third day, although principal Raymond J. Bell said it "definitely appeared less students were out of class." Picketing continued outside the school.

Nixon Defends Right To Protect Soldiers

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —The Florida White House said today President Nixon feels that a proposal now before Congress limits his ability to protect American forces in Vietnam and Cambodia.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, discussing the administration's position on a proposal in Congress to cut off funds for future military involvement in Cambodia, told newsmen the President feels "this particular amendment is an infringement on that constitutional responsibility...of the commander in chief to protect the security of the American forces in the field."

Ziegler also stated that Nixon opposes such a move because it would put the enemy on notice that the President's ability to respond to threats is limited.

The amendment, now being debated in Congress, was proposed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky. Ziegler made it clear Nixon feels any limitation on his options to conduct the Vietnam war would jeopardize his role as commander in-chief.

At the same time, Ziegler restated Nixon's intentions to withdraw all American troops from Cambodia on June 30.

Nixon worked with aides at his Biscayne Bay villa today after a heartwarming welcome from friends and supporters on his arrival here Thursday night.

Ziegler also reported that the Justice Department had dispatched a team of investigators to Jackson, Miss., where two persons were killed and 15 others injured at Jackson State College in a hail of police bullets.

Ziegler said a Justice Department report on the fatal shooting of four Kent State University students was being studied by the White House and will reach the President shortly.

Reds Attack In Northern Cambodia

COMBINED AP & UPI

PHNOM PENH — Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops were reported today to have launched new attacked in northeastern Cambodia, apparently in an effort to open an escape route into Laos.

There was also diplomatic speculation the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese might be trying to carve out an area in the remote northeast where forces backing deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk could set up an exile government.

Cambodian military sources said the attacks were against Lomphat, 200 miles northeast of Phnom Penh; Stung Treng, 170 miles northeast of the capital, and Tonle Bet, 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

"The fighting is still going on," the spokesman said.

Military spokesmen said Cambodian troops also withdrew from Damnak Chang, a coastal city 85 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

UPI Correspondent Barney Seibert reported the armored column under command of Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri had pulled up short only three miles outside Phnom Peh, with orders not to go into the capital. Tri said he considered the highway open.

"I hope Vietnamese refugees can use Highway 1 to return to Vietnam," Tri said.

The South Vietnamese navy made another trip up the Mekong today to take aboard another load of South Vietnamese being repatriated to their homeland.

A South Vietnamese source said 100 river boats arrived at 1 p.m. (11 p.m. PDT), returning from delivering the first group of South Vietnamese to South Vietnam.

"All those supplies are moving from North Vietnam and there's nowhere to put them," said one source.

The sources said the raids extended from south of the Mu Gia pass in North Vietnam along more than 200 miles of the Laotian frontier. They were the heaviest in the Laos panhandle in two weeks.

Teamsters Slow Down Trucking

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A wildcat strike by teamsters brought trucking to a virtual halt in San Francisco today, preventing newspaper distribution, shutting down major taxi companies, crippling commuter bus service and threatening a wide-spread tieup.

The California Trucking Association said the walkout that began Thursday "seems to be almost a complete shutdown."

The San Francisco Chronicle did not publish its morning paper and the San Francisco Examiner missed its first edition today. Most employes of the San Francisco Printing Co., which publishes the two dailies, were furloughed Thursday. The Oakland Tribune planned to publish today.

The San Jose News also expected to be able to distribute its papers today.

Most taxis were off the streets and limousine service to San Francisco International Airport was halted. Air freight trucks were turned away at the airport.

Secret Session Drafts Charges

The Sausalito School District board met in secret today and without notice to the public to decide on charges to be filed against Sidney F. Walton Jr., Martin Luther King School principal fired by the board last week and at the same time suspended all board meetings until after the June 2 recall election.

Trustee C. Gerald Clear told the I-J the board met in open session after the closed meeting and voted to charge Walton formally. He declined to discuss the nature of the charges, but said they should be "served on" the Sausalito principal some time today.

The charges and a legal court process to remove Walton from his post are necessary because his administrative contract with the district for next year was automatically renewed in December.

Supt. Phillip W. Schneider and Nathaniel Johnson, school board president, were not available for comment on the meeting which took place at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

In suspending all meetings of the board till after the recall election, the board gave as reasons "the emotional atmosphere" at recent meetings, "substantial evidence that . . . individuals from outside . . . have attempted to influence board decisions," and need for time to weigh proposals for two schools and open enrollment.

Announcement of the decisions reached at the secret meeting was signed by trustees Clear, Johnson, David E. Freedheim and James E. Muldoon, as well as Schneider and Virgil S. Hollis Marin County Superintendent of schools.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Dialogue Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran House member has called on his colleagues to spend one weekend each month on college campuses to listen to what the nation's students are saying.

Rep. James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., has written all members of Congress outlining his idea for "Operation Dialogue" and has asked every college in the nation if it would like to participate.

An aide said it's too early to chart the response but Wright's hope is that a deliberately created dialogue would bring "neither fawning adulation nor hostile confrontation" but a mutual education.

Wright, 47, suggested that 60 or 70 members, from both parties and all political shadings, volunteer one weekend each month for assignment to colleges requesting an elected official's presence.

Laos Battles Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Enemy forces have attacked several outposts west and southwest of Saravane and fired two rockets at Saravane itself Thursday, a Defense Ministry spokesman said today.

Since Tuesday, North Vietnamese forces have attacked four outposts there to five miles west and southwest of Saravane but were repulsed, said the spokesman, Col. Thongphanh Knoksy.

Thursday night, two rockets hit Saravane but did not cause any damage, he added.

Thongphanh confirmed that civilians have been evacuated from Saravane, leaving only the defenders of the town.

Prince Loses Aide

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, who said six months ago that the royal family was "going into the red," is getting rid of his private secretary to cut costs, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said today.

The secretary, James Orr, 52, is retiring early and the post is being abolished.

Philip's personal staff will now consist of his treasurer, Rear Adm. Sir Christopher Bonham-Cater, and his equerry, Maj. Randle Cooke.

Philip is paid $96,000 a year, mostly tax free, by the state. He has not had an increase since 1952.

Brush Fires Flare

The brush fire season has hit Southern California as dry Santana winds swept in from the desert accompanied by a sudden surge of warm weather.

At least four counties were plagued by brush fires Thursday as the temperature rose to 89 degrees in downtown Los Angeles, higher elsewhere.

The most destructive blaze took place in the Jurupa Hills district of Riverside County, where 45 mile-per-hour winds pushed a fire across 1,000 acres. At least five vehicles — three cars and two light trucks — were destroyed.

One woman, described as a spectator, was pulled from her car by two men as flames engulfed the vehicle. She was identified as Henrietta Cantrell, 31, of Riverside, listed in fair condition at Riverside General Hospital for burns on her arms and legs.

Pot Charge Out

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP) — Charges of marijuana possession have been dismissed against Cheryl Crane, 26-year-old daughter of actress Lana Turner.

Miss Crane and a friend, Maria Cebrario, 26, were arrested last month by highway patrolmen who said they found potted marijuana plants and marijuana cigarettes in their automobile.

Thursday, Municipal Court Judge Willaim Drake ordered Miss Cebrario held for arraignment in Superior Court and ruled there was insufficient evidence to prosecute Miss Crane.

Ford Wins Ballot

DETROIT (AP) — Charlotte Ford Niarchos, elder daughter of Henry Ford II was not as potent a vote getter as her father at the Ford Motor Co. stockholders meeting.

Mrs. Niarchos was nominated for the board of directors from the floor Thursday as was Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The management slate of 16 directors — including her father and her uncles, Benson and William Clay Ford — each got 102,818,382 votes or 99.6 per cent of those cast.

Mrs. Niarchos got 41 votes and Muskie 1,026.

Zoning Board Grants Permits

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday approved two use permits in Petaluma and Cotati.

Granted was the request of Jack Goddard for a wood products mill at 9355 Old Redwood Highway South, Cotati, where he plans to manufacture nursery and survey stakes.

Also approved was a permit for a mobile home for agricultural employees at 750 Chileno Valley Road, Petaluma, as requested by William H. Pacheco. He said the home would be removed in three months.

Israel Claims Bagging More Jets; Egyptian Rockets Sink Fishermen

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli pilots claimed shooting down three Soviet-made Egyptian MIG jets in dogfights over the Suez Canal today.

By Israeli account, two MIG17s were shot down in morning battles over the blocked waterway and a MIG21 shortly after noon.

All three planes were seen falling in Egyptian territory, the military command said here.

The MIG21 had "attempted to interfere" when Israeli planes were on a bombing and strafing mission against Egyptian military targets along the central sector of the canal, a spokesman said.

It was the second Israeli raid of the day and followed two Egyptian strikes.

All Israeli aircraft returned safely, the spokesman said.

Israel started the action with a bombing and strafing attack on Egyptian military targets in the southern and central sectors of the 102-mile-long waterway.

Egyptian warplanes then struck back in the northern sector of the canal.

The military command said Israel suffered no casualties in the Egyptian raids.

In other action, the command said Gesher Hasiv, a kibbutz four miles south of the Lebanese border, was shelled from Lebanon during the night. Mortar shells also fell on border settlements at Yardena and Kfar Rupim in the Beisan Valley.

The command said the Israelis returned the fire and sustained no casualties.

Israel announced Thursday that an Egyptian missile boat sank a 70-ton Israeli fishing trawler in Mediterranean waters not far from where the destroyer Elath was hit and sunk in 1967.

A military announcement said the fishing trawler Orit was hit Wednesday night 11.3 miles north of the occupied Sinai Peninsula. The four crewmen were reported missing. An announcement said the "chances of finding them are slim."

The military announcement said the Orit was apparently hit by an Egyptian missile while fishing off the Bardawil lagoon in the Mediterranean. Explosions and flashes of light were heard and seen in the area.

Israeli search vessels found only pieces of the ship, a buoy and lifebelts.

In Amman, an El Fatah spokesman claimed its guerrilla forces Thursday fired rockets into the Israeli town of Beissan, south of the Sea of Galilee, scoring direct hits on a factory.

The spokesman also claimed Al Fatah commandos chased Israeli troops near the frontier in southern Lebanon and shelled settlements in upper Galilee "to prove that our forces control the area completely." He said an Israeli halftrack and a truck were destroyed.

In Beirut, the Lebanese government began contacts with Arab ambassadors and other interested parties to work out its response to a reported entry into Lebanon of heavily armed troops from Syria.

A post midnight Cabinet meeting broke up in apparent disagreement on whether the troops were Syrian regulars or members of the Syrian-backed Al Saika guerrilla organization. Some members insisted the government should take action to protect Lebanon's sovereignty.

Reports said the men number between 1,000 and 2,000 and were armed with mortars, antiaircraft guns and recoilless rifles. They were said to have taken positions in the Arkoub area of southern Lebanon.

Heyn Argues Campuses Act As Shock Absorber For U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The head of one of the nation's most troubled campuses says colleges and universities have performed "an important service" to the country by absorbing the initial brunt of social unrest and discontent.

Roger W. Heyns, chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors Thursday that "had the unrest and discontent initially been targeted on other institutions, the impact on society might have been much worse."

Despite the uproar and violence on the nation's campuses, he said, "universities have strengthened our students' faith in our basic freedoms and democratic ideals."

"Hostility on the part of the public complicated our task not a little," he added.

What has been learned by the establishment because of campus turmoil has helped the other institutions of society, he said.

In a question-answer session following his speech, he was asked his reaction to Gov. Ronald Reagan's statement that there is something conspiratorial behind campus turmoil. "I don't believe it," Heyns said.

Heyns added that radicals may communicate with each other but said there is no "apparatus giving orders."

Regarding the governor's statement that trouble makers should be expelled if they are students and fired if they are professors, he said:

"Probation by far has been the most effective technique for modifying behavior. If you kick someone out, that means he goes across the street and works at disruptive activity full time."

In a panel discussion, Sam Brown, a leader of the defunct Vietnam Moratorium, told the editors they had failed to establish communications with persons under 25.

W. D. Workman, Jr., editor of the Columbia, S.C. State-Record, responded, "We can't find anyone who speaks for young people any more than for black people."

Workman said newspapers, particularly in the South, have restrained many people from attacking demonstrators and "those who destroy universities." Without such restraint, Workman said, dissidents "would be stomped into the ground."

The society also announced Thursday elections of board of directors members: three-year-terms, Howard H. Hays, Riverside, Calif., Press-Enterprise; Warren H. Phillips, Wall Street Journal; John H. Sengstacke, Chicago Defender; Sylvan Meyer, Miami, Fla. News, and Emmett Dedmon, Chicago Sun-Times and Daily News; two-year term, George Chaplin, Honolulu Advertiser.

Outgoing president Norman E. Isaacs, 62-year-old executive editor and vice president of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times, announced he is retiring from active newspaper work.

Isaacs said he has accepted a position with the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism to help operate a newspaper workshop.

COLLEGE DISTRICT NOW OUT OF JUNIOR STATUS

Starting next fall, there will be no Marin Junior College District, but there will nevertheless remain a College of Marin.

It's all a matter of namecalling.

Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday signed a bill dropping the word "junior" and substituting "community."

The district will be known as Marin Community College District, and similar changes will take place throughout the state's 92-campus system.

One of the measure's authors, Sen. George E. Danielson, D-Los Angeles, said, "There's nothing 'junior' about our community colleges."

Annexations Granted Five Cities, Sanitary District

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission granted annexations to five cities and one sanitary district last night at its meeting in the Civic Center.

The largest annexation, 167 acres, went to the city of Fairfax. The new area lies along the north side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Oak Manor subdivision. More homes are expected to mushroom in the annexed area.

Sausalito won the right to annex 34 acres at the old American Distillery site on Bridgeway between Coloma and Nevada streets. The old distillery structures, which are being demolished, will be replaced by apartments.

Corte Madera got permission to bring 6.6 acres into the Meadowsweet area into the town limits. The newly annexed area includes Marin Joe's, Casa Buena Motel, and apartments.

Novato sought annexation of about 20 acres on both sides of Wilson Avenue near Vineyard Road but got only partial approval. The Local Agency Formation commissioners approved annexation on the west side of Wilson Avenue, including property of Guido Paladini, but rejected other parcels on the east side of Wilson because they are physically unconnected.

Novato Sanitary District will be allowed to take in 13 acres of the Paladini parcel and the Dora Cash property along Wilson Avenue.

San Rafael won the right to annex 1.43 acres owned by Mrs. Allan Judson on Los Ranchitos Road.

Larkspur's request to annex 30 acres on the north side of Corte Madera Creek along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East was postponed because of a lack of quorum. Chairman Hugh G. Marchant and commissioners Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Neil R. Brixon were the only ones who attended last night, and Brixon could not vote because he is from Larkspur.

The commissioners set 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 10, as the tentative date for the next meeting, when Mill Valley and Tiburon will battle for annexation of the Strawberry shopping area.

Fairfax Man Takes Down Peace Flag

The question of when is a flag an American flag was avoided yesterday when a Fairfax man agreed to take down a flag at his residence after it prompted another citizen's complaint to Fairfax police.

A flag with red and white stripes, but with a peace symbol in the corner where there are stars on the American flag, was hanging from a deck at the residence of Paul King, 24, of 371 Forrest Avenue.

After an anonymous man complained to Fairfax police that he thought the American flag was being mutilated or defaced, police asked King to take it down.

He said his flag was manufactured and sold exactly as it was, so he could not possibly be guilty of mutilating or defacing anything, but he agreed to take it down anyway.

The thieves gained entry by prying open the room's rear double doors, according to police.

barbers in a "fleece for peace." A spokesman said they were preparing to go into Raleigh to get signatures on antiwar petitions.

A nationwide survey showed 14 schools officially closed and the student strike information center at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., reported student strikes at 278 colleges and universities.

The student information center said 267 of the nation's 1,500 educational institutions had strikes Wednesday and 286 Tuesday.

Representatives of striking students from 236 colleges assembled at Yale University in New Haven to decide what direction student strikes should take.

In Boston, police today arrested at least 40 youthful protesters among 300 persons who staged a sit-in at the entrance to the Boston Army Base.

The demonstrators were part of the Harvard University-based Nonviolent Direct Action Group which has been training all week for the action.

The war protests continue on the West Coast, but many seem to be getting less strident.

At UCLA Thursday, a group called the "Headquarters of World Happiness" began to pass out the first of 106,000 pieces of bubble gum they plan to distribute on the state university's nine campuses to promote "peace and happiness."

UCLA students were seen blowing gooey pink bubbles all over the campus.

And in San Francisco, Mills College girls in leotards and flowing robes invited inductees to drop out of the Army and join them for tea.

At Stanford, psychology Prof. Philip G. Zimbardo said he and other students and faculty, at a "tryout" for a national campaign to turn in U.S. savings bonds, produced $25,000 worth of bonds cashed in three hours.

In the San Francisco Financial District, pickets sold "Nixon Apples" and carried signs reading "End The War—Bring Dow-Jones Home" and "Sales—All Prices Slashed."

Levi Strauss Co. in San Francisco told employes they could write letters and telegrams to the White House on company time and send them at company expense. And 158 San Francisco newspapermen signed a statement urging withdrawal of U.S. forces from Southeast Asia. They called themselves "working journalists" for peace.

At Fresno State, acting president Dr. Karl Falk ordered the campus flag to half staff in memory of the four Kent State students killed in a clash with National Guard troops.

The UC Davis Academic Senate approved a resolution calling for a two-week recess in classes next November to let students participate in election politics.

Many Armed Forces Day Events Off

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A number of traditional, annual observances of Armed Forces Day at military bases around the country were canceled today on the eve of what was announced as "the first nationwide GI antiwar protest."

With thousands of protesters against President Nixon's Indochina policy planning to demonstrate at or near the bases on Saturday, observances were called off at some of the biggest Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine installations.

Armed Forces Day usually is observed at all military bases of any size with open-house types of programs in which citizens are invited to demonstration of air shows, paratroop exhibitions, precision marching and musical programs.

But it will be different Saturday at such huge complexes as Ft. Benning, Ga., Key West Naval Air Station, Fla., Ft. Ord, Calif., Great Lakes Naval Training Center, Ill., and MacDill AFB, Fla.

Instead of an open-gate policy, many bases will be closed tight to visitors, with only persons on official business admitted other than GIs, whose credential also will be checked closely.

Antiwar groups have served notice they plan to mass thousands to demonstrate near some big bases.

The antiwar demonstrations were organized loosely by the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. The coordinator of the New Mobe "GI Task Force," Jack Sussarrey, called it "the first nationwide GI antiwar protest."

In moves aimed at averting possible clashes between those participating in, or viewing, the Armed Forces Day shows and those planning counter demonstrations, observances were called off at several installations including:

Ft. Benning, the Army's infantry training center; Ft. Ord, the biggest infantry base in the West; Ft. Meade, Md., headquarters of the 2nd Army; Ft. Bragg, N.C., a big paratrooper training center.

Quantico Marine Base, Va., south of Washington; Great Lakes Navy Center, north of Chicago; MacDill, AFB, near Tampa; Key West Naval Air Station, not far from President Nixon's Florida home at Key Biscayne.

Ft. Jackson, S.C., another major Army infantry training center; Pope AFB, N.C.; Grand Forks AFB, N.D., where an ABM installation is being built, and Robbins AFB, Ga., plus demonstrations in the cities of Columbus, Ga.; and Sacramento, Calif.

At the Pentagon in Washington, officials indicated they expected additional observances to be scrubbed because of the antiwar rallies planned.

WAR

three 7th Fleet carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin also raided supply routes and epots in Laos.

The allied commands began pulling additional forces out of Cambodia and switching others around to explore previously untouched zones.

U.S. B52s hammered at enemy supply trails and depots in eastern Laos, jammed with war materials kept out of Cambodia by the allied offensive, informed sources said.

South Vietnamese troops scored a success within the smashing of a North Vietnamese battalion near the vital ferry crossing of Neak Luong. Prisoners said enemy forces had planned an attack tonight on Prey Veng, 30 miles southeast of the Cambodian capital.

All of this activity was outside the enemy sanctaury area in eastern Cambodia, where U.S. and South Vietnamese troops on a dozen fronts continued their drive to destroy enemy stores of ammunition and supplies.

Informed sources in Saigon said the drives into eastern Cambodia have restricted the enemys' efforts in South Vietnam. Thus far, the allied commands said, the drives have killed 7,209 North Vietnamese and Viet Gong troops, captured 11,731 weapons, hundreds of tons of ammunition and 2,650 tons of rice.

The sources reporting the B52 attacks in eastern Laos said the allied drives in eastern Cambodia had deprived the enemy of many base camps at the end of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Explosion Hurts Black Students

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — An explosion of what police said was either black powder or dynamite damaged a four-room home in a predominantly Negro section of Carbondale and injured three Southern Illinois University students today.

The students, all Negroes, were taken to Doctors Memorial Hospital where one was reported in serious condition with part of a leg blown off.

C. William Norman, Carbondale city manager, said police found a large quantity of blasting caps, three shotguns and a pistol in the shattered home.

Also found was a quantity of literature of the Black Panther party, Norman said.

Fairfax Park Design Gains Panel Support

The Fairfax Design Review Board last night gave a vote of confidence to the city's park and recreation commission on the commission's plans for the redesign of the city park, according to secretary Marie Whissell.

The board also gave permission for a sign to be hung across Broadway promoting the city's blood drive May 26.

not notified of the meeting until 10 a.m. today, three hours after the meeting was scheduled.

The notice of the 7 a.m. closed session "to discuss personnel," came in a form of a letter from the office of Superintendent Philip W. Schneider and was postmarked yesterday.

Marin County Counsel Douglas Maloney said the Ralph M. Brown Act states such notice "must be delivered personally, or by mail, 24 hours prior to the meeting."

In order to have received the advance notification required by law, the I-J would have had to receive the notice by 7 a.m. yesterday. Douglas Provines, general clerk of the Mill Valley Post Office (the I-J's Southern Marin Office is in Mill Valley;, said there are no street deliveries of regular mail in Mill Valley before 9:30 a.m.

The board's decision to hold no more meetings before the election was delivered to the I-J this morning in the form of a memorandum signed by Clear, Johnson, Muldoon, Freedheim and Hollis.

Walton today told the Independent-Journal he had asked Schneider that his dismissal be placed on the agenda of the board's regular meeting scheduled for Monday night, since the trustees' May 4 action "was a surprise to many people."

"My firing was not on the board's agenda for that meeting," Walton said. "And many community people were not notified the board intended to act on this."

Although the four board members signed the statement this morning, according to Lyle Wright, curriculum coordinator for the Marin County schools office, he said the board has not met as a group to reach its decision to cancel all May meetings. "There were never more than two members of the board in this office at one time," Wright said.

The memo stated that each trustee and Schneider had met with Hollis and his staff and a member of the Marin County Board of Education, Glen Robinson, to discuss the matter.

When notified of the board's decision, Walton said the community would hold a meeting Monday night — with or without the district's trustees — at 6 p.m. in the Martin Luther King School gymnasium.

Last night, the Marin City Council voted unanimously to censure the school board for its firing of Walton and demanded his immediate reinstatement.

In its memorandum announcing the decisions reached at today's secret meeting, the board gave these reasons:

"1. The emotional atmosphere at the last two Sausalito Board meetings was at an extremely high pitch, with physical violence a very real possibility — particularly at the last meeting. This potential for violence destroys the conditions required for patient and reasonable consideration of school business.

"2. There is substantial evidence that large numbers of individuals from outside the school district have attended the last several board meetings and have attempted to influence board decisions as well as to apply pressure against legitimate community participation in open meetings. There are indications that the next meeting would see a similar influx of persons, representing emotional axtremes, from outside the district. School board meetings are held for the transaction of school business and not as political or emotional battlegrounds for conflicting interest groups.

"3. A recall election is scheduled on June 2, 1970, which could influence long-range organizational plans for next year.

"4. In response to requests for consideration of a program involving two schools and open enrollment, the administration is arranging for an independent survey group to assist in determining the extent of parental interest in such a plan. The school board would like to allow adequate time for this task to be completed in a first-class fashion before the matter is formally considered at a Board meeting."

STANFORD (AP)—An arson fire in the Stanford University computer complex area was checked today before it caused serious damage. The damage estimate was $500.

Jurian said three quart cans of flamable material were discovered on the scene.

Research Proves Pigs Among Smartest

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Pigs at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture have reaveled a high level of intelligence during testing which may determine the quality and price of pork at local supermarkets.

Animal scientists at the school say that the learning level of swine breeds can influence the quality of future litters.

A U. K. team of testers also discovered that porkers rate high on the list of the more intelligent laboratory animals. They said pigs are considered superior to dogs, rats and mice in their ability to adapt to environmental changes.

Rights Unit Wants Asian Withdrawal

The Marin County Human Rights Commission called upon President Richard M. Nixon last night to reverse his Cambodian decision and announced its support of a bipartisan congressional move to cut off war spending.

It also pleaded for more thorough public explanation of the Nixon foreign policy and for more dialogue between the public and the administration.

The commission's stance, which will be contained in a letter to Nixon, came on a suggestion by Commissioner Anthony Medrano, a College of Marin instructor, who told of sharp student dissent over expansion of the Indochina war and said he personally opposed the Cambodian invasion.

Other commissioners supported his stand, although Richard Harding, who said he had served in two wars, explained: "I'm opposed to this (invasion), but deep down inside I know there are things worth fighting for."

"There is a credibility lack in what is being done and what is being said," said Commissioner Dale R. Jackson.

Chairman James O. Quiett went further: "The present administration is not telling us the truth. It amounts to lies . . ."

Commissioner Charles B. Weers, secretary of the Marin Labor Council, said Bay Area labor, despite the remarks of George Meany, AFL-CIO president, did not support the Cambodian move.

"We dont' feel that the invasion . . . is proper or needed," he said. "It will only . . . expand the war in Asia and we might eventually be in China."

Commissioner Frederick S. Mayer, proprietor of a Sausalito Pharmacy, reported that 509 telegrams opposing Nixon's action had been sent from an impromptu stand set up in front of his store.

The Marin County Human Rights Commission also:

EDUCATION — Was told by Medrano that the county schools office is "doing very little" to gather material for use in elementary school districts on multiethnic education. A check of the districts had shown, however, that all had incorporated multiethnic instruction into their curricula, although three did not respond to a commission inquiry.

INDIAN — Asked the Legislature to urge Congress to enact legislation opening legal channels to Indians in disputes with the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

BUS — Learned of the Southern Marin Boys Club's need for a used bus and staff said it would try to help.

HOUSING — Endorsed the June 2 proposition calling for provision of 600 units of low-rent housing in Marin.

STUDY — Endorsed a proposal by the League of Women Voters for a study of juvenile justice in the county.

ELECT — Reelected Quiett as commission chairman and Medrano as vice chairman.

COMMISSIONER — Learned that Mary Brooks had announced her intent to resign because of ill health.

Wrong Address For Best Coffee

A release in Wednesday's Independent-Journal issued by Charles R. Best, a candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, erred in announcing a coffee at the John Young residence at 15 Estates Drive, San Anselmo.

The coffee will be held Thursday at 1 p.m. at the John Allen Young residence, 90 Legend Road, San Anselmo.

Rights Group Opposes 'Figurehead' Capacity

Six members of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, opposed to serving in a "figurehead capacity," vowed to quit last night if their staff is eliminated.

"If there is no staff, I'll resign. It's as simple as that," said Commissioner Dale R. Jackson, a new appointee.

The group pledge, which came with three members absent, was in response to a proposed economy move by County Administrator Alan Bruce. In addition to the human rights department, Bruce also proposes that the board of supervisors eliminate the county's New Careers staff and farm adviser's office by the next fiscal year.

Bruce has said abolition of the human rights staff would save the county $52,000.

The commission was notified officially of Bruce's plan last night, although it had been made public last week. The mood of the group was quietly resentful.

Executive Director Austin J. Thompson, whose $14,400-a-year job is among those threatened, urged the commission to "meet the crisis with reason not with rage. . .because we have no reason to assume a defensive posture."

He said he felt confident the department was "one of the best in the state," noting it had served as a model to other human rights staffs.

Thompson said he hoped the board of supervisors "uses the vision it has shown in the past" and opposes abolition of the department but acknowledged that even if the staff is saved, "I realize there will be a need for us to go through the budget and make cuts that are going to hurt."

Thompson capsuled the department's achievements, which included securing of nearly $200,000 in local and regional grants for a police-community relations program, upgrading of minority hiring practices and for bus transportation for Marin City youth to Tamalpais High School.

He also mentioned efforts in job placement, youth work and contract compliance in minority hiring and noted that it "took the county nearly two-and-a-half years to set up its New Careers program but it took us only two-and-a-half months to establish a teacher aide program in the Sausalito School District."

"We've more than paid our way," he said, noting that the department's average budget the past three years was $44,000 and that the cost represented less than one-half of 1 per cent on the county tax rate, while the department of public social services was responsible for 30 cents of the tax dollar.

To close the department is to "court disaster" because it is dealing with "people-oriented, crisis problems. . .," Thompson said.

"We've come too far," said Commissioner Richard Harding. "It may not appear to the public that the staff and commission are as effective as they are, but when you begin to recite it, it's impressive.

"It seems to me," he went on, "that the only thing he (Bruce) picks on are the people-oriented services because he knows that the people are going to stand up and resist and then he can say, 'Well, the only thing we can do is raise taxes.'"

"If it means taking on Mr. Bruce, let's do it," added Commissioner Frederick S. Mayer, who officially joined the board with Jackson last night.

Chairman James O. Quiett recounted the early days of the commission when it was a "paper" body without staff and said he didn't want to return to that status.

Senate Approves DDT Ban, Again

SACRAMENTO (AP) — For the second consecutive year, the Senate has passed a bill to outlaw the use of the pesticide DDT except in certain cases approved by the state agriculture director.

The measure by Sen. John J. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, passed 27-1 Thursday with the only no vote coming from Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr., R-Redding, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Nejedly's bill would take effect in 1972. It is a milder version of a bill he sponsored last year. It passed the Senate but died in an Assembly committee.

The State Agriculture Department gradually is phasing out most uses of the so-called "hard" pesticides DDT and DDD.

Education Board Eyes Budget Bid

The Marin County Board of Education will consider on Monday whether to make its annual bid to gain complete control of its budget by eliminating the board of supervisors power of approval.

A similar effort under the slogan "fiscal responsibility" was unsuccessful last year.

The forum will be a joint meeting of the board's committees at 7:30 p.m. in the county schools office, 201 Tamal Vista Boulveard, Corte Madera.

Also on the agenda is a proposal to empower the board of education to appoint a county schools superintendent when a vacancy occurs. That power now rests with the supervisors.

The board will also consider another resolution asking the state to improve facilities at Bayview School at San Quentin Prison. The Department of Corrections has said no money is available for the improvements.

The educational services committee will hear a progress report on the regional occupational educational program.

COMING DOWN FAST — Demonstrating for Marin and other Bay Area officials the possibilities of short takeoff and landing (STOL) aircraft, a DeHavilland Twin Otter swoops down over obstacles at the Presidio's Crissy Field, lands, and comes to a stop in less than 500 feet of runway. Yesterday's demonstrations also involved vertical takeoff planes and helicopters. (UPI Telephotos)

Marin, Bay Officials See How Air Commuter Craft Can Operate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Urban leaders from Northern California may have gotten a preview of what the future holds as far as quick inter-city transportation is concerned.

The officials, including 20 from Marin County, were participants Thursday in the opening of a three-day demonstration of the various uses of short take-off and landing planes and helicopters.

The demonstrations were held at the U.S. Army's Crissy Field on the edge of San Francisco Bay and was under the auspices of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce as part of National Transportation Week.

Eleven types of short-take-off-and-landing (STOL), vertical-take-off-and-landing (VTOL) planes and helicopters were used.

The opening day's activities centered on flights of such craft from the state's two major recreational centers in Northern California—Lake Tahoe and Monterey. The STOL craft carried civic leaders from both areas.

The Marin County officials on hand include Col. Dale W. Luehring, general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge District; Carroll A. Snyker, manager of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau; Francis E. Torr, Marin County Airport manager; Robert R. Fair, a Marin County contractor; Gordon Helwig, a title company official; Herbert G. Hotchner, director of planning for San Rafael; and Mario T. Balestrieri, assistant director of public works for Marin County.

"I'm very impressed by what I've seen at today's demonstrations," said Balestrieri. "STOL does have application for Marin when you consider the joint use of Hamilton Air Force Field as well as Marin County air facilities. We have a considerable amount of flexibility in Marin County."

Woman Is Treated For Crash Injuries

Beverley Giambra, 31, of 1825 Second Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for bruises sustained in a two-car collision, San Rafael police have reported.

A car driven by Mrs. Giambra's husband, Jimmie Weilbert Giambra, 39, collided with one driven by Frederick Horr, 49, of 25 Vallejo Avenue, Inverness at the intersection of Fourth and Irwin streets at 10:07 p.m., according to police.

Eulogies, TV Mark Reuther's Last Rites

DETROIT (UPI)—Walter P. Reuther, son of a labor organizer who became one of the century's great union leaders, was eulogized today in an auditorium named for one of his foes during 1930's labor strife — auto pioneer Henry Ford.

Some 3,000 persons were invited to attend funeral services in Ford Auditorium for Reuther, 62, and his wife, May, 59, who died Saturday night in the crash of a chartered jet near Pellston, Mich., that killed four other persons.

Eleven speakers were to eulogize the red-haired labor leader, including Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.; Whitney M. Young, director of the National Urban League; John W. Gardner, chairman of the National Urban Coalition; Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Sam Brown, a student leader of the Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

The funeral services, televised and broadcast live by Detroit-area news media, were followed by cremation at Woodlawn Cemetery. Members of the union's 25-man Executive Board and 24-man Executive Board and 34 other union officers and Reuther aides were honorary pallbearers.

Among guests were former Vice President Hubert Humphrey, Sens. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg; Housing Secretary George Romney; Labor Secretary George P. Schultz, as well as politicians, labor leaders and industrialists from all over the world.

The 1.6 million United Auto Workers members across the country were to pause three minutes in memory of their leader for 24 years. Some were expected to hold longer work stoppages.

Bagley Gains On Integration Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A measure to put the racial guidelines the State Board of Education is attempting to repeal out of the reach of the state board passed its first legislative test today.

But the same Assembly Education subcommittee also approved legislation outlawing mandatory school busing to achieve integration.

The proposal by William T. Bagley of San Rafael to incorporate the controversial guidelines into the education code was approved 4-2 by the subcommittee an hour after the antibusing legislation of Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, was approved 4-3.

Underground Test At Yucca Flat

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI)—Scientists triggered an underground nuclear blast today which had a maximum yield equivalent of 200,000 tons of tnt.

The Atomic Energy Commission said that the test was detonated 1,455-feet below desert floor at the bottom of a vertical shaft.

It had a yield of 20 to 200,000 kilotons. The atomic bomb which destroyed Hiroshima was a 20-kiloton weapon.

The AEC said that no radiation leaked into the atmosphere from today's test.

The weapons test, named Cornice, was the 19th announced underground nuclear test this calendar year and 219th since the ban of atmospheric testing in 1963.

Terra Linda Told How To Get More Sheriff's Help

A joint meeting of the Terra Linda Community Services District and Recreation and Park District boards was told last night the way to obtain increased sheriff's patrols of their parks is to encourage citizen complaints.

Undersheriff Sidney Stinson told the boards that his office would like to offer preventive patrols to head off vandalism and disturbances before they occur, but that the sheriff's budget is limited.

Richard L. Less, vice chairman of the services district board, said Stinson appeared at the meeting in response to concern by recreation officials that the community's three parks were not being patrolled enough after 10 p.m. He said several complaints were received last year about noise, vandalism and youths sleeping in the park and it was hoped the trouble could be headed off this summer.

But Stinson told the groups that patrols were set up to respond quickly to areas which have drawn the most citizen complaints for various reasons. Less quoted Stinson as saying that "people have to call and let us know what's going on in order to get increased patrol."

The recreation board later met and received a petition from a group seeking closure of Munson Park because of litter and noise. The small park lies between two homes.

But the board said the park was still under development, according to Dist. Gen. Mgr. Zonwice Mulhaupt, and believed it will "look much better" when completed.

Preparing for an expected influx of 50 million fairgoers during Expo 70's six-month run, Osaka, Japan has expanded its highway network. One 12-lane expressway soars 60 feet above ground and is supported at one point by a four-story office building.

Woman Locksmith Is Senior Nominee

JEAN CLARKSON
Santa Venetia's choice

Jean Clarkson, probably the only 73-year-old woman locksmith in Marin, has been nominated by the Gay Seventies of Santa Venetia as the most outstanding senior citizen of Marin.

Mrs. Clarkson of 605 North San Pedro Road learned the trade when she and her late husband had a locksmith shop in San Francisco for 20 years.

She was a summer resident of Marin, starting in 1938, and became a permanent resident in 1959.

Mrs. Clarkson has been a locksmith since 1950, working for Cole National of Cleveland, Ohio, until 1968 when she went to work for Carl Gunther of San Rafael.

She has served as historian of the San Pedro Swingers, now known as Gay Seventies. "Some of them didn't like the name, swingers," she explained.

She is active making table decorations, flower decorations and desserts for club sessions.

For the past seven years Mrs. Clarkson has visited the sick and needy as a deacon in the Presbyterian Church of Santa Venetia, and has provided meeting places at the church for seniors.

She has helped with arts and crafts and has seen that all seniors are registered to vote, including those in rest homes.

Since many residents of Venetia Oaks, the senior citizen housing project in Santa Venetia, have no auto, Mrs. Clarkson has helped to solve the transportation problem by taking elderly residents to markets in her own car.

She is a member of the Rosecrucian, an international organization, and the Goldennaires Club in San Rafael.

Car Stolen

Virgil M. Crossler, owner of the West End Shell Service station at 1540 Second Street, reported to San Rafael police that his white 1961 four-door Rambler with license DQS023 was stolen from his business between midnight and 6:45 a.m. today.

Vatican Orders Balanced Texts On Controversies

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ordered Catholic universities and seminaries Friday to present historical religious controversies with greater balance.

It also urged more care in the writing of textbooks and said these works "should faithfully set out the opinions of other Christians on matters of theology, history and spirituality."

The ecumencial document, released by Jan Cardinal Willebrands, the Vatican's No. 1 expert on Christian unity work, made no mention of specific controversies but it instructed Roman Catholic institutions of higher learning to review their "style and ways of teaching history . . . so that in dealing with Christian society, full consideration is given to the different Christian communities and their whole way of life is understood."

Jess Unruh Axed From Committees

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, announced several committee shifts today, including the dropping of Assemblyman Jess Unruh from two committees.

Monagan said the changes were designed to get better committee attendance and to speed up committee work which has been hampered by absenteeism.

He said there was "no ulterior motive whatsoever" in dropping Unruh, who is a Democratic candidate for governor who spends most of the time campaigning.

Monagan said he discussed the move with Unruh beforehand and Unruh agreed to it. He thus was taken off the Agriculture and Natural Resources committees.

Monagan himself is taking the place of Assemblyman Patrick D. McGee, R-Van Nuys, on the Governmental Organization, Judiciary and Natural Resources committees. McGee is ill and may not be able to return to Sacramento before the end of the legislative session.

The speaker said he hopes the session can end by mid-July but said late July would be a more pragmatic forecast.

Stanford Eliminates Flunking Penalties

STANFORD (AP) — A comprehensive overhaul of the grading system which eliminates "flunks" has been approved by Stanford University's Faculty Senate.

Starting next fall the sole penalty for failing to complete an undergraduate course will be loss of credit toward graduation.

Columbia Eagle Hijacking No Pill-Poppers' Plot?

By GEORGE NEVIN

Herrick. E. Morgan describes how the Columbia Eagle was hijacked as a war protest.
(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

The press has given the world a false impression of the two men who hijacked the Columbia Eagle as it steamed toward Thailand with a hold full of napalm bombs in March, says the ship's chief mate.

"You might have read that they were pill poppers," said Herrick E. Morgan, the other day, at his home at 816 Spring Street, Sausalito.

"But that's not true. They were too smart to be pill poppers or grass blowers. They were highly intelligent and cool-headed," he said, sketching a quick verbal picture of Clyde McKay and Alvin Glatowski, who caught the world's attention with their dramatic war protest March 16.

Morgan said that he was the first to know of the commandeering. "I was catching up on some paperwork about 1:30 p.m. when I heard a knock at my cabin hatch. In came McKay and 'Ski.

"McKay had an envelope and he pulled a gun from it. 'This ship is going to Cambodia,' he said. 'I've got a shaky hand and a hair trigger.'" The gun's hammer was pulled back, Morgan said.

The chief mate led the two to the captain's cabin, where Capt. Donald O. Swann ordered the abandon ship alarm sounded. But first he told the hijackers that he needed some men left on board to run the ship, Morgan said.

In all, 24 crewmen abandoned ship in two lifeboats and were picked up by a sister ship. The Columbia Eagle continued toward Cambodia with the hijackers holding 17 persons hostage.

"I only tried to get control once," Morgan related. "'Ski was outside the wheehouse and I sneaked up on McKay with a crowbar. I wanted to hit him and knock him out, but I'm not trained to kill. Just as I got in range 'Ski came back into the cabin and yelled, 'Look out for the mate!' Then he took a shot at me. He missed, though."

Morgan is convinced that the hijacking was the result of extensive planning by a group in this country and signals the beginning of a rash of such incidents.

"It was too smooth not to have been planned," he said. "McKay, the brains of the outfit, could have signed on as an engineer, but instead he took the job of room steward, the lowest-paying job on the ship, because that gave him access to a master key." Morgan thinks McKay let himself into the rooms of the officers to search for weapons.

Another point convinced Morgan of the operation's professionalism — the hijackers waited until the ship's noon position had been given before they struck. That gave them the information that the ship was only about 100 miles off the coast of Vietnam.

The ship tied up at Sihanoukville, where McKay and Glatowski were taken ashore by a Cambodian gunboat. Morgan and the rest of the crew were confined to the ship.

"I only was the hijackers once after that," he said. "They were brought aboard a few days later, and then left. I heard the Cambodians say that they were confined to the naval station and not allowed to leave."

The Hijacking backfired on them, Morgan thinks. "They wanted to go to Cambodia because they thought they would find an ally in Prince Sihanouk," he said. "But the coup changed all that. I don't think they're very welcome there any more."

For three weeks the Columbia Eagle rode at anchor in the Mekong River, guarded by a Cambodian gunboat. "The Cambodians visited us often," Morgan said. "They all were courteous and kind to a fault. They spoke perfect English and had the best of manners."

Morgan's stay in Cambodia gave him an insight into the problems in Southeast Asia. "It was sad to see how poor those people (Cambodian soldiers) were. They visited us often, always on the lookout for small arms.

"They often said that they didn't need troops from other countries only arms to repel the North Vietnameese invaders. 'Cambodia always has been a neutral country,' they said. 'We don't want American soldiers here any more than we want Viet Cong. Just give us the weapons and let us fight for our country.'"

Morgan sincerely believes President Richard M. Nixon did the only humane thing possible by responding to Cambodia's plea for help. "If you saw a child being attacked by a bully and he said, 'Throw me a gun,' you'd do it, wouldn't you?" he asked.

"Well that's what's happening in Cambodia. I don't necessarily think we should have soldiers there, but we should give them the arms to defend themselves from bullies."

The Columbia Eagle finally was repatriated after a flurry of diplomatic negotiations and allowed to unload its cargo in the Philippines and return home. Now the ship is preparing to sail for Taiwan and South Korea with another cargo, but it will do without the services of Chief Mate Morgan.

"I'm sitting out on this cruise and the next one," he said, "but not because of the hijacking. After a year of ailing I just need a rest."

Prior to her death last year, Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly had completed a number of manuscripts on early-day Marin personalities, events and places that the Marin Magazine has been running from time to time. Another appears tomorrow. This time the subject is James Black, one of the county's most successful pioneer ranching figures who built an empire that touched off some of Marin's most bitter litigation.

To the non-initiated, one of the most baffling of all handicraft hobbies is the boat model builder who displayes his finished project inside a narrow-necked bottle. In tomorrow's I-J Marin Magazine, freelance writer-photographer Gil Pearson tells you about one such Marin hobbyist — Bill Waller of San Rafael — and his secret for getting his finely crafted boat models inside the bottles that become their homes.

College Trustees Bow To Campus Peace Call

Pressured for more than two hours by students and faculty, Marin Junior College District trustees last night adopted a resolution condemning the United States' involvement in Southeast Asia and called for the withdrawal of American troops.

The trustees voted 6-1 to adopt the resolution with Harry J. Moore casting the lone dissenting vote.

Emotion ran high at times during the two-hour discussuion on the non-agenda item, and at one point a young co-ed broke into tears while pleading with the board to adopt the resolution.

The board's stand last night is believed to be the first time the college trustees have broken their long-standing policy against involvement in political issues.

The long discussion almost never got off the ground. When the board was asked by a student to consider adopting a resolution, board chairman Robert E. Rogers asked that it be referred to Supt.-President John A. Grasham, but the 100 persons gathered in Olney Hall protested that to delay a decision would be "copping out."

The majority of the board at first indicated that it didn't want to become involved in the issue, but trustee Charles W. Gray disagreed.

"There's a spirit of peace on this campus which the board shouldn't impede," he said. "We cannot sit above the college, we must join it." I think its time for the board to acknowledge the college's concern."

Trustee Robert E. Oliver said at first he would wait to see if President Nixon would get the troops out of Cambodia by his June deadline before approving any antiwar resolution. He later changed his mind.

College Student Body President James Detro told the board it was "shirking its duty" by not adopting a resolution.

Gray agreed. "When a great beseeching comes from the academic community, then the board is justified in taking a stand."

Trustees Donald K. Felt, Elizabeth M. Deedy and Moore had each said that regardless of the board member's individual feelings about the war, they felt the trustees should not get involved in taking an official stand.

Each of their remarks was greeted with catcalls from several student members of the audience.

"Get off the political fence. Stop worrying about your political future as trustees," one called over and over.

Moore, in explaining his negative vote, said he dissented because for the trustees to take an official stand would be "outside the given purview of the board."

Mrs. Deedy and Felt complimented the majority of the students for the action during the recent student strike on campus, but said they were disappointed in a few students who blocked entrances to some buildings.

Mrs. Deedy also urged that the students make use of President Nixon's newly appointed collegiate advisor by writing him and making known their feelings on all matters concerning education.

While finally relenting and adopting the resolution, the trustees rejected a proposal from several students that the college suspend regular class sessions and devote the remainder of the semester to a "peace commitment."

The resolution adopted by the trustees is similar to one recently adopted by the Foothill Junior College board. The trustees made minor changes ot Foothill's resolution during a 10-minute break. Following the board's action, the majority of the students filed out, flashing the "V" peace symbol to the board.

The full text the the board's resolution read:

"The Board of Trustees of Marin Junior College District are concerned about the pressures that appear to be dividing our country. We deplore the extension of military involvement by the nation in Southeast Asia. We urge our government to do everything possible to hasten the withdrawal of our forces. We ask those in a position of national authority to evaluate all of the government's activities in an effort to unite the nation, which should be the stated aim of the government."

New Campus Report Still Not Ready

The long-awaited study on the feasibility of the proposed junior college for the Novato area is still just that — long awaited.

Marin Junior College District trustees were told last night that the report is now being typed by the college staff and would probably be ready for distribution to board members within the next few days.

Supt. President John A. Grasham told the board he hoped to have the report ready for last night's meeting, but was unable to complete the typing.

"It's a rather lengthy report," he said.

The study, completed recently by the California Community College's Chancellor's office, will weigh heavily on whether the college district gets state funds to develop the north county campus. State funds will become available only if the report finds the site feasible, although the college district could develop the college using only district funds if so desired.

The Marin Junior College District trustees last night also:

Black Newsmen Held Protected

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The landmark ruling upholding newsmen's rights to protect their sources extend to Black Panther newspaper employees, according to the judge who issued it.

U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli ruled Thursday that Brenda Presley, 22, and Sherrie Bursey, 18, were reporters and thus had the right to decline to reveal confidential sources to a federal grand jury.

Judge Zirpoli issued the ruling after the two women testified they worked up to 20 hours a day reporting, editing, interviewing and making up the weekly publication of the militant group.

Last April 4, Zirpoli held that New York Times reporter Earl Caldwell could refuse to reveal confidential information before the same grand jury unless the government needed it for an "overriding" national purpose and could not get it otherwise.

In The Beginning, Mafia Serves As Good Neighbor...

So Mafia infiltration of local and even national government is an old story. But you still can't figure out how the mob gets to a strait-laced police chief, an upright judge, a distinguished lawmaker? Mario Puzo grew up in an old Sicilian neighborhood. Out of his own experience he fashioned the best-selling novel of the current year, "The Godfather." That was fiction, of course. Herewith the facts on how the Mafia makes friends.

By MARIO PUZO

A cop who bravely trades shots with a bank robber turns around and accepts bribes from a bookie. A respected judge takes orders from the Mafia. A zealous district attorney deliberately lets a vicious criminal slip through his legal net simply because he owes a favor to a member of the Mob. What makes these people, graduates of our best schools, presumably the most honest and upstanding representatives of our culture, become virtual hired hands of criminal syndicate?

By millions we ask that question, shocked and distrubed, every time another Mafia scandal hits the front pages. Always the story seems to be accompanied by the picture of a distinguished-looking man—upright, clean, member of a church, attentive father, public figure, lives in a good neighborhood, belongs to the best clubs—hauled before a grand jury and indicted for taking bribes, for conspiring, for corrupting the process of government.

How do "they" get to a man like this?

You wouldn't ask the question for a second if you understood how the Mafia really operates in the average city and town today. But nobody seems to understand.

I can tell you how "they" get to an upstanding citizen by recalling a story from my old childhood on 10th Avenue in the Hell's Kitchen neighborhood of Manhattan.

When I was very young, a neighbor across the tenement air shaft threw a blanket full of guns into our apartment and asked my mother to hold them for him, police were knocking on his door. My mother did so (though like most Italian mothers she went into hysterics when my older borther got so much as a speeding ticket. A disgrazia for the family she would say).

In any case this man became our protector. He "reasoned" with the landlord who tried to throw us out because we kept a dog. This kindly neighbor saw to it that free coal was delivered to our house and that we received not one, but two free Thanksgiving baskets from the local political club.

So the children in my family called him "Godfather" in the same sense American kids in country towns call an elderly neighbor "uncle."

Unfortunately, or fortunately, after about a year, our Godfather disappeared mysteriously one day and was never heard from again.

He was of course a "Mafia" man. Undoubtedly my mother knew that he broke the law but since he broke the law for us too how could we judge him? How could he be denied a cup of coffee, an invitation for dinner?

The word "Mafia" never entered our heads. Our neighbor was a kindly man, a generous man and we never dreamed that he was a man who could commit murder for a price.

On a more subtle level, it is in just this way that the Mafia Family gets the politicians, the police, the judges and lawyers working for them. Friendship and favors, nice guys, help when you need it—all to be repaid one day.

My novel "The Godfather" was concerned with one fictional Mafia Family which controlled a vast underworld empire by building up interlocking friendships with many men who held powerful positions in the legal structure of our society.

I portrayed this Mafia Family as having a certain code of honor, as performing services for people who had been neglected or spurned by the institutions of our society. I also showed how this Mafia Family exacted a price for such services.

But most important of all I showed these criminals not in the usual cruel caricatures of the "B" movie and sensational magazine stories, but as men with intelligence, great force and a certain charm. For that is what these men are: wise men, leaders, but left out of the mainstream of society.

When "The Godfather" was published some reviewers hinted that my knowledge of the criminal underworld and its methods had to spring from something more than ordinary research. When the book became a best seller I was accused of being more than sympathetic to outrageous criminals. I was accused of making the Mafia too smart, too attractive. (Someone even called the Godfather, Don Corleone, the Babbitt of crime because of his strict sexual morality.)

There was even a story going about that the Mafia had paid me an enormous amount of money to write the book as a public relations coup.

All this was flattering in a way. Many a red-blooded American loves to brag that he knows a Mafia guy. But each "fact" and criminal method portrayed in my novel is a matter of public record, via press exposure, bugging tapes and Congressional hearings.

As for the charges that I made the Mafia too omnipotent, the recent scandals published in the press indicate that the Families almost entirely controlled one of the most important states in the Union. Maybe I underestimated what the Dons could do when they really put their muscle to work.

It is true though that some of the dramatic incidents in my book were a matter of personal experience. The story of my neighbor with a blanket full of guns was one of these.

Like the "Godfather" neighbor in my youth, a "Mafioso" does not put on his blackest hat, walk up to a Senator and stuff a carnation of C-notes into the Congressional buttonhole. Nor does the Mafioso ask a judge to give a suspended sentence to a "button" man caught with a smoking pistol in hand and riddled corpse staining his alligator shoes red.

Requests for a "favor" have to be more reasonable, at least until the official is safely in the bag.

In many cases the Mafia catch their hired hands young. A struggling lawyer at the beginning of his career has a lot of business thrown his way by a kindly "business" man who also offers advice and guidance. The lawyer may even be introduced into his patron's social circle and find a niece or cousin to take as his wife. Then the lawyer enters politics, his patron helping him all the way.

Eventually the lawyer becomes a judge or district attorney. And he owes. How can he refuse his patron's request for a suspended sentence for some misled lad caught burglarizing TV stores?

Or refuse a sympathetic ear for a fellow nabbed peddling drugs or pulling a happy-go-lucky stick-up just for a lark?

So there is one route by which "they" get to a public figure. Friendship and favors, early. But there is another and more insidious method these days.

Everybody knows how much a political campaign costs. You need cash to rent offices and cars, to pay phone bills, to buy TV and radio commercials and put ads in the paper, to hire a PR man. And if you win, the expenses of staying in office are just as rough.

We all know what kind of pay mayors and judges and legislators and congressmen get. We know they can't make ends meet on their salaries. We know from the public record that the money flows in from "friends" and "committees," otherwise an official couldn't stay solvent.

Here the Mafia comes through like the most infatuated sugar daddy. The head of a powerful Mafia Family that runs gambling in New York has reportedly boasted that he pays $5 million a year to public officials. That is a hell of a lot of money and projecting similar figures all over the U.S.A. the total illegal payroll could be over a billion.

Where does the money come from? Not usually from narcotics, prostitution and armed robbery, but from that most innocent and tolerated of crimes: gambling. If gambling were legalized and strictly controlled the money base of the Mafia would be destroyed and its power so diluted that it would no longer be a force to be reckoned with. Its ability to corrupt public officials would be seriously impaired not only economically but psychologically.

A law enforcement official who originally never dreamed of taking a bribe to fix an armed robbery rap finds it easy to get paid off to let gambling operate. After all, what's the harm in letting the public bet on a football game? He then progresses gradually from "clean" graft (gambling) to "dirty" graft.

So if you live in the kind of town where a man can get any kind of gambling bet down, there's a strong possibility somebody takes money from a criminal syndicate. You can bet that the Mafia has a foot in the door. It might be that the worst kind of criminal can buy his way out of any charge from mugging, stickups, rape and murder, to say nothing of criminal fraud, probably the most popular fix of all.

The initial gambling bribe is like a snowball rolling downhill; the corruption grows from this.

In my novel the chief character, Don Corleone, the Godfather himself, says at one point, "A lawyer with his briefcase can steal more than a thousand men with guns. When readers wish to compliment me on my book they quote this line more than any other.

This shows, I think, a widespread distrust of our legal structure. It is obvious that what appeals most to many readers is that Don Corleone secures quick justice for the people who swear allegiance to him.

In the book one of his friends comes to the Don with a complaint. Two young men have beaten his daughter in a rape attempt. A corrupt judge has set the two men free with a suspended sentence. The Don takes action. The two young men are brutally beaten in their turn.

This recourse is primitive and unacceptable in a civilized society. But anyone who has followed a rape trial in our society where defense lawyers are permitted to question the victim in the most cynical way, doing even more psychological damage, may find it easy to applaud the Don rather than condemn him.

More than 35 years ago an older brother of mine put down the enormous sum of $300 to buy furniture for his apartment. He and his future wife had saved more than a year to get this sum together.

The wholesaler they gave the money to went bankrupt a few days later. My brother went to law and finally did get satisfaction but only after a year of hard work, harassment, and nervous tension that injured his health. If only our old Godfather with his blanket full of guns had still been in touch.

I used this incident too in my book becausei t still has validity. Today, just for one instance, if you put a payment down on a house and the builder declares bankruptcy you have a good chance of losing your thousand or two thousand or even five thousand dollars. The contractor can turn around and incorporate himself anew and start building again.

This is legal but immoral. When a society permits such trickery it must not be surprised that some of its citizens resort to quicker solutions than the law.

Looking back on the way my book caught on, I feel sure its success is related to the success that the Mafia has had in this country. The people of America have always had a curious tolerance for the bypassing of any legal procedure. There is the history of vigilanteism, the flouting of prohibition, the transformation of Western cutthroats into romantic gunmen.

And I think that now, more than ever, many people have lost faith in the ability of our legal structure to protect and care for them as individuals. Part of the revolutionary turmoil in our country springs from this feeling.

Never forget the Mafia came into existence and flourished in a land where the ruling class cared almost nothing for its ordinary people: Sicily.

The Mafia is the pus from an infected wound, not the wound itself. The real villains are those in charge. The more indifferent the government is to the needs of its citizens the better the climate for a parallel criminal society. The Mafia has a vested interest in such an indifference and inefficiency.

People who are afraid to fight for their rights come to them for help, for a "fix", and so become their allies.

And yet I believe the Mafia is in its death throes, that the organized criminal underworld no longer has the power it once had. The old time Mafia capos like Don Corleone were so cunning that the FBI never even knew they existed. The present Mafia bosses cannot even protect themselves from the simplest electronic surveillance.

Also, the smarter Mafia Families have mostly deserted crime and have integrated themselves into the legitimate commercial world, sometimes finding to their delight that there are businesses where they can make even more with the protections of the law than they could outside it.

Cynicism aside, I truly believe that our society is becoming more moral, that it is becoming more concerned about the individual. Very slowly to be sure, but getting there. And the people are getting smarter too. They are learning to fight for their rights instead of asking for "favors," the political or criminal fix.

The laws of a decent, healthy society are, after all, made primarily for the happiness and protection of its individual members. Our laws are changing. Hopefully we are moving toward a society in which economic murder will become as immoral as physical murder and so to a society where the Mafia and its "Godfathers" cannot exist.

Sonoma Housing Authority Debated

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmens' Association heard conflicting reports last night on what advantages a county housing authority would bring.

Speaking in favor of the housing authority plan as it will appear on the June 2 ballot were Kenneth R. Blackman, Santa Rosa Planning Director, and Roy Mitchell, executive director of People for Economic Opportunity.

In opposition to the authority was Kennon Gilbert, executive director of the Sonoma County Taxpayers Association.

Blackman said that the tight money market has caused a sharp drop in available housing in the greater Santa Rosa area, especially those available to families on low or fixed incomes.

He said that cities should encourage nonprofit groups to enter the housing picture so that new units can be rented at lower prices. Blackman also reported that grants could become available under the housing authority to upgrade deteriorating properties so that slums will not spread.

"It is mandatory that the various types of housing be spread throughout the community so that the city is not ghettoized," Blackman said, noting the housing authority could assure a mixture of rich and poor and the races.

He said that 60 per cent of Sonoma residents can no longer afford to buy a $17,500 home at present interest rates and "we can't turn our backs on that 60 per cent as we continually process subdivisions for the other 40 per cent."

Mitchell reported that 26 per cent or 54,000 county residents are now classed at the poverty level and cannot compete in the housing market.

He said the average rental price of $74 per month in 1960 had risen to $150 by 1969. Mitchell told of families with 17 children living in two-bedroom units. "I called them units, but they could also be called pig sties or chicken coops," he said.

Mitchell questioned the legality of the June 2 vote, saying it is not proper to subject those who need the authority to the will of those who don't. The vote will only be advisory to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors and they will not be held to any decision at the polls.

Mitchell said that funds provided by the federal government would permit the authority to lease rental properties at market value from private individuals and sublet them for less money through subsidy.

He said Sonoma County residents paid $76 million in federal income taxes last year with only $7 million being directly returned to the county.

"It's time to start using it in a way to begin to create solutions for our needs," Mitchell said.

Speaking in opposition, Gilbert said the directors of the taxpayers association would be recommending a no vote in June.

Listing six reasons, Gilbert said it is the objective of the association to see that taxes don't rise and that the housing authority programs would probably hinder that. He said federal regulations could change at any time and shift the burden for supporting the authority to the local level.

Gilbert also called the plan an infringement on private enterprise and said that only estimates but no figures had been presented to show the need for a housing authority.

The director said the program will be welfare-oriented and would result in a large influx of welfare recipients into Sonoma County to take advantage of the situation. He said that one out of nine in Sonoma County receives welfare while in Los Angeles the figure is one out of 11.

Gilbert also noted that it would take a minimum of eight years to phase out the authority should it not work, because leases must be signed for that period of time.

The Sonoma County Mayors' and Councilmens' Association also:

LAFC — Named Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam as its representative to the Local Agency Formation Commission and Sebastopol Mayor Herbert Lucas as the alternate.

UTILITY — Approved a resolution opposing Assembly Bill 908 as authored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, which would extend utility taxes to cities that own their own electrical companies as does Healdsburg. A hand vote showed eight approving the resolution, seven in opposition and four abstaining. Many said they had not heard Bagley's reasoning behind the bill.

BRIDGE — Heard a report from William R. Lucius of Healdsburg on his activities as the association representative to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board.

Motorcycle Of San Rafael Man Stolen

A 1968 black motorcycle with license 761593 owned by Gary N. Fofoid of 355 Canal Street and parked in front of the Funny Farm at 813 Fourth Street, was stolen between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 12:05 a.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported today.

A passerby told police he saw a six-foot-tall man wearing a white T-shirt and Levis heading west with the motorcycle.

Woman Hurts Neck In Auto Accident

Maria Houghton, 28, of San Francisco, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael yesterday for neck spasms suffered in an auto accident, the hospital reported today.

No details of the accident were available.

Bomb Hoax

Mayfair Market at 1761 Grant Avenue, Novato, was emptied of personnel and customers for 40 minutes at 9:29 p.m. yesterday, on account of a telephoned bomb hoax, police reported.

Gardeners' Exchange In Tiburon

A cutting plant exchange for gardeners and garden clubs and an exhibit of trees and shrubs considered best suited for the Tiburon Peninsula will be featured at tomorrow's Spring Garden Festival at Tiburon's Richardson Bay Park.

The festival will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the park on Tiburon Boulevard. It is being conducted by the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission.

The commission will have available seedlings and larger trees for sale to gardeners at cost. They have been selected for their suitability to the Tiburon Peninsula because of size, sturdiness and general attractiveness.

Also featured will be demonstrations of the city's brush chipper; plants indigenous to Richardson Bay Park; a historical exhibit; and displays illustrating the effect of Tiburon's new tree regulating ordinance.

Clubs and nurseries will display their planting materials.

Coffee For Shone

A coffee honoring Raymond H. Shone, Republican candidate for the Fourth District seat in the state Senate, will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carney in Ross. Reservations may be made with Shone headquarters at 1403 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Stinson Beach Parents Accuse, Defend Teacher; Board To Meet

A special meeting to hear complaints from a number of parents against William Niman a teacher at Stinson School, was set last night for Tuesday, May 26 by the Bolinas-Stinson School District board.

Trustees did not disclose the nature of the complaints or the names of those complaining at last nights' meeting, attended by more than 80 persons, both supporters and opponents of the young teacher.

But Thomas Barfield, attorney for the complaining parents, gave some indication of charges being leveled against Niman when he asked the board about its policy regarding corporal punishment of children.

Supt. Clarence B. Larison told Barfield that such punishment is not to be used in the district as a means of correcting children's behavior.

Larison admitted Niman was asked to take two days off (Wednesday and yesterday) with pay, but emphasized the teacher had not been suspended from his duties. He refused to say how long Niman will be away from classes, saying he could make no decisions "until I have conferred with several persons."

Niman, who offered the board his resignation earlier this month, last night rescinded his decision to leave and drew cheers and applause from part of the audience.

The board accepted a petition, signed by 140 parents and students, asking that Niman be retained in the district due to "his excellence as a teacher and the interest he has generated among the students."

Homestead Terrace Landscape Honored

Homestead Terrace, the Marin County Housing Authority's housing project for the elderly, in Homestead Valley, has won a national award for the landscaping in which it is set.

The American Society of Landscape Architects presented the San Francisco landscape architecture firm of Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey a merit award for the Homestead landscaping, calling it "an effective . . . development on a tight urban residential site."

Trustees began the meeting by holding a half-hour closed session with the district's attorney. When they emerged, they informed those assembled they planned to follow established board policy and hear complaints against Niman in closed session.

There were some objections from the audience but trustees stood firm and offered to meet in private with Niman and his attorney. The teacher declined, saying he had not yet seen the charges. He asked for his legal prerogative to wait seven days after receiving copies of the charges before meeting with the board. "After I see the charges, I think I might like to have a public meeting to discuss them," Niman said. The board agreed to leave the question of whether the meeting will be open or closed to Niman's discretion.

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

It's Fun To Get Shipwrecked At Pete's For Food And Drink

You can hardly call Shipwreck Pete's in Novato a "sleeper," because it's too lively.

That it isn't even livelier is probably because more Marinites besides those who live in Novato haven't yet discovered this food operation of the Pete Lind family at Sportsman's Lodge. (You may know this simply as The Lodge).

About the quietest time to become acquainted with Shipwreck Pete's is early on a Sunday evening returning from Sonoma County or points north. If you have ever been on the highway at such a time and have been caught in the traffic which often backs up from Novato's stop lights at Grant Avenue and Diablo Avenue clear to the Marin-Sonoma line, you're ready to take any old cowpath off the 101 to get out of it.

Trouble is, there isn't any, until you come to the service road exit at Sportsman's Lodge. About then what you need is a drink to calm your nerves and something to eat—so you might as well accept defeat and withdraw from the rest of the seething motorists.

Any other time you might expect Shipwreck Pete's to be crowded with people. Not then. Novatans simply won't drive north and try to get across the highway. But southbound drivers have the advantage.

Although it features steaks and the like, this place is great for seafoods—and the seafoods are great. Abolone, red snapper, oysters, scallops, prawns, stuffed scallops and usually lobster and steamed clams. If you are particularly fond of lobster, join the Lobster Club which meets the first Wednesday of each month. Salads and soups are good, too, and prices are reasonable.

Pete has made a lot of changes since he took over last fall - knocking out partitions, installing conversation pieces from his historical collection. Dining room, lounge and bar have more character. But he isn't satisfied to stop there. Next thing to get his attention will be the upstairs banquet rooms.

This is one of the biggest family operations you have ever seen. And every one is in the act - wife, Doris, sons, daughters, sons-in-law, daughters-in-law and some others who seem to have been "adopted." No generation gaps here. The one who looks like Pete when he was in his early 20s is Pete Jr. Besides handling the bar, he and Gene Fanucchi and Nick McKinney provide good music.

Quite an amazing place—Shipwreck Pete's. If you don't find it so, that's because you haven't gotten close enough to the action to enjoy it.

THIS WEEKEND'S entertainment schedule at the Lion's Share on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile has been revised.

John Stewart and Maximum Speed Light are performing tonight. They are also on the bill for tomorrow night, along with Cris Williamson and Jay Kellum on bass.

The New Boogaloo Express and Friends are down for Sunday.

THERE'S A NEW RESTAURANT called North Beach North opening up at 5613 Redwood Highway, Ignacio about June 1.

This is where Belluci's Spaghetti House used to be. David Bellucci has sold out the business to Henry Rossi of San Francisco and Edward Newman of Mill Valley. Both have been advertising men (what is it about the restaurant business that attracts advertising men?) But they apparently have talked Lou Gorman, who sold his Redwood Restaurant in Mill Valley about a month ago, into coming in as chef. I guess Lou figures he's had enough vacation and is ready to return to work.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Spaghetti dinners will be continued, but there will also be steaks, veal scallopini, veal parmigiana and other fare. Wines, champagnes and beers will be served and eventually the new owners hope to have a general on sale liquor license.

WORD FROM San Anselmo vintner Fred Cherry is that there has been a lot of misunderstanding about the way California Nights are being handled at his Cafe Bon Vin.

California Nights are not open to the public—but are by invitation and advance reservations. Fred has been inviting College of Marin classes, gourmet society members, the press and wine buffs. The way to get on the invitational list is to call the shop (it's listed under Wine Discovery Shop and Cafe Bon Vin in the directory) and give some pertinent details about your interest and involvement in wine.

Attendance, which has recently been doubled, is limited to 150 and restricted to those genuinely interested in wine. Purchase of the meal ($10) is not required, but it does help in the appreciation of the wines and most people order it. Specify one way or the other in advance. Reservations are taken in the order they are received.

Next California Night is Wednesday, May 27, when Brother Timothy presents the wines of Christian Brothers - some of those he served to President Pompidou of France. And he'll incorporate a few of his own recipes in the banquet, including his famous lemon salad dressing.

Again—be sure to call for reservations. Don't barge in unannounced.

SPEAKIN G OF WINE, vermouth is becoming increasingly popular at restaurants as a pleasant prelude to dining out.

A palatable aperitif, favored by wine imbibers and those who do not like their before dinner drinks high in proof, vermouth is simply an aromatized wine—essentially a white wine, slightly fortified with a neutral brandy and flavored with herbs and spices. Many of these can be found in jars on your pharmacist's shelves and are used by modern physicians in prescriptions.

"Wermut," the German name for the wormwood shrub, became "Vermouth" when Antonio Carpano popularized the drink in Italy in the 18th Century. But it goes back to early Christian times in Rome when it was called "Vinum Aromaticum." It is considered an ideal drink of moderation.

RESIDENTS in the neighborhood of the San Rafael-San Anselmo Miracle Mile who are wondering where to pick up fried chicken since Col. Sanders moved to the other end of San Rafael might try the Pizza Palace at 2224 Fourth Street - just about at the San Anselmo-San Rafael line.

Ted Cohen and Pat Cosenza serve chicken and fries at $1.55 —to take out or eat there. The big draw, of course, is their pizzas - 17 different varieties.

Credentials Of Newsmen Found

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — South Vietnamese forces, battling through a tiny hamlet, have discovered the press credentials of three American correspondents missing and believed captured by the enemy.

The credentials were found in a house in which three enemy soldiers were killed during a fierce gun battle late Thursday.

They belonged to Richard B. Dubman, 52, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Elizabeth A. Pond, 33, of the Christian Science Monitor; and Michael D. Morrow, 24, of Dispatch News Service, Washington.

The trio were last seen by fellow correspondents at the eastern edge of the Cambodian provincial capital of Svay Rieng on May 7 in a car they had driven across the border from Saigon.

Rally Scheduled For Rep. Brown

A rally for Rep. George Brown, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, is scheduled for 2 p.m. May 23 at the Marin Civic Center fairgrounds. Brown is scheduled to appear at the event.

Alvin Duskin, San Francisco conservationist, will be master of ceremonies. Dolores Huerta, vice president of the United Farm Workers, and Tom Knight, executive director of Planned Parenthood, will speak.

SENIOR CITIZEN NOMINEE

Jessie Sullivan Finds Ways To Keep Busy

Jessie Sullivan, treasurer and reservation chairman for St. Rita's Senior Club, has been named as the club's candidate for Marin's outstanding Senior Citizen title.

Mrs. Sullivan, who lives at 2 Florence Avenue, San Anselmo, said she's over 80 years old but said she didn't wish to give her exact age, because friends might worry.

Besides belonging to the senior club, she is also a member of St. Rita's Catholic Daughters, and enjoys working on the two groups' charity fund raising activities.

A native of Wichita, Kan., Mrs. Sullivan moved to Marin County and San Anselmo 24 years ago. The widow of James J. Sullivan, she has five children, 13 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Her two daughters, Alice Ludditt and Dorothy Carver live in Marin County as does one son, Paul Sullivan of San Anselmo. Another son, James R. Sullivan lives in San Francisco, while her third son, Jerald M. Sullivan lives in Los Altos Hills.

Mrs. Sullivan said she joined the senior club shortly after it started two years ago because she knew most of the members and she wanted to stay active.

Her most recent club activity was modeling in a hat show during the club's meeting last Friday.

Junior Theater Northgate Unit To Hold Signups

The Northgate Unit of Marin Junior Theater will hold registrations for its annual workshop for youngsters in the fourth through eighth grades May 27 at 8 p.m. at the Bernard Hoffman School.

The youngsters will present a production of "Harlequin" at the Bernard Hoffman School July 30 through Aug. 1.

Mothers registering children will be asked to donate at least six hours of time during the rehearsal period, according to president Jeri Lucchi.

Play tryouts will be held June 19 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the school with rehearsals beginning June 22 and held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Children need not be present at registration, Mrs. Lucchi said, but must be onhand for tryouts and all rehearsals and performances.

Three-Way Water Session In Novato

The directors of the Sonoma County Water Agency, North Marin County and Marin Municipal water districts will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, to discuss the hiring of a financial consultant for the Russian River water project.

Representatives of Blyth and Co., Bank of America and Stone and Youngberg will make presentations to the joint boards meeting.

Twin Cities Plan For 4th

The Larkspur-Corte Madera Fourth of July committee will discuss preliminary plans for this year's annual celebration Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce office, 500 Tamalpais Drive.

Persons who want to participate in this year's activities have been urged to attend the public meeting by chairman Joe H. Stewart.

A parade, fireworks display, a magician, pony rides, puppet show, art and craft tables, food booths and an art show will be featured at this year's celebration, Stewart said.

Fairfax May Fill Final Plans Seat

The Fairfax City Council may fill the last vacancy on the city planning commission when it holds an ajourned meeting at 8 p.m. today at the city hall.

The council is expected to discuss the appointment of a successor to Commissioner Leo T. Cronin, who submitted his written resignation Tuesday after resigning verbally April 24.

Nine applications have been filed for Cronin's seat, according to City Administrator Frances Lestanguet.

Also scheduled to be discussed is a space analysis study for public safety building.

Reports on trees on Glen Drive, the extra engineering charges to the city for the Forrest Avenue project; the Meadowland Development; and costs for repair of the Meadow Way Bridge are slated to be heard.

A 40 minute slide show of Fairfax prepared by Deer Park School sixth graders is supposed to open the meeting.

Guinea pigs do not come from Guinea and are not a member of the pig family. They are related to the cavia and can be traced back to the early Inca Indians who used them for food.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Old Food Chewing Adage Has Proven Of Limited Worth

Horace Fletcher usually is given credit for the advice that food should be chewed 32 times before swallowing. This practice, popular at the turn of the century, must have kept our parents or grandparents so busy counting, no time remained for table talk.

But Fletcher did not originate the idea.

British Prime Minister Gladstone attributed his success in life to giving every tooth a chance to bite into every morsel to be consumed. He chewed 32 times because he had 32 teeth.

TEETH ARE AN essential part of the digestive system. They break up food into smaller particles before it is sent on its way. Meanwhile, the mass is being diluted with saliva; after it is swallowed, powerful stomach enzymes take over.

The gastric pouch has to work harder when large pieces of food are gulped and the normal stomach seldon rebels. Most animals swallow large chunks of meat and to my knowledge, do not develop ulcers.

IS WELL CHEWED FOOD digested more thoroughly than unchewed food? A number of years ago, English researchers did a study along this line. Some in the group were given cotton bags containing chewed and unchewed food and the residues were studied for the amounts digested.

When roast or fried beef was used, 76 per cent of the masticated part was completely digested in contrast to 37 per cent of the unchewed.

THE SAME OCCURRED to boiled potatoes, peas, and carrots. On the other hand, mastication had no effect upon the quantity of residue of roast chicken, stewed lamb, fried and broiled fish, hard boiled eggs, and cooked rice, white bread, and cheese.

MOVING AWAY

A 14-year-old boy writes: When we lived in Arizona, my asthma was terrible. But when the family moved to Colorado Springs, it disappeared. What was the cause?

REPLY

The Arizona dust may have been responsible, but you never will know unless skin tests are done. A change in climate may influence allergic disorders, especially in younger people. The reason is not always known.

HERNIA, EXERCISING

Mrs. V V. writes: Would it be harmful for a woman with a femoral hernia to do reducing exercises?

REPLY

It would be easier for this woman to go on a low caloric diet and to confine her exercise to pushing herself away from the table when half full. Hopefully, she is losing weight to get into shape to climb on the operating table and get that hernia repaired.

OLD FOR THUMBSUCKING

A reader writes: Is it serious if a 9-year-old girl still sucks her thumb?

REPLY

The habit per se is not serious but it may affect the alignment of the teeth. Thumb-sucking in a child this age usually is indicative of an emotional disorder. In the first year or two of life the habit is considered normal, but this youngster is too old to be sucking her thumb.

NOT UNUSUAL

P. L. writes: A big-boned heavy girl of 11 has started menstruating. Isn't this a rare case?

REPLY

No, provided her large size is not on a glandular basis. There is a good possibility that she is at the end of her growth spurt.

Today's Health Hint—A buildup of soap under a ring can produce a skin rash.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Group Insurance And Firm Policy

Group insurance for employees is quite common today.

For instance, Herman worked for a meat market which belonged to a merchants' association offering group life and health insurance. He signed up for insurance and the market deducted the premiums, which depended on the worker's age.

In his application Herman made a statement about his health, but no one gave him a medical exam.

Herman said he was in good health and had seen no doctor in the last two years except for checkups. He died eight months later.

The insurance company refused to pay his widow, saying that Herman had made false statements about his health. His widow sued and finally won in the California Supreme Court.

Since the company did not require the medical examination, it had not issued individual policies which would have informed members of the policy limitations, Herman could not have reviewed or corrected his application while he lived.

Under the Insurance Code a policy must contain the entire contract. The company's failure to incorporate a statement of the policy limits by referring to attaching it, had barred the company from claiming the application had been fraudlent.

Further under the law, no insurance company can contest insurability after two years unless premiums are not paid. It is too late if a company has not checked on an application within two years.

Most insurance policies have such an "incontestability clause" in which, after one or two years, the company agrees not to contest the policy. The law does not condone fraud, but both parties may agree on a time when a policy may not be contested.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Smallman Backers Plans Receptions

Supporters of Robert Smallman, candidate at the June 2 election for Marin Municipal Court judge, have scheduled two campaign receptions.

They will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hints at 774 St. Francis Avenue, Novato, and at 8 p.m. May 26 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Martensen at 58 Hill Street, Mill Valley.

45-Day Suspended Sentence For Driver

Roy Alfred Hansen, who was convicted by a jury in Marin Municipal Court of drunken driving on Wednesday, has been given a 45-day suspended jail sentence, placed on probation for one year and fined $250 by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr.

Hansen, who lives at 204 Morningside Drive, Corte Madera, was arrested in Corte Madera June 5.

Jury Trial Set For Brian Beard

A jury trial was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Aug. 24 for Black Panther Brian V. Beard, 25, of Marin City, who is charged with three misdemeanor offenses stemming from an April 26 fracas with a service station attendant.

Beard pleaded innocent yesterday to assault and battery and malicious mischief. The first two charges come from a fight with a Tamalpais Valley service station attendant, Gary K. Faulk, 33, and the latter from Faulk's allegation that Beard urinated on a restroom wall.

Beard is a candidate for a Sausalito School District board seat currently held by Trustee David E. Freedheim who will face recall on June 2.

Graduates To Hear Their Fired Principal

Principal Sidney F. Walton Jr. will be the keynote speaker at Martin Luther King School graduation ceremonies scheduled for June 10 at 7 p.m. in the school gymnasium, according to King Vice Principal James T. Toliver Jr.

Toliver said Walton, recently fired by the district school board, was chosen speaker by a majority of 50 parents of King students who met this week to plan the ceremonies.

Best-selling print in Marin

Unlike most popular prints, each edition of the I-J is strictly an "original" . . . fresh with the impress of today's news.

To compose it, our writers and editors draw from the world-wide palette of AP and UPI wire services. They also examine all of Marin and Southern Sonoma County, putting the facts, with local color, in detailed perspective.

And to enrich the total picture, I-J newsmen add a full spectrum of features, cartoons, comment, entertainment. They paint in schools, the Civic Center, the field of sports, world of women, vital statistics, even the weather. They squeeze the tube for every bit of information!

Result: with the I-J, you're an art collector! Got your own gallery! Art of Information; Art of Perspective; Art of Humor; Art of Citizenship.

League Of Women Voters Analyzes Ballot Proposals

In the interest of informing voters, the League of Women Voteers of California publishes an explanation and the main arguments, pro es an explanation and the main arguments, pro and con, of the State Ballot Measures. In doing so, the league does not judge their merits. Each voter has this task. This information to help the voter make his decision is reprinted here with permission of the League of Women Voters.

League members prepare the background information on the measures, and an outside committee reads this information to see if it is objective, accurate, and fair. The pro and con arguments are written by individuals and organizations who have expressed support for or opposition to the measure. These arguments are not prepared by the League of Women Voters, nor does the league guarantee their validity.

Proposition 1

Through its University, the State of California provides training for doctors, dentists, nurses, pharmacists, optometrists, and other health care personnel. More people are requiring health care services now than before. Because of lack of facilities, the University is not able to graduate enough doctors and other health personnel each year to fill the State's needs.

THE PROPOSAL

Proposition 1 would provide $246,300,000 for this purpose. This would finance an 8-year program to build or expand facilities at 6 campuses of the University of California: Davis, Irvine, San Diego, San Francisco, Berkeley, and Los Angeles. The federal government will be asked to provide $120 mlilion to add to this amount.

THE QUESTION

Do you want the State to issue bonds to provide money to build facilities for training doctors and other health personnel?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. There is a serious shortage of doctors and other health care personnel in California. Many more must be trained if our present standard of health case is to be maintained or improved. Therefore, we need the training facilities provided by this Proposition.

2. A bond issue is paid off over a long period of time. Future generations who will also benefit from the facilities will help pay the cost. The cost is small—it is estimated at only 67 cents per California per year over the life of the bonds.

3. The Legislature will keep full control over the money. It must review and approve each project before any money is spent.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. Interest that must be paid on the bonds could bring the total cost to over $450 million. Our interest debt on past bonds is already high.

2. The University could save money by cutting out "frills". It should be forced to do so.

3. The money could be bettr spent on improving our environment. This is a more urgent need. Every available dollar should be used to fight pollution.

Proposition 2

Four measures on this ballot (Propositions 2, 3, 4, and 5) propose amendments to the State Constitution. All have been recommended by the California Constitution Revision Commission and by a 23 vote of each house of the Legislature.

Proposition 2 deals with the article on local government (Article XI). The proposition generally restates the substance of the present article but deletes about 10 thousand words. A great deal of material which is obsolete will be deleted. Procedural details are transferred to statutes on grounds that they are not proper constitutional material. The satutes have been signed into law by the Governor and will go into effect upon approval of Proposition 2.

THE PROPOSAL

Article XI, as proposed, concerns local government and generally restates the existing provisions. It provides for the division of the State into counties, formation of counties and cities, adoption of city and county charters, and consolidation of local governmental bodies. City and county powers spelled out in the present article are preserved. These include powers over employees, authority over local affairs, the relationship of the local governmental unit to the Legislature, and the right to own public utilities. There is no change in the present law concerning the election of county officers other than to require the Board of Supervisors to be elected.

The procedure for adopting and changing charters is simplified and made the same for cities and counties.

District Attorneys and Auditors in general low counties will be set by the Board of Supervisors rather than by the Legislature. New departments of county government can be established without State approval.

THE QUESTION

Should Article XI of the State Constitution be revised to shorten and simplify provisions dealing with local government, make the laws for cities and counties more uniform and transfer procedural details to statutes?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. The new provisions strengthen local government. Cities of any size will be allowed to become chartered; the procedures for consolidation and annexation are clarified and made more democratic; counties are permitted to establish new departments on their own initiative; counties must be elected.

2. Obsolete provision will be removed. Those details which are more appropriately handled in statutes will be transferred to the statutory code. No fundamental provisions are deleted.

3. Those provisions which are kept are rewritten so as to be easier to understand.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. Local government does not need the additional authority this article would provide. They already have all the power they need in the home rule provision.

2. It is unwise to replace language of established meaning with new terms.

Proposition 3

The present Article spells out State regulations of corporations and public utilities, establishes the Public Utilities Commission, and defines its duties and powers.

Laws regulating corporations are not generally considered to be constitutional material and most of the current regulations are presently in statutes.

THE PROPOSAL

Most of the provisions regarding corporations will be removed entirely from the Constitution, but two of the provisions will be transferred to other articles. The section restricting the State from lending its credit and from owning sotck (except for investment of public retirement funds) is transferred to Article XIII, Finance. The "reserve power" clause which provides that statutes relating to corporations may be amended or rescinded by the Legislature is transferred to Article XX.

The section dealing with public utilities will be simplified and will contain 4 sections covering: establishment of the Public Utilities Commission; a definition of its duties; a definition of "public utilities',' and procedures for fixing just compensation for public utility property taken by eminent domain.

If Proposition 3 passes, a companion bill (AB 1096) will become law, transferring portions of the deleted material to statutory codes.

THE QUESTION

Should Article XII of the state constitution be revised to remove provisions on corporations and place them in other articles, and to simplify the provisions dealing with public utilities?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. This provision retains the Public Utilities Commission as an important guardian of the consumer and restates the PUC provisions in simplified language.

2. Deleted provisions relating to corporations are already extensively dealt with elsewhere, so nothing is "lost" through revision.

3. This proposition makes the PUC's regulatory powers consistens to that they apply to transportation companies and other utilities.

4. The Legislature is given the power to see that the PUC is doing its job and protecting the public.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. Even though sections relating to corporations are duplicated elsewhere, we should keep them in the Constitution.

2. The proposal contemplates regulation of utilities and transportation companies. These companies should have the complete right to free enterprise.

3. Proposition 3 deletes the prohibition against giving free railroad passes to public officials other than members of the PUC. This should be kept in the Constitution.

Proposition 4

Article X authorizes the Legislature to provide penal institutions for men and women and prohibits the use of convict labor in certain situations.

Article XVII was originally adopted to protect a portion of homestead and family property against forced sale; to discourage holdings of large parcels of unimproved land; to make sure that State lands would be granted to actual settlers; and to put a 320-acre limitation on State land grants.

Some of these provisions are now considered to be obsolete, unenforceable, or an inherent power of the Legislature and not proper Constitional material.

THE PROPOSAL

Proposition 4 would delete Article X on the ground that the present language is permissive and does not compel action and that the Legislature has the power to pass laws regarding penal institutions. The only present provision to be retained is the one regarding use of convict labor which will be transferred to Article XX for future consideration.

Existing Article XVII is also deleted by Proposition 4. The present article is considered to be an example of a statement of power inherently held by the Legislature, as well as a declaration of policy against transferred to other articles or the holding of undeveloped lands that is unenforceable and may not be true. Homestead protection is mandated in the article but in unenforceable terms. This protection, however, is already provided by statute.

If Proposition 4 passes, a companion bill (AB 1005) will go into effect. It will transfer the 320-acre limitation on State land grants tothe Public Resources Code.

THE QUESTION

Should Articles 'x and XVII of the State Constitution be revised as proposed and the provisions regarding penal institutions and homesteading to statutes?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. Constitutional authority for dealing with prisons is unnecessary. This is an inherent power of the Legislature.

2. The homestead sections are vague and unenforceable.

3. The provisions in Article XVII relate to land use in an unenforceable way and are statement against the retention of open space which do not express the feelings of people today.

4. There are no longer any State lands which could be granted to settlers, so the provisions need not be in te Constitution but should be transferred to statutes.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. A constitution needs general principles as well as specific mandates and prohibitions. Just because something is vague does not mean it should be removed.

2. It is important for the people to have some reference to the homestead exemption in the Constitution.

3. Unrelated subjects should not be combined in one proposition. Changes in the Constitution should be voted on individually.

Proposition 5

This is another part of the constitutional revision package which has already been before the voters.

Article XXIV creates the State Civil Service system based on merit, establishes a Personnel Board, provides regulatio s regarding civil service employees and competitive examinations, and lists those offices which are exempt from Civil Service.

Article XVIII provides methods and procedures for amending and revising the State Constitution, either by a constitutional convention or amendments proposed by the Legislature or the people. All emendments require a vote of the people.

THE PROPOSAL

The revised Article XXIV substantially retains the existing provisions concerning the State Civil Service System. It provides for the 5-member Personnel Board, appointed by the Governor and approved by the Senate for 10-year terms; for selection and promotion of State employees by competitive examination, and for exemptions from civil service. The employees of the Lieutenant Governor and some positions in the Legislative Counsel's Office are added to the list of positions exempt from civil service. Personnel from federal or local agencies whose work is taken over by the State will continue in their positions.

The procedures for amending the Constitution are retained, but the proposed revisions permit the Legislature to reconsider, withdraw, or change an amendment which it proposes before the proposal actually goes to the voters. Other changes would (1) make all constitutional amendments effective the day after the election which approves them unless the measure itself provides otherwise and (2) assure that delegates to a constitutional convention will be chosen from districts of equal population.

THE QUESTION

Should Article XXIV of the State Constitution be shortened and simplified so that it may contain only basic civil service procedures? Should Article XVIII of the State Constitution be changed to make more uniform the procedures for amending and revising the State Constitution?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. The previous lengthy and complicated arrangements providing for constitutional conventions are simplified. Assurance is given that convention delegates be elected from districts equal in population.

2. The new exemptions from Civil Service are proper because they are policy-making positions.

3. The merit system is retained. Only superfluous language is deleted.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. The section on constiutional conventions should have been deleted. It has not been used in many years.

2. These two articles are unrelated and should not be together on the ballot.

Proposition 6

This Proposition amends Section 7 of Article XI of the California Constitution. Section 7 provides for (1) adoption of State textbooks, (2) county boards of education, (3) the State Board of Education, and (4) examination and certification of teachers by counties.

Proposition 6 will retain the provisions for State and county boards of education, but will make changes in the other two topics.

Textbooks: The Constitution requires the State Board of Education to provide all the State's public elementary schools (grade 1 through 8) with a uniform series of basic textbooks, without charge. These texts must be used for at least four years. The Constitution also provides that the State Board of Education may have the State Printing Office print the approved textbooks. California is the only state which does this, as it is the only state with its own printing plant.

State textbooks are choses in the following way: The Curriculum Commission, made up of course-of-study specialists, reviews and evaluates available textbooks to see which most nearly meet California's needs. From their recommendations, a series of basic textbooks is approved. All school districts must use this basic series. A list of approved supplementary material is also compiled. Local districts may request materials from this supplementary list which the State must furnish free on a limited basis. Each district is encouraged to enrich the local program with other books and instructional material at local expense.

The current list of basic and supplementary texts includes 731 titles.

About 90% of the textbook printing is done by the State Printing Office using printing plates or films leased from publishing companies. The balance of the textbooks are obtained, by direct purchase arrangements, from publishers, with the stipulation that the cost is not more than 10%, plus 3% tax, over the State Printing Office cost for a comparable book.

The "uniform series" called for in the Constitution has been legally interpreted to permit adoption of series of texts for children with various learning abilities and with problems related to cultural differences or language handicaps.

Teachers: The Constitution now requires that each county give teaching examinations and issue teaching certificates. In present practice all teachers must apply to the State for credentials. They merely register them with the county superintendent's office.

THE PROPOSAL

Basically, Proposition 6 deletes from the Constitution the specific details of textbook adoption and gives the Legislature the authority to set such procedures. The Constitution will still require the State to provide free textbooks to all public elementary schools.

Proposition 6 further removes the requirement for county examination and certification of teachers.

If Proposition 6 passes, companion statutes which have already been approved by the Legislature will become effective.

tion Code and set out the procedure for adopting state textbooks. They provide for the adoption of "not to exceed two basic textbooks for a given subject of a given grade" with additional books intended to provide for special learning needs of pupils. This is referred to as "multiple listing" of approved textbooks. Each district would choose which books it wished to use, and the State must furnish them without charge. Printing by the State Printing Office is allowed.

THE QUESTION

Should the Constitution be amended to eliminate provisions for use of a "uniform series" of textbooks in grades 1 through 8 of the public schools and allow the Legislature to set the textbook policy for the State? Should the requirement for county examination and certification of teachers be removed from the Constitution?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. This amendment continues the process of putting into the Constitution only basic law and leaving the setting of detailed provisions to the Legislature—where it belongs.

2. A greater choice of textbooks could enable local school boards to improve teaching programs by using those books best suited to local conditions and needs.

3. This greater choice would give more control of the schools to the community, through the local school board.

4. If districts can choose their own books, it may result in fuller use of all books ordered, since they will be chosen to meet local needs.

5. With today's rapid changes in scientific information and increasing use of paperbacks, audio-visual aids, etc., a constitutional time limit on the use of textbooks is not suitable.

6. The antiquated provision for county examinations for teachers should be removed. The State long ago assumed the function of issuing teaching certificates. Counties no longer need to be involved in this.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. Proposition 6 does not provide enough local control. It could delay the time when local school boards can determine which materials should be used in the district.

2. Multiple listing will decrease the demand for single books and will give each publisher whose book is listed a partial monopoly. This will reduce competition and increase book costs.

3. Printing of textbooks in the State Printing Office saves nearly 30% a year over list price of books. This savings could be lost if Proposition 6 passes.

4. Use of uniform series of textbooks enforces a minimum standard of curriculum in the State. This is necesasry in California where pupils frequently move from one district to another.

5. Use of uniform series of textbooks insures uniformity of teaching material and thus provides equal opportunity for all pupils.

6. There is sufficient diversity of material available now with the uniform series and the supplementary material listing.

7. The advantage of mass purchasing would be lost because it would be difficult to estimate in advance how many of each of the books on the list the districts might want.

Proposition 7

Voters in California have approved bonds to finance a number of long-range large-scale projects concerning water, parks, local school construction programs, veterans' loans, etc. The maximum interest rate on general obligation bonds for the State has been 5%. Today's money market demands a higher interest rate. Therefore, the State has been unable to sell $1.3 billion of bonds which have already been approved by the voters. Without money from the sale of these bonds, work on the approved projects will come to a standstill and self-liquidating loans could not be made.

Of the 49 states permitting general obligation bonds, only two of these have a 5% interest rate limit. The others have higher limits or no limits at all.

The present 5% limit was set by the Legislature and is contained in Section 16731 of the Government Code. There is no interest rate in the Constitution.

THE PROPOSAL

This measure amends Article XVI, Section 1, of the State Constitution.

Proposition 7 would allow the Legislature, by a 2/3 vote of both houses and with approval of the Governor, to raise the interest rate on general obligation bonds which have been approved but not sold. If it passes, a statute already passed by the Legislature (SB 763) would go into effect increasing the maximum bond interest rate up to 7%.

THE QUESTION

Shall the Legislature be permitted, by a 2/3 vote in each house and with approval of the Governor, to raise the maximum interest rate if necessary to sell general obligation bonds?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. Failure to complete the projects which the voters have already approved would violate contracts and commitments already made and would damage the States' economy.

2. No Cal-Vet farm or home loans have been made since early 1969 because bonds could not be sold to finance these loans. Veterans returning from Vietnam are not able to get these loans for houses.

3. Proposition 7 would allow completion of approved projects without increasing taxes.

4. Proposition 7 would allow the Legislature to meet the demands of today's money market without the time and expense of a special election.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. Proposition 7 gives too much authority to the Legislature.

2. The people should be allowed to vote on any change in the maximum interest rate on bonds.

3. The voter should know what a bond issue will cost. If Proposition 7 passes, no voter will know for sure what the total interest charges on bond issues will be.

Proposition 8

In the past ten years property tax revenues in California have risen by more than 200%, due largely to the need to pay for increased costs of education and welfare. There is concern that these services should be paid for from more broadly-based State revenue sources rather than from the local property tax.

On a statewide average, the cost of local education in California is presently paid as follows: 57% by local districts, 35% by the State, and 8% by the federal government. These percentages vary from district to district since taxable wealth and school populations are not the same in all districts. In some districts the local property tax share is more than 70% and the State's less than 20%.

At the present time the federal government pays about half the total cost of welfare services in California. The amount spent in each county for such services varies from 7% to 42%. On an average, the county share of the total State-local welfare costs is about 35%. The State now pays 90% of the cost of mental health programs which are included in Proposition 8 as a part of "social welfare services". The general relief program which is also included is now paid for entirely by the counties.

THE PROPOSAL

This is an initiative constitutional amendment which will add Section 15½ to Article XIII of the Constitution, amend Section 1d of Article XIII, and delete Section 6 of Article IX. It is co-sponsored by the California Teachers Association and the County Supervisors Association of California.

If the proposition passes, it will be effective for the 1970-71 fiscal year and will require that:

1. The State shall pay, from sources other than local property taxes, at least 50% of the combined State-local cost of the "Public School System" and at least 90% of the State-local cost of social welfare services.

The agencies which are to be included in the term "Public School System" would have to be determined by law, but generally cover kindergarten through grade 14 school districts. The "cost of education," of which the State is to pay half, is to include the combined State-local Public School System expenses during the base year, which will be 1968-69 if the initiative passes this June. Excluded are capital outlay costs and federal expenditures. The State's share of this base year cost will be increased or decreased each year according to a specific cost-of-living index (based on the services-less-rent component of the National Consumer Price Index published by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics).

The "social welfare costs", of which the State is to pay 90%, exclude the federal share, roughly half the total. Programs included are welfare aid and administration, including the general relief program, mental health programs, hospitals, and medical care programs. No shift in administrative responsibility is proposed.

2. The dollar figure for minimum "basic aid" for schools is to be deleted. Instead, no district shall receive less per average daily attendance (a.d.a) than 40% of the Statewide average amount per unit of a.d.a.

3. "Educationally disadvantaged" pupils shall be counted as one-and-one-half a.d.a. units. The Legislature is to define the term. Three percent of the State School Fund is earmarked for programs for these students.

4. The Legislature must provide districts and agencies in the Public School System with sufficient taxing authority to match State School Fund appropriations in any year. The Legislature may not reduce school tax rate limits now in statutes.

5. The Legislature shall provide at least half of the estimated cost of any new or expanded educational program it requires in the future.

6. Except for welfare, the Legislature shall pay the full cost of any new county service which it requires, or provide revenue sources other than the property tax from which the counties can pay for such services.

7. The school appropriation budget must be approved by the Legislature and signed by the Governor by May 30 each year for the following year's State support.

8. The Homeowners' Property Tax Exemption shall be increased from $750 to $1000 of assessed value, with the State to reimburse local governments for the lost revenue. A source of funds for this reimbursement is not mentioned.

It is not definitely known how much this initiative would actually add to the State budget, partly because certain key phrases are not defined. The Legislative Analyst and the Department of Finance estimate this amount to be approximately $1,130 million for 1970-71, with indetermined increases in succeeding years. No replacement revenue sources are suggested in the initiative. Possible sources are increases in income, sales, liquor, cigarette, and business taxes.

THE QUESTION

Should the Constitution be amended to require State payment of 50% of total State-local education costs and 90% of total State-local welfare service costs, and should the Homeowners' Exemption be increased from $750 to $1000 with the State to reimburse local governments for the loss of income from this increased exemption?

ARGUMENTS FOR

1. This proposition guarantees new and continuing State funds to assure an adequate level of educational opportunity for all students.

2. It provides tax equity by making the State assume a full half share of school operating costs.

3. It provides immediate property tax relief by limiting the county share of welfare costs to 10% and by increasing the Homeowners' Exemption.

4. It provides needed extra funds for educationally disadvantaged students.

5. It makes the governmental levels which make decisions about welfare pay most of the cost.

6. With the exception of welfare, it insures full State payment of future county programs required by the State, or payment from non-property tax revenues.

7. It relieves the property tax of all but a small fraction of the rapidly rising costs of medi-Cal.

8. This initiative does not attempt to dictate a taxation system for California. It leaves the field of financing and taxation to the Legislature.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST

1. This measure gives no assurance of property tax relief. It does not require schools or counties to lower their property tax rates. If assessed valuations increase and tax rates remain the same, taxes will go up.

2. This is merely a tax shift. Even if property taxes are decreased, homeowners must pay more state taxes of some sort to make up the difference. This would mean about $200 more taxes each year from every family of four.

3. Renters will receive no benefit from the increased Homeowners' Exemption. They must also pay the increased state taxes needed to finance the tax shift.

4. Raising basic aid helps only rich districts. This does not provide equal opportunity for education.

5. The 3% of the State School Fund earmarked for programs for educationally disadvantaged students is not a carefully considered estimate of need.

6. The Legislature now has the power to appropriate more money for education and welfare. The tax problem should be and ean be remedied without the severe restrictions of a constitutional amendment.

7. Any plan for a major tax shift should make explicit provision for replacement revenues.

Ross Fund Pinch Hits P-TA Plea For Recreation Program Support

Ross Town Council found itself caught in a bind last night, pinched for funds, yet sympathetic to a plea for money to help maintain a recreation program.

Mrs. Justin L. Williams begged for $900 for the next fiscal year to help support a 37-week after-school community recreation program sponsored by the Ross School Parent-Teacher Association. But councilmen replied that approval would mean a one-cent increase in an already high tax rate and expressed belief that those who benefit directly should assume the financial burden.

Mayor Frederick S. Allen finally suggested the matter be referred to the finance committee for consideration in the new budget. The motion passed 4-0. (Councilman Roy Farrington Jones was absent on account of illness.)

Speaking for the P-TA, Mrs. Williams said the program of arts and crafts, sports, chess and other activities began in November 1968 and has since enrolled 247 participants.

She said, "It's very logical to ask the town to support this program" because its free organization allows everyone in the community to do what he enjoys.

All the councilmen present then told her that there isn't enough money to finance the recreation program and suggested she tap Ross residents for private donations since the program has such widespread support in the town.

Councilman Ralph C. Walker said, "I cannot believe that if your program is as successful as I've been led to believe, you can not get more participation from the people who are benefitting."

He suggested going door-to-door for money, but Mrs. Williams and several members of the audience doggedly insisted that the council should pry the money from the town purse.

They said people already donate a great deal of time to the program, but Allen said the town has a rough time paying its share of expenses for Ross Commons and Walker said about eight fire hydrants could be purchased with the money she was seeking.

Mrs. Williams said the town plants petunias for beauty, builds roads for convenience and hires policemen for safety, but does nothing for the people.

She insisted her program provides Ross residents a badly needed opportunity to get together.

Walker, head of the finance committee, said, "I don't think we can give you $900." However he said if the program can raise $400 of the $900, the rest might stand a chance of being included in the budget although it would have be weighed against other items.

"I'm sure there is nobody in this room that is not all for you, Mrs. Williams," Mayor Allen said. Councilman Jewell Osterloh said the council didn't mean to sound discouraging.

Raises Favored In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—County Personnel Director Gordon T. Nesvig recommended today pay raises for almost 64,000 county employes, a package that would add $41.2 million to payroll costs in the next fiscal year.

Nesvig said the raises follow a continuing upward wage spiral in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area.

Most employes were recommended for either a 5.5 per cent or 8.25 per cent hike. If approved, the raises would go into effect on July 1.

Flood Work Approved By Councilmen

The Ross Town Council, long disgruntled at the slow pace of the Corte Madera Creek flood control program, last night brushed aside its last reservation and approved the final plans for Phase 3-A.

Ross had joined the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone on the condition that it could approve final flood control plans affecting it.

Phase 3-A calls for the construction of a concrete channel in Corte Madera Creek running from College Avenue in Kentfield to just south of the Ross Post Office.

The council was asked by William L. Hess, assistant director of public works for the county, to approve the site of a maintenance access to the creek before approving the over-all project.

He said an access either from the post office parking lot on Ross Common or a 30-by-60-foot paved area just off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard would be acceptable.

Hess explained that a crane might occasionally have to get to the creek to clear debris and that crews removing silt and other obstructions would need access.

Hess said the access platform on the Drake boulevard side would interfere somewhat with a part of the creekbed that will be left in its natural state while access at the post office would prevent camouflaging the concrete ditch.

The council approved the site on the Drake boulevard side because it is better hidden, its construction cost will be covered by federal funds, and the property was bought for the purpose.

Councilman Ralph C. Walker asked if the 30-by-60 foot paved area couldn't contain a tennis court since maintenance use would be infrequent.

Hess said yes, but the council would then have a problem resisting recreational uses for paths along the sides of the 33-foot wide channel.

"I can be selectively arbitrary without much trouble," Walker cracked.

The Army Corps of Engineers will close bidding on Phase 3-A May 27, Hess said. Contracts are expected to be awarded a week later with work to begin at that time.

Thief Takes Nozzle, Fire Extinguisher

A brass fire hose nozzle and a fire extinguisher worth a total of $45 were stolen Wednesday from the apartment building hallway at 1825 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael police reported today.

A tenant told police a man about 30 and driving a 1964 light cream car entered the building at 10 p.m. and left a few minutes later with the equipment.

Norwegian Sets Ocean Crossing

SAFI, Morocco (UPI)—Norwegian writer-explorer Thor Heyerdahl said today he will sail Sunday aboard his frail papyrus boat, Ra II, in his new bid to prove Mediterranean sailors discovered America before Christopher Columbus.

Heyerdahl, who is sailing with an eight-member multinational crew under a United Nations flag, said he expects the crossing from the Atlantic coast of North Africa to landfall in Latin America will take about 70 days.

The boat, constructed of papyrus reeds—from which the ancients made paper—is an improved version of Ra I in which Heyerdahl and an earlier crew sailed halfway across the Atlantic before sinking last year.

A Place To Work Out Life's Problems

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Anyone who needs a helping hand — those who have been mentally ill, persons of all ages, both men and women, who are lonely, shut-in, handicapped or residents of rest home or retirement centers — are receiving it at the Creative Living Center, a new activity in the field of mental health.

Membership at the center, established last month at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael, includes volunteers and those who attend through referral or on their own initiative, and no distinction is drawn between those who come to help and those who come for help.

While helping others, volunteers have the opportunity for personal growth at the center, organized by Mrs. Doris Clark, liaison nurse at the Marin Community Mental Health Center, based on a program originated by Mrs. Herbert Rillera of Napa.

IN ITS FIRST year of operation of 1969 the Community Mental Health Center, aiming at managing most mentally ill patients within its own facility, reduced admissions to the state hospital at Napa by 85 per cent. Also admissions from Marin of alcoholics to the state hospital were reduced by 40 per cent. Most remarkably it reduced the overall number of hospital admissions, including those to its own facility, by 31 per cent.

While the program at the Community Mental Health Center is professionally oriented, the emphasis at the Creative Living Center is on friend-to-friend help and is not intended to replace professional therapy.

Registered nurse Evelyn Rillera, originator of the idea, and her assistant, Carol Jackson, both of Napa, explained the program while spending a day at the Creative Living Center at St. Paul's.

"I was in-charge nurse at the day care center at Napa State Hospital," Evelyn said, "and left in 1967 to adopt a baby and stay home. Two months later the center closed, and I began getting calls from the 60 patients who had been given the choice of going back into the community or into the hospital. They had chosen to go into the community but it had no facilities, and they wanted me to start a program for them.

"I STARTED therapy groups at the Napa Mental Health Clinic, but the calls kept coming in because many of the people who had gained from contact with others and the activities part of the program at the day care center weren't being reached and had started going back into the hospital.

"After many disappointments in trying to find a location, we were given rent-free use of the Methodist Church of the Valley, including the kitchen and nursery, which made it possible for members and volunteers to bring their children.

"In August of 1967 we had established the center with 18 members and six volunteers. Today we have 110 members and 22 volunteers, and there are Creative Living Centers—all housed in churches—in Vallejo, Richmond, Oakland, Sonoma, Santa Rosa, and others are to be set up in Windsor Healdsburg, St. Helena and another in Santa Rosa. There is even one in Clinton, Ill."

The Marin center, one of the newest, is sponsored by the Marin Community Mental Health Center, the Marin Mental Health Association and the community services division of the State Department of Social Welfare. Much of the recruitment of volunteers is handled by the Marin Association for Mental Health under the direction of Dorothy Leake.

A PROFESSIONAL worker in the mental health field is present at every meeting of the center.

Though not all of the centers have exactly the same program, the one at St. Paul's is representative, and the day spent there was fascinating.

At present 40 members and 15 volunteers meet every Monday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with child care possible through the cooperation of a Child Day Care program also established at the church.

The day starts with a 10 to 10:30 a.m. coffee and hospitality period, when everyone wears name tags and visits, making a special effort to greet newcomers.

From 10:30 a.m. arts, crafts and games are going on in the big room downstairs for those who wish to spend the rest of the day there. A new project is offered each week and completed the same day. New hobbies may be discovered here.

AT THE SAME time others may go upstairs to an exercise and movement class or attend a creative writing class from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. Since inability to express themselves is often a major problem with the mentally disturbed, one objective of the creative writing is to encourage self-expression.

From 11:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. three discussion groups are held, one on personal problems, one on a subject selected by the group and one open-ended.

At 12:15 p.m. members and volunteers eat what they have brought for lunch while a meeting is held to discuss problems of current interest, and a container is passed for donations to pay for use of church facilities and for the coffee and materials used in the arts and crafts section or any other expenses.

Perhaps most interesting of all is the psychodrama held from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Mrs. Rillera, who led the group visited, says, "Psychodrama is a technique for determining motives for actions, the feelings about them and an aid to socially acceptable ways of handling them.

"ANY MEMBER who feels he has a problem that is not being settled may bring it up. The group then votes on which person's problem seems to be the most critical or most universal, and roles are played in acting out solutions. Knowing what may happen makes living through the problems less of an ordeal."

One of the leaders of this group is Miss Marie Aylward, a clinical nurse specialist in psychiatric nursing at the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

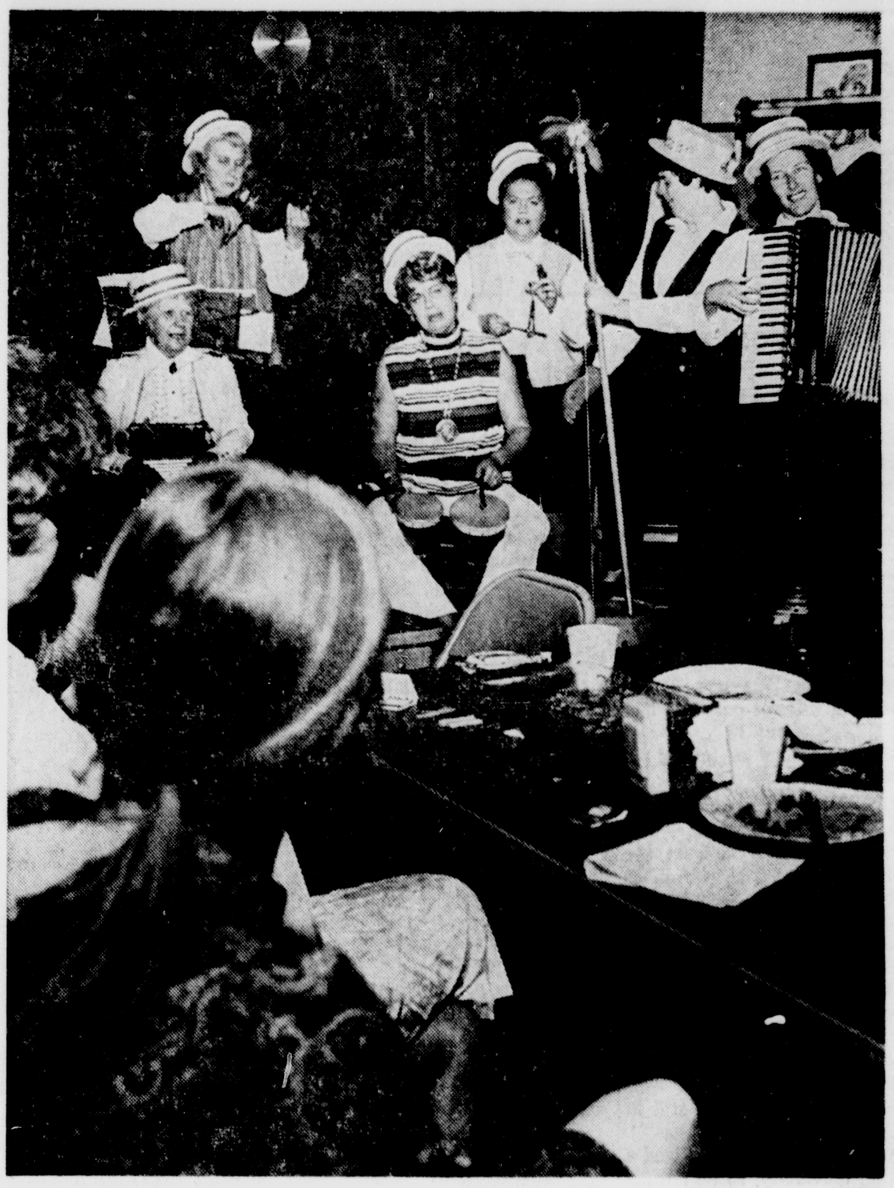
The day concludes with a cleanup by everyone participating in the program.

Who are the volunteers? Housewives, nurses, psychiatric technicians, social workers, relatives of patients and members, or anyone wishing to participate, for there is no screening. Some leaders are former patients.

Two of the volunteers, Mrs. James Mac Nichols and Mrs. Orville Erringer, both of Mill Valley, are graduates of a training course for mental health aides given at the Center for Training in Community Psychiatry and Mental Health Administration at the University of California.

THOUGH THEY may have professional backgrounds in the field, volunteers agree that the Creative Living Center gives them a chance to give more of themselves. Some volunteer activities—some nothing more than addressing envelopes and licking stamps—offer little chance to broaden one's own experience, they say.

Volunteers feel they get as much from the Creative Living Center as the members. They say, "It's a matter of those of us who are coping well with our problems helping those who are not coping quite so well at the moment."



AN IMPORTANT part of activities at the new Center for Creative Living at St. Paul's church in San Rafael is a luncheon meeting when volunteers and members of this new project in mental health discuss problems of current interest. Highlight at a recent special pot luck luncheon was entertainment by the Rural Orchestra, composed of Novato housewives. Seated in front are Mmes. Peter Laino, Robert Walk, Cal Hunt and Allen Dahl. Standing are Mmes. Leland Embrey and William Leigh.

DEMONSTRATING A warmup session preceding the psychodrama class held weekly at the new Center Living at St. Paul's Church in San Rafael is a group of volunteers and leaders. In the foreground, from left, Mrs. Robert Howell reacts to the instructor, Marie Aylward. Active in the back ground are, from left, Gordon Clark, Mrs. Tom King, Mrs. Doris Clark, founder of the center, and Mrs. James Mac Nichols.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

How Would One Of Horatio Alger's Heros Do Today?

DEAR HELEN:

Do you have room for a guest spot? The following was written by Bruce Helberg, editor of a suburban newspaper near Seattle — the Bellevue American. I think it merits repeating: — READER

We've often wondered during the past year or so how one of Horatio Alger's young heroes would have made out if he had been born about 18 years ago instead of around the turn of the century.

Horatio's hero, we should explain to those a lot younger than we are, was the fictional epitome of the "boy who made good" in the face of more adversity than we care to think about.

But his problems were simple.

He was an orphan, which enabled him to escape the curse of permissiveness at home. There were no child labor laws or union monopolies, so he was able to get a job while still in his teens.

And he didn't have to attend a formal university, so he got his degree from the school of hard knocks.

There were still a number of unbroken street lights in New York, so he was able to read his books after getting through work. And John D. Rockefeller was right in his prime, so he got an occasional extra dime to augment his regular meals in the free lunch counter at the nearest saloon.

He was even able to take correspondence courses, because the U.S. mails were still going through regularly.

Since he wasn't in school, he didn't have any fellow students pushing marijuana at him, and because there was nothing anti-social about taking a bath, he took his turn regularly at the corner fire hydrant.

He was industrious and worked 14 hours a day, so he had no time to join in any demonstrations.

All the kid had to do was keep his nose to the grindstone and end up marrying Tess Truehart, the boss' daughter.

Horatio's hero would never make it today.

They'd never let him off relief.

DEAR HELEN:

You said recently that the engagement ring is returned to the man when the engagement is broken. I always thought that, too, but I read in a national weekly that in the United States the girl expects to keep her ring as a gift, not return it as a sign of a broken commitment.

What's the scoop? — CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS,

Take your choice, but I base my words on a well-known etiquette book.

Perhaps if the man broke the engagement, he'd feel pretty chintzy asking for his ring, but then it's traditional for the girl to yank it off and throw it in his face, right? — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Bali Burgers

Bali burgers get an oriental flavor from bottled teriyaki sauce. Lightly mix 1 pound of ground beef, ¼ teaspoon of salt, 2 tablespoons of bottled teriyaki sauce and 2 teaspoons of prepared mustard in bowl. Shape into 4 patties; broil 5 to 6 minutes from source of heat until of desired doneness. Toast 4 split hamburger rolls. Place a hamburger on bottom half of each roll; top each with sliced sweet gherkins. Add top of each roll and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

The Paraphernalia For Fall

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Once a woman gets into all her fall fashion gear, she may feel like the ghost of Christmas past.

Long skirts, dangling necklaces, clunking boots, vests, hats, and even gloves—they're all being pushed into star status.

However, the separates look is strong, and mix and match can mean a savings. So can reversibles.

Ann Klein showed only separates today. There wasn't a dress in the $60-$300 collection. The western or Spanish feeling is big: boots, high-waisted lace-up skirts or gaucho pants with pale blouses and vests.

Below the knee lengths predominated—less in soft, languid fabrics, more in suedes, worsteds and fabrics with body.

"Although long is not modern, long is a modern mood. With hat, boots and scarf, it's all dressing up," ran the commentary.

Miss Klein unflinchingly showed some skirts above the knee as much as three inches. One grey suede skirt began long, but it unzipped in horizontal sections to midi and finally to short.

Another zip-on idea was bootlike spats to zip over any shoe.

Silver dangle necklaces and belts added glitter to generally somber colors.

One coat reversed from a brown and white print to oatmeal tweed with tweed skirt.

Stan Herman for Mr. Mort was also heavily into the separates look, with a series of reversible skirts, jumpers and vests.

"We've tried desperately to keep the prices down," he said. They're about the same as last year—$65-$135, with only a couple of pieces higher.

Sex Education? Home And School

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

"Sometimes I don't believe the terrible things I'm seeing!" exclaimed the woman of about 40. "I mean these young kids have sex, right out in the streets today."

"What else they gonna do?" answered the somewhat resigned beautician as she hot-combed the woman's hair. "They got no jobs, no supervision."

"Don't say you didn't participate in a little sexual hanky-panky when you were coming up," challenged another woman.

"They're just like we were."

"Maybe so, but in my day we at least sought a little privacy."

"In your day you had to be sneaky," came another reply.

"Call it what you want, but I swear these young people simply don't care what they do and who sees them. Someone needs to tell them something."

A GOOD MANY young persons desperately need more adequate information about sex. They have gleaned a few broad generalities from the so-called sexual revolution — i.e. sex is good and nothing to be ashamed of — but, unfortunately, they have not fully informed themselves on all the aspects of sex.

Street sex is not a new phenomenon, especially for people who have lived in crowded ghettos. But this is physical sex. Sex is (can be and should be) much more.

Dr. David Ruben, in his recently published "Everything You've Always Wanted to Know About Sex, But Were Afraid to Ask," divides the purposes of sex into three categories: sex for procreation, sex for recreation, sex as an expression of love. The ideal, he states, incorporates all three into one act.

Most young people have discovered the recreational side of sex, and procreation has been an unfortunate side effect, as evidenced by the number of teen-age pregnancies.

AS THE WOMAN said, someone needs to tell them something. Who? The parents in the home? The teachers in the school? Who? Ideally, such information should be readily available in both camps.

For those parents who have had shaky moments with the subject at home, the following is the "christening" of my second grader's new science teacher.

"The new teacher asked if the class had any questions," began my 7-year-old. "And they did — about sex. She told us a little bit, and then she started talking about something else."

"Oh . . ."

"But everyone still wanted to talk about sex, so we had a demonstration."

"A what?"

"Yeah, everyone banged their fists on the desks and yelled: "We want to talk about sex, we want to talk about sex, we want . . ."

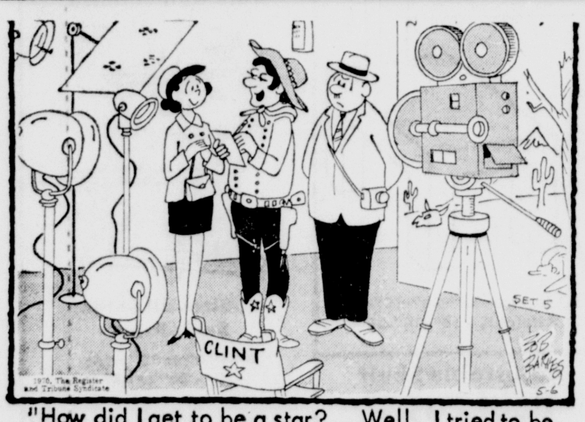
SUSAN SAVELLI

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes



"How did I get to be a star?...Well, I tried to be an actor, but I found I didn't have the talent."

Marin Artist's Need To Re-Build

More than 150 friends of artist Ann Griffith visited her Mill Valley home recently for an informal party. While all of them know Ann the artist and the person, it is likely that only a few are aware of the circumstances that led her to a new way of life and a new career.

The fact that she has not had one hour of formal art training — makes Ann Griffith unusual among the ranks of fine artists. The fact that she turned adversity to advantage, that she "walked right over major tragedies" to survive an emotional crisis, has left an indelible stamp on her work as an artist.

Ann Griffith was born in Oregon but moved to California, while still very young, with her family. She is almost a native of the Bay Area, although she also lived in Southern California while attending college in Pasadena. After two years of college, Ann married and settled in Calistoga. It was here that she first started to paint, primarily as a means of keeping occupied. The rolling hills and spectacular vineyards of the Valley of the Moon were among her first subjects.

Then a son and daughter were born, and the family moved to the community of Pacifica. It was here that tragedy and emotional crisis came simultaneously. Ann's father, who she describes as "a man of great integrity, with a love of individuals" was killed in an accident. Almost at the same time Anns' own family was torn by divorce and, a short time later, a close friend was taken by death.

"Had it not been for the fact that I turned to painting as never before, I don't know what would have happened", recalled Ann. She felt a tremendous, compelling need to create and re-build. Her paintings of that period in life reflect both turmoil and hope and, as she became more absorbed in her efforts to create, her works took on an almost mystical quality of life, hope and strength.

Today, Ann Griffith's paintings are known throughout the Bay Area and Northern California. They mirror her changing moods — vividly colored landscapes, a lonely footbridge . . . wild seascape . . . San Francisco by night. She participates in many of the better known outdoor shows and her work is displayed in Sausalito and in her own studio in Mill Valley.

A full time artist with a well disciplined working day, Ann Griffith is also a full time mother. Her son, David, 17, and daughter, Kathi, 16, are students at Tamalpais High School. The Griffith home is usually well stocked with young people, and the artist very often finds herself squarely in the middle of frank discussions covering every subject that teen-agers talk about.

"I don't pretend to know the answers to today's problems", says Ann, "but there is no question in my mind that my past experiences have given me a greater appreciation of life and people; I would never endure them again — but they have been absolutely essential to my stability as a parent and to my career as an artist."

Spring Legs

Girl watchers surveying the spring leg scene will get an eyeful of color. Soft pinks, blues, yellows, lavenders, greys, and cream colors create the total look. Patterns are returning. Some hose feature clocks at the ankle, outer leg, or up the back of the leg, while others incorporate contrasting bands of floral motifs.

For Melba Toast

If you want to make melba toast have the bread cut in ⅛-inch thin slices. Bake in a 250-degree oven until golden brown—usually about an hour.

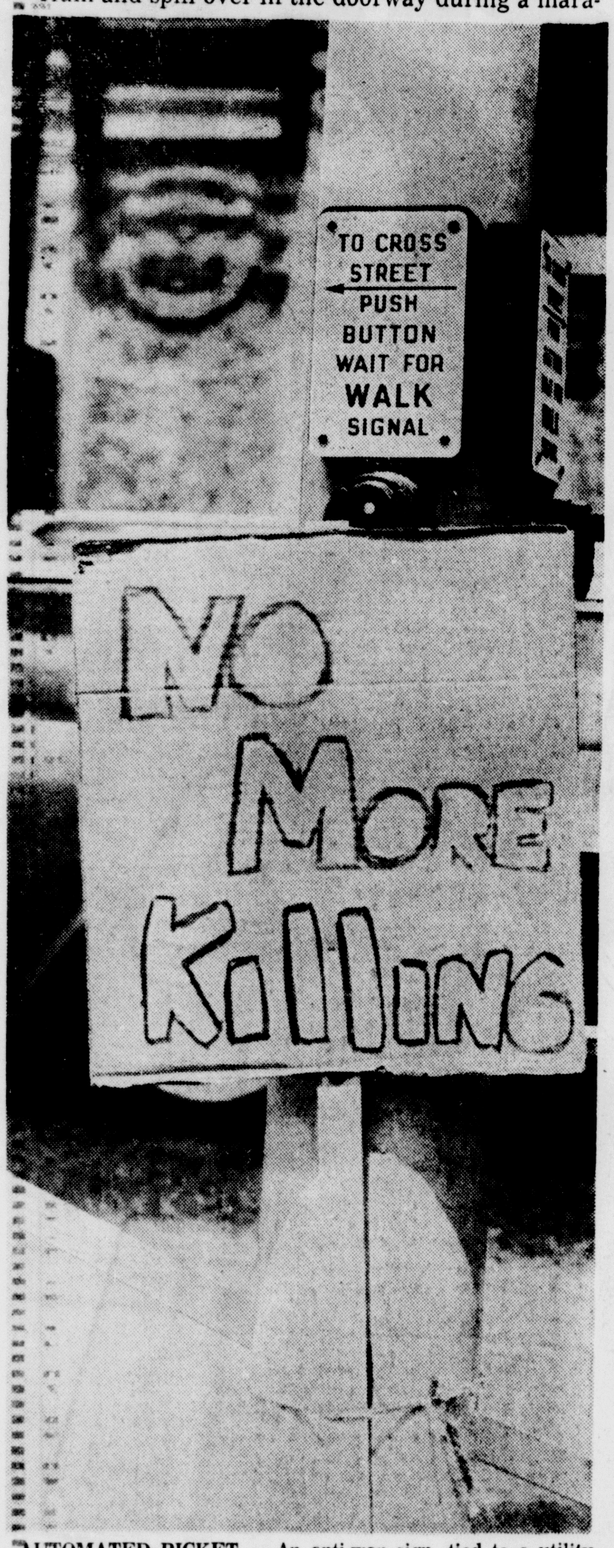
How College Of Marin Students Saw Antiwar Session

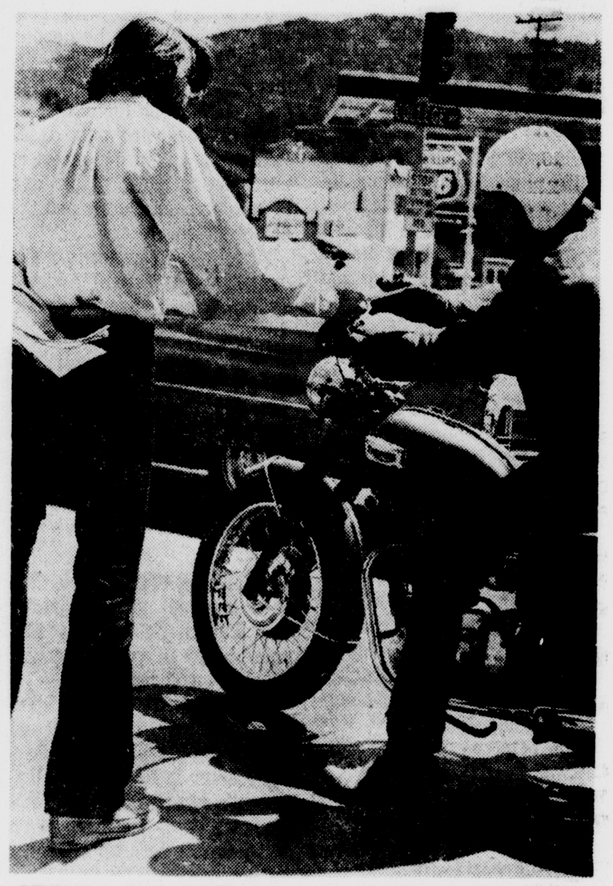
HOURS OF TALK — A student speaker raps about the Asian war as students fill Olney auditorium and spill over in the doorway during a marathon student-faculty meeting on how to conduct and continue the three-day College of Marin strike, which went peacefully with few reported incidents and no violence. This page of photos, taken by college photography students, captures some of the range of activities during the antiwar upsurge, in which students are attempting to take the peace movement into the community.



AUTOMATED PICKET — An anti-war sign, tied to a utility pole, carries the message of the college's strike.

GETTING THE WORD — Students slouch in auditorum seats, but a Great Dane is apparently all attention during one of the student-faculty sessions at Olney Hall.

STRATEGY — Two students gesture in background to stress a point as students and faculty talk over strike activity. Standing at right is Thomas Johnson, photography instructor, and journalism teacher Betty Reese is seated at center before the two standing students. Others were unidentified. White dove armbands identify members of the Marin Peace Coalition which ran the strike.



GETTING THE MESSAGE — A bearded student striker hands an anti-war leaflet to a motorcyclist waiting for a traffic light just off the College of Marin campus.

INTO THE COMMUNITY — A solitary sign-bearing striker marches down a residential street protesting the Asian war. College of Marin strikers covered an estimated 20 per cent of Marin to hand out anti-war messages and seek signatures on anti-war petitions, letters and telegrams.

KEEPING COOL — College of Marin policeman Denny Lawrence flashes the peace sign at the photographer as college policeman Howard Fletcher sits at the wheel of the campus patrol car. The campus police and a sheriff's patrol unit loitered inconspicuously near the campus during the three-day anti-war strike, but were never needed.

ACROSS THE GAP — Two student workers in College of Marin's strike pause on a San Rafael street to discuss the Asian war with an older passerby. The pictures on this page were taken by college photography students of instructor Thomas Johnson, who told them the strike gave them a photographic opportunity but made no formal assignment.

PORTRAIT — George DeSalvo as Gus, a cab driver in "Portrait of Jennie", gives suggestions while the struggling young artist, Eben Adams played by Robin Lee, labors over a painting inspired by the image of Jennie (Leslie Corston) in his mind. The three were practicing Wednesday for the San Rafael High School senior play tonight and tomorrow night at the high school (Independent-Journal photo)

Senior Play Opens Tonight

The San Rafael High School senior class will present "Portrait of Jennie" tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the school.

The play, about a young artist in 1932 in New York City who finds himself and gains success guided by an image of Jennie, was written in book form by Robert Nathan and adapted for the stage by Bettye Knapp.

The cast of students directed by Kim Christensen and Christopher Smith includes Rob Lee as Eben Adams, Leslie Corston as Jennie, George DeSalvo as Gus, Steve Walton as Arnie Kunstler, Carolyn Langlais, Cindy Delfino, Dow Swan, Patty Noel, Dana Jones, Karen Ault, and Sue Lynn.

Tickets will be available at the door. Proceeds will go towards the graduation dance.

Multi-Media Show Set In Mill Valley

"Expressions in Art," a multi-media show that will include films, drama, architecture, painting, sculpture and jewelry will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Mill Valley Community Recreation Center at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue.

The event is the first activity of the newly formed organization, the Mill Valley Arts Guild, set up last week by the city's art commission.

The evening's program will begin with a series of art films, including efforts by local filmmakers Denver Sutton and John Korty.

Jazz pianist Richard Fregulia and his trio will perform next. Fregulia is a music teacher at Tamalpais High School. The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts will present a skit on ecology and the Tam High Players will give a comedy routine.

Concluding the evening will be an exhibit of paintings, sculpture, jewelry and jewelry by high school students, and a presentation of the arts center planned for the Mill Valley Harbor.

Girl, 7, Injured In Bike Accident

Mary Jane Schwab, 7, of 21 Dolores Street, San Rafael, was to see her own physician for a scraped arm sustained yesterday when her bicycle collided with a car, San Rafael police reported today.

The accident occurred at 6:40 p.m. in the 200 block of DuBois Street, according to police, when the girl's bike collided with a car driven by Steven MacPadgett, 16, of 37 Gleaniare Drive, San Rafael.

Two Injured On Mountain Road

Two persons received minor injuries in a head-on collision yesterday at 2:15 p.m. on Panoramic Highway.

The California Highway Patrol said a car driven by Joseph B. Provost, 23, of San Francisco, eastbound on the highway, apparently went over the center line around a curve and struck a westbound auto driven by Jeff G. Merz, 20, of 179 Reservoir Road, San Rafael.

Bennet D. King, 19, of 29 Glen Drive, Sausalito, a passenger in the Merz auto, was treated for facial injuries at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael and Carole M. Johnston, 29, of San Francisco, riding in the Provost car, was treated for a cut forehead at Marin General Hospital.

Two-Car Wreck Injures Woman

Allisain Rode, 22, of 304 C Street, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a strained neck following a two-car collision, San Rafael police reported today.

The accident occurred at 11:35 a.m. at the intersection of C and Taylor Streets when the Rode car collided with one driven by Peggy Thiercof, of 19 Latham Street, San Rafael, according to police.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and from Parents Magazine. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael Library.

FAMILY

"Marooned" — Timely drama tells of the plight of three astronauts marooned in space. Meticulous, authentic details about the technicalities of space flight. Fascinating.

"Oliver" — Delightful musical version with splendid sets, rousing score and excellent performances though there are a few scary moments for children.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — Deft comedy about two charming bandits whose exploits made headlines in early 1900's. Delightful scenery, witty script and memorable performances.

"Down Hill Racer" — A brilliant study of the development of a ski champion. Action sequences are complimented by story about the dynamics of sports competition.

"Five Million Years to Earth" — Fantastic science fiction tale about giant insects from Mars. Since Satan is in command, the destruction on earth is far reaching. Acting is convincing, special effects excellent.

"Molly Maguires" — Important segment in history reconstructed, Irish coal miners used violence to protest inhumane conditions. Harsh, exciting, well acted but slow in pace.

"Reivers" — In a week-end adventure an 11-year-old boy loses his childhood innocence and discovers the waywardness of men. Story has good human values, it is regrettable that the action in a brothel makes film unsuitable for immature audiences.

"Sterile Cuckoo" — Set on a college campus, story of a kooky girl and a boy who is serious and square. Their love affair and first sex experience is told with simplicity and insight. Acting excellent.

"True Grit" — When a young girl's father has been killed she convinces a federal marshal to track down the murderer. Humor and suspense mingle effectively. Violence is an integral part of story.

BORDERLINE

(Most source say Adults Only)

"Bloody Mama" — A psychotic, morally bankrupted family of conscienceless killers. Director maintains a tense balance between character development and very violent action, murder, robbery and sex.

"Easy Rider" — Two hippie drug pushers ride their motorcycles to New Orleans. Film relates their experiences including a wild LSD trip and a senseless tragic ending.

"The First Time" — Superficial comedy about adolescent sexual curiosity. Three teenaged boys trying to prove their manhood to each other being fearful of ridicule.

"I Love You, Alice B. Toklas" — Lively contemporary comedy about a square turned hipped spoofed to a fare-thee-well.

"Man Called Horse" — Absorbing but sickeningly violent drama of Sioux Indian life and rites and their torture of a captive Englishman. Very gory.

ADULTS ONLY

"Belle de Jour" — French film about a beautiful woman who leads two lives — at home with her husband and in a brothel.

"Liberation of L. B. Jones" — Brutal, depressing film deals with racism on the part of both black and whites in the deep south with double standards in sexual conduct.

"MASH" — Title stands for Mobile Army Surgical Hospital. Anti-war film deals with three surgeons. Scenes are gruesome as they are funny. Bittersweet element of truth in action and dialogue.

"What Do You Say To A Naked LADY?" — Allen Funt of Candid Camera has recorded reactions of unsuspecting passersby to a naked woman.

Quakes Panic Italian City

POZZUOLI, Italk (UPI) — Two earthquakes rolled through Pozzuoli today, touching off a panic that closed schools, stores, courts and industrial plants. Scores of families fled the city afoot and in cars.

The two tremors came within 10 minutes of each other, the latest—and most noticeable—shocks in a "slow earthquake" series which began in March and inspired official fears Pozzuoli would collapse.

Authorities said the city of 68,685 was virtually paralyzed after the tremors just after 9:30 a.m. Pupils ran after schools, housewives from kitchens and employees from stores.

State Concludes Case Testimony

BAKERSFIELD (UPI)—The state rested its case against Booker T. Hillery Thursday by reading into the record testimony of two witnesses who testified against the convicted murderer at a previous trial.

Hillery was convicted in 1962 of the scissors slaying of Marlene Miller, a 15-year-old Hanford High School girl at the time of her death.

He twice has been sentenced to death but both sentences were overturned by the California Supreme Court.

Firemen Halt Sequoia Blaze

BAKERSFIELD (AP)—About 80 firefighters today continued fighting a 125-acre blaze in the Kern River Canyon, about six miles west of Bodfish in Sequoia National Forest.

Fire officials said the fire was contained.

Rocks strewn about the fire site hampered control efforts by a bulldozer.

Winds were reported gusting to 20 miles an hour.

Cause of the blaze was under investigation.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, May 15th, the 135th day of 1970 with 230 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Saturn and Mercury. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1862 Congress created the Agriculture Department.

In 1918 the first regular air mail service was established between Washington, Philadelphia and New York.

In 1930 United Air Lines employed the first stewardess, Miss Ellen Church.

In 1969 Justice Abe Fortas resigned from the U.S. Supreme Court.

A thought for the day: American novelist William Faulkner said: "I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail."

Shakespearean Auditions Set

Auditions for this year's Marin Shakespeare Festival will be held Sunday and May 24 and 30 from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Forest Meadows Theater on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael.

Persons auditioning will be required to read 20 or 30 lines from the three plays, "The Tempest," "Taming of the Shrew," and "Henry V," to be presented this season. They must also bring a resume and a glossy eight by 10 inch photograph, according to the festival's San Rafael office.

Information may be obtained at the office at 814 Fifth Avenue.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Declarer Who Is Patient Can Always Get Best Results

"You ought to be arrested for writing so much about bridge," a friend told me recently. "Any average man can play the game without so much instruction. He can draw his trumps, take his finesses and run his suits." And, of course, he can pay his losses in cash.

STILL WONDERING

My straightforward friend came a cropper on the hand shown today, and he still doesn't know that he threw away a vulnerable game. All he did was follow his own simple recipe for the play of a hand.

South ruffed the second diamond, drew three rounds of trumps and then began on the hearts. East won the fourth round of hearts and led the queen of clubs, which gave declarer the chance to take a finesse. The ace of clubs was in the unfavorable position, of course, and South was down one. If East had held the ace of clubs he would have returned a diamond, thus forcing South to lead the clubs out of his own hand.

If you're patient, rather than blunt and straightforward, you may see the way to win the game and rubber with this hand. Try it for yourself before you read on.

JUST TWO ROUNDS

After ruffing the second round of diamonds, draw just two rounds of trumps. Then cash two top hearts with the jack of spades still out against you.

Your next step is to lead a low heart. If the missing hearts happen to be divided evenly, you can safely ruff the low heart with dummy's last trump. Both opponents will follow suit. If they are not divided evenly, you have a natural heart loser, and it costs nothing to try to ruff it out.

JACK SET UP

West will step up with the jack of spades since you would make the game very easily if West refused to ruff. You discard a club from dummy, ruff the diamond return, and then cash the queen and eight of hearts, discarding two more clubs from dummy. This leaves only one club in dummy, so that you can give up one club and ruff the other club to make sure of your game and the rubber.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- J 8 7
♥- 9 5
♦- A K 8 4
♣- A 9 7 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER, Bid one diamond.

You have 12 points in high cards and one point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than pass because your high-card structure is magnificent.

Milk Bars

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Many Irish pubs have installed milk bars since the introduction of the breathalyzer test for drunken drivers. National Dairy Council signs in the bars read: "Scientists have proven milk reduces intxication."

Yield To Maturity Simple To Compute

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you please explain how to calculate bond yield to maturity? — J.R. & E.V.

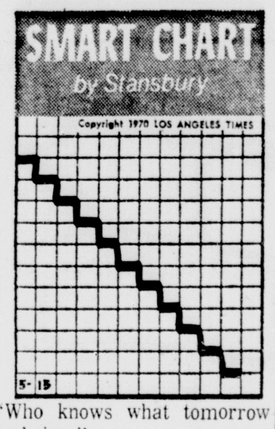
A. An approximation can be calculated rather simply, but for an exact figure one should use tables published for that purpose. The reason for this is that yield to maturity amortizes the difference between purchase and redemption prices over the life of the bond. In other words, your capital base moves upward on a sliding scale as redemption approaches.

A rough parallel can be calculated by dividing average annual income by average capital base. The latter is found by adding purchase price to redemption price and dividing by two. By adding to the coupon rate the annual gain or loss, one can ascertain the average annual income.

Thus a bond bought at $600 with 20 years to redemption at $1,000 would produce an annual gain of $20. Conversely a bond costing $1,100 with 10 years prior to redemption at $1,000 would result in an annual loss of $10. Therefore, the bond with the $20 annual gain cited above would have an average capital base of $800. If this same bond carried a 5 per cent coupon, the yield to maturity would then be 8.75 per cent.

Q. During the past two years, I have purchased 200 shares of Questor Corp. Is this worth holding for the long-term? — J.S.

A. A diversified manufacturer, this company is involved in areas which many analysts feel have above-average growth possibilities: the leisure-time field, infant toys and nursing products and automotive replacement components. Despite a substantial rise in first-quarter (ended March, 1970) sales, Questor reported a decline in earnings for the period to 11 cents per share from 28 cents in 1969. However, the expected surge in the demand for automotive replacement products, the rise in family formations and births in the next decade and the growth of the nation's leisure-time activities should all contribute favorably to Questor's earnings picture over the long pull.



"Who knows what tomorrow may bring."

THE WEEK IN BUSINESS

New York Wine Firm Joining Westerners In Sonoma Venture

A major New York wine producer, Widmer's Wine Cellars, Inc., has committed itself to vineyard cultivation in California — and eventually production facilities here.

Widmer, together with the R. T. French Co. of Rochester, N. Y., have formed a new corporation, Widmer Vineyards, Inc. to develop between 400 and 500 acres in Alexander Valley, Sonoma County. Preparations are under way for initial grape planting this spring. It will take three years before a crop can be harvested and then wines will probably come out under the Widmer label.

Approximately $900,000 has been invested in the land by French, with Widmer providing technical assistance. French also has food interests in California. It also has a 20 per cent interest in Widmer's. Among officials of the new California organization are Frank H. Bartholomew, chairman of the board of United Press International and Buena Vista Winery of Sonoma.

ROSS MEDICAL CORP. has reported a 46 per cent increase in net income and a 26 per cent increase in sales for the first quarter. Gross revenues totaled $2,758,000 compared with $2,184,000 for the 1969 period. Net income this year was $161,000, against $110,000 for the first 1968 quarter. Net income per share was 18 cents, compared to 15 cents a year ago.

COCA COLA CO. stockholders have given final approval to the merger of Aqua-Chem, Inc., a producer of equipment for desalting sea and brackish water, into the company. It will be operated under its present management as a subsidiary of Coca Cola. The latter recently reported the highest of any first-quarter earnings for 1970. Profits were $26.8 million or 47 cents per share, 12 per cent higher than last year's $23.9 million or 42 cents per share.

KAISER AETNA, Oakland-based real estate and land development firm, has acquired in competitive bidding the 4,200-acre McCormick Ranch in Scottsdale, Ariz. First steps will be to select a project management team, conduct an engineering and economic study and then submit a master use plan to local planning officials. Kaiser Aetna, a partnership of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and Aetna Life and Casualty operates 12 real estate, land development and construction projects.

GUY F. ATKINSON CO., San Francisco, submitted the apparent low bid of $61.7 million to construct Cochiti Dam on the Rio Grande River in New Mexico for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. It is the largest construction project it has sought to undertake without partners. The dam will take five years to construct.

OCCIDENTAL PETROLEUM CORP. directors have declared a special stock dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock. They also declared the regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents per common share payable July 15 and quarterly dividends on the preferred stocks.

LONGS DRUG STORES, INC. has reported a 9.5 per cent increase in first quarter sales. Total sales for the three months were $36.9 million, compared to $30.8 million for the 1969 period. Directors have voted to increase the quarterly dividend rate from 13 cents to 16 cents per share, payable commencing June 23. Longs now has 47 stores in operation and eight more under construction.

DILLINGHAM CORP., Eastern Air Lines and Laurence S. Rockefeller's Olohana Corp. have decided to dissolve Dilrock Eastern Co., a land development joint venture which had proposed to build a convention hotel and major resort complex on the Kohala Coast of Hawaii. Reason: Too expensive.

Sharp Board Rise Called Technical

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices climbed sharply across a broad front on the New York Stock Exchange Friday, but analysts characterized the action as technical and largely a follow through of Thursday's late demand.

Shortly before the close, the UPI market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a gain of 1.18 per cent on 1,561 issues on the tape. There were 916 advances and 419 declines.

A turnover of around 14-million shares compared with 13,920,000 shares Thursday.

"The rally is technical so far," an analyst for W. E. Hutton & Co. said, "but given any sort of good news it could become more meaningful."

Monte Gordon, analyst for Bache & Co., said "the list is so oversold that the rally is not surprising." But "at this juncture," he added, "it can't be classified as anything but technical."

Electronics and oils were among the brightest performers, while most other major stock groups traded in fractions.

Among the day's most active issues were Telex Corp., University Computing, National General Corp., Xerox, LFE Corp., American Telephone, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Gulf Oil.

Prices also climbed smartly in brisk turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Airline Jets Investors To See Australia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Qantas Airways, Australia's international airline announced today the inauguration of a series of American investors' trips to Australia.

Qantas spokesmen said the project was a "first ever" venture by any airline.

Working in close association with the Travel Center, Washington, D.C., Qantas plans to make it possible for American businessmen to conduct personal, on-the-spot surveys of business opportunities in booming Australia and New Zealand.

Businessmen may fly either individually or in groups to the two countries.

Either way, Qantas will set up interviews with them with specialists in the fields of particular interest to them. Top government officials, leading bankers, stockbrokers, businessmen and industrialists have agreed to participate, the spokesmen said.

Proposition 7 Could Be Costly To Californians

California has over a billion dollars in state bonds, authorized by the voters, on hand which it cannot sell on the current bond market.

To make these and future bonds salable, Proposition 7 on the June 2 ballot proposes to remove the ceiling on interest rate which the state may pay.

The Constitution now imposes a 5 per cent interest ceiling. This was ample until the current money squeeze. But bonds are not now salable at 5 per cent.

A bill passed by the legislature last year would raise the limit to 7 per cent. It cannot take effect unless Proposition 7 is passed.

HOWEVER, THERE SHOULD be no confusion between the 7 per cent limit contained in the bill passed last year and what Proposition 7 would do. The proposition would leave it up to the legislature to set whatever limit it wanted — or none at all — on unsold bond issues. Here is what it says:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this constitution, or any bond act to the contrary, if any general obligation bonds of the state heretofore or hereafter authorized by vote of the people have been offered for sale and not sold, the legislature may raise the maximum rate of interest payable on all general obligation bonds authorized but not sold, whether or not such bonds have been offered for sale, by a statute passed by a two-thirds vote of all members elected to each house thereof."

In other words, the limit in future would be whatever the legislature decided it should be.

THERE ARE DANGERS in this.

If the upsurge of interest rates were to continue, such a constitutional provision would appear realistic. The legislature would have to raise the limit from time to time so the state could borrow money through bond issues.

However, it is unrealistic to expect that interest rates will go up and up indefinitely. When and if they go down, here is what would happen:

SUPPOSE THAT state bonds found no takers at 7 per cent, so the legislature raised the limit to 8 per cent and many millions of state bonds were then sold at that figure.

Suppose then that "the bubble burst" and interest rates fell to more normal figures of around 5 per cent for state bonds. Since the state had sold its bonds at 8 per cent, the people of California would be obligated over the next several decades (40 years for most state bond issues) to pay the 8 per cent interest.

THE DANGER is increased by the very amount of bonds now unsold: $600 million for the state water project, $200 million for veterans housing, $75 million for beaches and parks, $78 million for university and college construction, etc.

All these bonds might be sold at 7 per cent within the next few months. But some of them might have to be sold at a new, still higher rate. And when interest rates go down again, the taxpayers would have to continue to pay the high interest on all those bonds.

It might be wiser to delay the projects for which the bonds were issued — badly though some of them may be needed — rather than put into the constitution a provision for no-limit financing.

It should not be overlooked, however, that this would have an impact on the state budget, because the state has "borrowed" from its own general fund to keep the water project going.

Thus, Proposition 7 figures to cost the taxpayers money either way — by its passage or its defeat.

Tool Using Birds

Psychologists used to call man "the tool using animal." Then as we learned more about other mammals, we discovered that many of them use tools too. For example, the playful sea otter pries abalone from rocks with the help of a flat stone.

In recent years some birds have been added to the list of tool users. Two of the latest examples of tool use by birds are an Egyptian vulture that uses stones to open ostrich eggs and nuthatches that use pine bark scales to pry up other pine bark scales to get at the insects underneath.

Some birds display remarkable ingenuity, most of which may be instinctive, but remarkable nonetheless.

Reagan May Acquire 'Honor' Of Another Huge Tax Increase

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — At his most recent press conference, Gov. Ronald Reagan attempted to revive interest in his tax reform program, which was defeated in the Assembly more than a week ago by the slim margin of one vote because one of the Republican members was seriously ill in Los Angeles.

A press conference presents little opportunity for constructive action in reviving any program; nevertheless the governor laid it on the line in asserting his intention to inform the people of the recalcitrant Democrats' disctricts that they failed to carry out their legislative duties by not voting one way or the other on the program.

The program carried provisions for tax withholding, increases in the sales tax, the income taxes and a few other shifts that would put more burdens on state taxes while supposedly alleviating in part the property tax.

EVEN IF Governor Reagan does engender some interest in reviving his tax program, it is too late now to use it to combat the purposes of Proposition 8, which will be voted on June 2 at the primarily election. Eight is the measure sponsored by the California Teachers Association and California County Supervisors Association which would require that the state pay half of the school costs and 90 per cent of the welfare costs.

Should Proposition 8 pass — and with the inaction of the legislature on the governor's tax reform program it seems to have a fair chance of squeaking by — solons will be in Sacramento a good long time attempting to raise the funds to finance the proposal.

There is no provision in Proposition 8 for financing the schools, welfare or anything else.

Most estimates add up to the fact that Proposition 8 will cost state taxpayers an additional billion dollars, which if the present system of taxation is maintained, will have to come largely from income and sales taxes.

THUS, SHOULD the proposition pass, Reagan will have the unique "honor" of being the only governor in history to impose two billion dollar tax increases on the people in the short four years of a single gubernatorial term — the other having been when he took office.

The peculiar part of the entire situation is that neither of the tax raises (the second being potential of course) was due to the Republican administration. The first was to recover from the brink of financial disaster left by the Brown administration, and the second, if it comes about, the result of turning state financing over to the schools of California.

It is unfortunate that neither Proposition 8 nor Reagan's reform proposals has any constructive proposal for tax reform. Both merely take money from alternate taxpayer pockets, while giving no relief nor providing any reform.

It's small wonder the legislature sits on the tax package when it knows the measure will do nothing but add to the already multiferous troubles of the people who pay the bills.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Error In Report Of Resolution

In the interest of accuracy, I must correct a statement in your edition of May 7, in which you state that the board of trustees of San Francisco Theological Seminary passed a resolution at their annual meeting on May 5, decrying U. S. involvement in Cambodia. They did not. They passed unanimously a resolution deploring violence on American campuses, both violence on the part of those protesting violence abroad, and violence on the part of those local, state and national authorities sworn to uphold the peace. The resolution also affirmed student right to dissent both Vietnam and Cambodia involvement and the draft.

Since the resolution was correctly reported in your edition of Wednesday, it is unfortunate that it was incorrectly characterized in the following day's paper.

Where Lies Blame For Kent Deaths?

I think it's time we reconsider the causes of the deaths of the four K.S.U. coeds. Does the blame lie with Nixon's sending troops to Cambodia or Vietnam? Does it belong to the National Guardsmen who fired using live ammunition? Or does the fault lie with the 600 students who the night before paraded through downtown Kent breaking windows and looting stores? And does it belong also to the 1,000 or more students who as a violent group of rioters had surrounded the guardsmen and while throwing rocks, spikes and construction materials were closing in on them?

If these students had been studying or in classrooms or even just enjoying the life of a coed as I did when I attended Kent State University, perhaps wouldn't these four students be alive today? It's time we placed the responsibility where it belongs.

There are better ways to bring about changes and voice objections; and these involve respect for others, respect for rules and laws and respect even for oneself.

Governor Reagan was correct. The time has come to take a personal inventory. The time has come to think.

Reader Restates Nixon's Arguments

Your letter to the President may seem as futile to you as this does to me, but here goes anyway.

Part of the President's oath of office is to defend this country from its enemies, foreign and domestic. No one ever mentions the results of an immediate and unilateral withdrawal as is advocated by the rabble in the picture on the front page of your paper on May 7. Incidentally, I hardly think that they are typical of the average patriotic American, who, fortunately, is still in the majority.

Nowhere in your editorial do you give the slightest constructive suggestion as to what course we should take in Vietnam and why. Your article seems to imply that we should not try to destroy the enclaves in Cambodia. If you imply that we should pull out altogether, that means the obvious abandonment of Southeast Asia to communism. After that we would not have much credibility in the Middle East or in Europe, and soon you would have to give more thought to concerning the content of your editorials because big red brother would be watching.

The President is doing the right thing in destroying the enemy's power to make war. It should have been done four years ago. I hope he listens to a quotation from former Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson: "I never listen to the barking of rabbits."

'Bill Of Rights' May Be Nihilist

Tam High students, don't let your self-appointed "leaders" kid you. That so-called "bill of rights" sells your rights right down the river! The "right" not to have to listen to both sides of a controversial issue? Why are they afraid to have you hear both sides?

And "political freedom" on campus. You know what that means, don't you? "Political freedom" means any radical, Black Panther, SDS member, communist, or nihilist is welcome — government officials, law officers, conservative thinkers will be picketed, or simply not invited. Are they afraid you'll listen to a voice of reason? Are you afraid to listen?

Start thinking — now — start asking questions. "The students are to have these rights!" What students? Will issues be decided democratically? Will you as a student have any vote in the decision of whom you may hear, what political organization you may join, or organize, what political views you will be allowed to voice?

Or will "political freedom" extend only to those who agree with the "tear it all down" philosophy of a handful of radicals?

You'd better begin to ask some of these questions before you find your "bill of rights" becomes just a set-up for nihilistic propaganda.

Thanks For Speaking For The Unborn

Thank you for taking the side of unborn children and giving them a voice through your editorial of May 4. It seems the over-zealous are losing sight of their sense of values in their eagerness to control our population.

Which of them who call for the destruction of unborn children, would their mothers have chosen not to be born?

And how can anyone ask another to take on such an awful responsibility of destroying a human life; a completely defenseless human life; the greatest of God's gifts?

The pattern of human destruction, in the name of anything, is, as you say, monstrous.

No mother that I know; certainly not I, can look at our own children and not feel the great miracle of their lives. And no mother can accept the thought of their deliberate deaths, either before or after they are born.

We are not rabbits or laboratory guinea pigs to be gotten rid of due to a mistake. We are human beings and ought to be dedicated to the preservation of all human beings; particularly those yet unborn.

Who knows what future good a tiny baby on his way into the world might contribute one day? Why deny him the chance?

THE DRUMMONDS

American People Have Taken War-Making Power From President

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The dwindling public support for the war in Vietnam — and the same for Korea earlier — must lead President Nixon to a momentous policy conclusion.

It is that neither he nor any future President, as far as we can see ahead, can safely use U. S. troops in combat unless there is a direct attack on American forces or territory.

There is already a widely supported move by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R.-Ill., to restore the war-making decision more firmly to Congress.

But what is now evident is that, beyond the dispute over whether the commander-in-chief should act without approval by Congress, public opinion has already acted — and settled it:

Public opinion has already restored the war-making power to the American people.

It is clear from the state of mind of the country today — and it was the same in the middle of the Korean fighting — that the American people are not willing to sustain a long and costly war far from American shores, unless the security of the nation is visibly at stake.

DURING THE PAST 20 years five American presidents have used U. S. combat forces without approval by Congress and in ways which public opinion would not support today and very likely would not allow in the future.

President Truman did so in Korea and so did President Eisenhower in Lebanon. President Kennedy sent 16,000 U. S. military "advisers" to South Vietnam without even informing Congress. President Johnson deployed some 45,000 troops in Vietnam before the Senate passed the Tonkin Resolution approving everything he did later. President Nixon used his authority as commander in chief to send U. S. troops into Cambodia — a decision which, in our judgment, public opinion would not permit him to repeat.

It is entirely possible that Congress would have approved all of these presidential actions if they had been put to Congress.

But there is no guarantee whatever that a declaration of war by Congress would have put public opinion behind either the Korean war or the Vietnamese war. The Korean war had been in progress only a year and a half when public opinion polls showed that 66 per cent of the American people wanted U. S. troops out at once. And the overwhelming Senate approval of the Tonkin Resolution did not keep public support from crumbling as the Vietnamese war kept on indecisively and with great loss of life.

THE PACIFIST isolationist sentiment of the nation today — and it shows no sign of changing in the near future — would be more restrictive than Congress on any peacekeeping initiative by the President involving U. S. forces in distant lands.

This is why Mr. Nixon says "no more Vietnams" and this is why he might not greatly resist the Percy resolution affirming that:

"It is the sense of the Senate that the President should not utilize the military forces of the United States in any combat activity in any foreign country without the express consent of Congress, except in response to a clear and direct attack upon the United States, its territories or possessions, or upon forces of the United States where they are lawfully deployed."

RICHARD NIXON has already pledged that he would not undertake anything like another Vietnam without congressional approval. He might prefer not to have a resolution as explicit as Percy's because it might circumscribe the diplomatic influence of the President in seeking to deter future aggressions short of war. If possible aggressor nations are assured that the United States would never use its forces in any peace-keeping operation, this would be an inviting situation for aggression.

But this is the effect of the state of mind of the American people and there is no doubt that President Nixon has got the message. We expect it will be binding on the President — present and future — for a considerable time to come.

Post Office Package Plan Runs Up Against Politics

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's postal negotiators may have stopped a strike but they certainly didn't take politics out of the post office. An agreement negotiated with seven postal unions and announced with great fanfare April 16 is firmly stuck in a Senate committee. The committee chairman, Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., and Postmaster General Winton M. Blount are blaming each other for the delay. It's the same kind of impasse that stalled a postal pay raise last year and brought on the nation's first mailmen's strike.

As before, the issue is whether postal reform should be tied to an 8 per cent pay raise agreed upon in negotiations. Blount says the reforms were negotiated, too, and should be included. McGee insists that postal oreorganization is Congress' business and had no place in the postal negotiations.

If Nixon and Blount want postal reform, McGee has told them repeatedly, they must swallow his version, which does not include the nine-member board of commissioners upon which the administration's reforms are based.

Otherwise, says McGee, his Senate Post Office Committee will approve the 8 per cent pay raise and accompanying provisions for future collective bargaining, leaving the reform proposals mired. Postal rate increases proposed by Nixon also are partially disputed by McGee, and could be left behind with the reform plans.

If McGee's threat as carried through by Congress, it would confront Nixon with legislation embodying all the costs of the postal agreement and none of the offsetting income.

Faced with a similar situation last December following Senate and House passage of pay raise bills, Nixon served notice he would veto legislation that did not include postal reform. The bills became stalled and a postal strike followed later.

This time, McGee and other legislators doubt that Nixon would refuse to sign the 8 per cent pay raise, since his own negotiators worked it out. Blount has warned that postal workers might strike again unless the bill is promptly passed —with reforms attached, of course.

Should the pay raise be approved with no rate increase or reorganization, the costs could scuttle hopes for a balanced 1971 budget.

Already enacted is the first part of the postal agreement, a 6 per cent pay raise not only for mailmen but most other federal workers, civilian and military, at a cost of $2.4 billion a year. The 8 per cent increase for postal workers alone would cost an additional half-billion.

Nixon's proposed rate increases were designed to cover about $1.5 billion of the added costs and Blount says the administration's postal reforms would eventually save $1 billion a year.

Divisions Deep Over Firing Of Sausalito School Principal

Reactions in the Sausalito School District to last week's firing of Sidney F. Walton Jr. have been surprisingly mild — at least on the surface.

There has been no violence, no massive demonstrations and no open confrontations between the black principal's supporters and detractors, even though emotions — pro and con — are extremely high.

But ardent supporters of Walton are working quietly in his behalf and have no intention of giving up the fight and submitting meekly to the board of trustees' action.

Many parents are hopeful the board can be persuaded to reverse its dicision, although board members and administrators are saying privately that there isn't a chance.

Walton himself has practically ignored the trustees' decision to "terminate his services as soon as possible" and said at a Marin City meeting last week it would "cost the taxpayers $5 million" to get rid of him.

But the wheels to dismiss him are already grinding along. Supt. Philip W. Schneider is working with the Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino in drawing up a list of charges against the King School principal.

The charges are the first step in the legal process needed to fire Walton now.

Many parents, especially parents from Marin City, who have seen the trustees reverse past decisions, simply do not believe the board will go through with its decision to fire Walton.

Some like Royce McLemore of Marin City are long-time supporters of the principal and his assistant, James T. Toliver Jr., and feel that the education of black children will suffer if Walton is removed.

There are many who feel as she does, just as there are many who rejoice at Walton's ouster. The board is again in the unenviable position of having to deal with individuals who hold strong, emotional, but diverse views.

Monday night's meeting is sure to bring out persons on both sides, and a wrong decision by the board at this time could easily mean the destruction of the district, already beset by countless problems, fiscal and philosophical.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

That Unresponsive Countenance –Could It Be Mirror Image?

Fusselman

The Alice in Wonderland pout of Paul Zucker that John McInnis was "aloof, inaccessable and unresponsive" is about the funniest thing to come along in a long time. He looks in the looking glass and doesn't like what he sees-so says he, that can't be me; it must be McInnis.

The guy's reputation of looking down his nose at practically everyone and everything is too well established to wish it on someone else. Long before there was any indication thte he would run for supervisor, I have called attention to his curt, aloof, know-it-all attitude.

He has continually shown his scorn of anything he hadn't thought of first — and of the people he was dealing with; planning commissioners, supervisors — whoever.

Now he is an expert on juvenile crime. The mastermind has the answer? What?

HE AND ALAN BRUCE have one thing in common: He now and Bruce in the past have wanted to jump into the commuting bus business in spite of the fact that Greyhound has claimed an annual loss of $3 to $5 million.

They're both big spenders of your money. You remember I gave you Zucker's personal take in fat salary and fringe benefits, well I have checked what he has spent for the operation of his department during the past four years.

Including what is budgeted for this fiscal year, ending June 30, he has condescended to use $1,525,409 of your tax money. Have you ever seen a list of his accomplishments during these past four years? I haven't.

The county "budget system is ridiculous" he moans. One that would not be so revealing would perhaps be more to his liking?

WHILE I WAS checking, I looked into what the Bruce departments are costing you this fiscal year. The ones he is in "COMMAND" of run over a quarter million dollars — $266,690. That's what you pay for his gang's poking around and trying to run the works. Check the agendas each week and you will get an idea of how he elbows into everything. Then there is the cost of the data processing, which he dominates, although it appears to be a free-running operation. This should also be charged to the grip of his tight little fist.

Why the county should have to suffer with two such master minds is a mystery.

Billie and I were receiving a dozen or so magazines — gifts and those we subscribed for. I can't begin to keep up with them all now. If you know where they might be desired, please write me.

Lawmakers Deadlock On Leaded Gasoline

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly Transportation Committee has refused to approve antipollution legislation that would take the lead out of gasoline in California, but its sponsor will try again.

The committee, in the latest of a series of marathon hearings, decided early today that it could not vote on the measure, and put it off again until next week.

For almost nine hours, witnesses gave their opinions on the matter, but when it came to a vote after midnight the bill obviously did not have enough support and it was put over for further hearing.

Lead base chemicals have been added to gasoline for decades to raise the operating efficiency of most engines. But experts say the lead also increases pollution from engine exhaust.

The measure, debated Thursday, would:

— Phase out the use of lead virtually in all California gasoline by July 1980.

— Between now and then, set up guidelines for reducing the lead in gasoline. Two types of gasoline would be allowed, low-lead and high-lead.

— The low-lead, for most cars using regular gas, would be allowed to contain some lead, about one pound per car a year, until July 1, 1974. After that, only trace amounts would be permitted.

— High-lead gas, needed especially for high powered engines, would be phased out over the next decade.

The committee did approve an amendment sought by, such small oil companies as Beacon and Mohawk which operate mainly in the Central Valley. They would not be required to meet low-lead regulations until 1974, while the major producers which serve up to 80 per cent of the state's motor vehicles, would have to meet them by July 1971.

As in past hearings, most oil companies and the Lead Industries Association opposed the measure. Citizens' groups supported it with the complaint that it wasn't tough enough. Union Oil Co. of California also supported the measure.

Its president, Fred L. Hartley, said the bill "reconciles the requirements and desires of the public, automobile manufacturers, oil companies and pollution authorities." He condemned the majority of his industry for opposing the legislation.

San Diego Firemen Remain Out On Strike For Raise

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Firemen ignored a court order and remained on strike today while Mayor Frank Curran called for further employe salary discussion by the city council.

Curran had to recess Thursday's council meeting twice as college students, demanding a city stand against the Indochina war, caused disruptions. Municipal employe leaders at the meeting criticized city salary procedures and asked for bigger raises.

About 2,000 city workers left their jobs Thursday to march for two hours around the city administration building to rally support for wage demands.

Sam Salazar, president of the 600-member Fire Fighters Association, said the council has given a "take-it-or-leave-it" ultimatum of 10 per cent pay hikes.

The association, which went on strike Wednesday night, closing 24 of 34 fire stations, wants 15 per cent. Salazar said requests for further negotiations have been rejected.

"We are working with half our normal manpower and we are spread out," Deputy Fire Chief Chester R. Davis said Thursday. "But citizens should not worry. It may take us longer to get to a fire, but we will come."

He said a mutual aid agreement with other fire departments in the county will be put to use if there is a major fire.

City Attorney John Witt said no action has been taken to seek contempt citations against firemen ignoring the temporary restraining order issued in Superior Court as the strike began.

Manslaughter Verdict In Nyhan Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Daniel Nyhan of Tiburon stands convicted of manslaughter in the fatal Nob Hill apartment beating of a 61-year-old woman.

The same Superior Court jury Thursday acquitted his 74-year-old mother, Elsie Nyhan, in the death.

The Nyhans were tried on charges of murder in the Oct. 26, 1968, death of Genevieve Dolan, whose body was found in a hallway of Mrs. Nyhan's apartment.

Testimony during the four-week trial indicated the slain woman shared sherry and dinner with Mrs. Nyhan the night of the killing.

Mrs. Nyhan was released immediately after the verdict. Her 43-year-old son was jailed pending a probation hearing June 3 and his $5,000 bond was revoked.

In closing argument before Judge Robert Schnacke, defense attorney Jack Berman, representing Mrs. Nyhan, said fists were the probable weapons in the beating.

He said testimony showed Nyhan's fists were swollen at the time he was arrested, the day after the body was found.

Congress May Hike Postal Pay Soon If Carriers Don't Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which appeared ready to halt action on a postal pay boost when New York mailmen threatened to strike Thursday night, is now on a timetable that could bring final approval in three weeks.

"Congress is not going to be pressured by a strike," the senior Senate Post Office Committee member, Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, said Thursday before New York letter carriers called off the strike.

Fong said the committee is ready to put out the bill for a Senate vote but a walkout would have forced a delay until a settlement was reached.

Rep. David N. C. Henderson, D-N.C., second-ranking Democrat on the House Post Office Committee, said Congress' reaction to a new mail strike might be even worse:

"I don't see how it could speed it (the bill) up very much," he said. "And it might kill it."

But New York Branch 36 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, one of two New York locals that triggered the nationwide mail strike in March, voted Thursday to stay on the job and put off any further strike consideration until June 12.

"Our people showed themselves to be responsible labor," Gus Johnson, the local's president, said after the vote. "It is up to Congress now to show its responsibility."

The 8 per cent pay raise for postal workers is tied to differing House and Senate bills that would create a U.S. Postal Service to put the mails on a self-paying basis by 1978 and operate much as an independent corporation.

Fong said the Senate postal committee should clear the package next week, adding the chamber's leadership has agreed to give it priority for a Senate vote that could come before the week is over.

Giants Are Hurting; Dodgers Blast Marichal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Grabarkewitz, Los Angeles' red-hot third baseman, summed it up for his team:

"It was my sweetest victory as a Dodger. To beat San Francisco — and Juan Marichal — well, that's something."

The Dodgers sank Marichal, who's now won all but 12 games in 30 matches with Los Angeles, with a five-run outburst in the third inning to beat the Giants 6-3 Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series.

The win broke the Dodgers' two-game losing streak, with the victory going to Sandy Vance. The 23-year-old right-hander is now 4-3.

In tonight's game, Miguel Puente, 1-1, will be pitching for San Francisco against Los Angeles' Don Sutton, 4-4.

The attack on Marichal and his replacement in the third inning by Frank Reberger was not a surprise to Giants Manager Clyde King.

"It's the middle of spring training for Marichal," he said.

Marichal, who won 21 and lost 11 last year, is only 1-1 so far in 1970. He spent two weeks in a hospital after reacting adversely to a shot of penicillin and has yet to regain his sharpness.

The strength of the Giants was also diluted by three injuries. Willie McCovey, National League's most valuable player, was sidelined by a jammed shoulder and may not play in the remaining three games. Ron Hunt was out because of a bruised knee but was expected to play tonight. Catcher Dick Dietz was hurt when a foul tip hit him in the left arm, forcing him out of the game.

Playing McCovey's first base position was Willie Mays, who has held down the hot spot only a few times in past years.

The Dodgers' third-inning explosion was started with a single by Maury Wills. Manny Mota and Willie Davis also singled, driving in two runs. Wes Parker followed with another single and when Willie Crawford forced Parker, Davis scored.

Grabarkewtiz, now hitting .390, then hit his third home run, a line drive that carried into the vacant right field pavilion.

When Tom Haller singled, Marichal was replaced by Reberger, who got the final two outs.

Reberger retired the Dodgers without a hit in the fourth and fifth innings.

A ninth inning home run by Frank Johnson, a double by Tito Fuentes and a single by Hal Lanter whittled the Dodgers' 6-1 lead to just three runs. Dodger manager Walt Alston brought in Jim Brewer.

"Vance did a great job" praised Alston. "He displays a lot of poise out there. But he might have tired a little in the ninth and Jim Brewer was well rested."

Brewer, who'd been a trifle off his last three appearances, walked pinch hitter Jim Davenport but got Bobby Bonds to end it.

Vance, who was summoned from the Pacific Coast League when Bill Singer was placed on the disabled list, now has a 2.18 earned run average, best among the Dodgers starters.

Beth Placed Me In Hall Of Fame

If I'm well-red it's because I'm blushing all over the place.

You see, I just learned that I'm in the Hall of Fame. The SWIM Hall of Fame, no less! Never mind how I got there. I'm there — a picture of me bigger'n life — in the International Swim Hall of Fame at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Just think, landlubber me ensconced alongside the likes of Johnny Weissmuller, Duke Kahanamoku, Gertrude Ederle, Buster Crabbe, Ann Curtis, Esther Williams, Don Schollander — all the greats of swimming.

Yep, me! Bellyflopper, dog paddler, nose holder me.

I knew you'd never believe it, but I have proof in the form of a photograph of me with my best girl friend, Mrs. Beth Kaufman of Greenbrae, take some years ago.

Began Age Group Swimming

Mrs. Kaufman was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1968 for her years of outstanding contribution to the sport, including the introduction and development of age group swimming. When the Hall people asked her for photographs to place in the niche reserved for her, she sent along one of the two of us together and, by golly, it's up on the wall with all the other greats.

I'm glad the photo shows a front view of Bethie and me.

That way you can't see my water wings.

Anyway, the subject comes up today because Mrs. Kaufman, now a spry 75 summers young and nine-time grandma who still swims daily, gave me the photo of us in the niche as a souvenir while telling me she is campaigning to have ex-coach Charles Sava elected to the Hall of Fame.

Beth has gone to great length in advising the selection committee of Sava's countless merits as a swim coach, including nine national champions from the old San Francisco Crystal Plunge and development of such champions as Miss Curtis, now Mrs. Gordon Cuneo of San Rafael, Joan Mallory, Barbara Jensen, Delia Muelenkamp and others in the 1940s and early 1950s.

Sava Helped In Many Ways

Mrs. Kaufman, who spent many years in the American Red Cross water safety program, also tells how Sava helped her in many ways. "A beach named Willow Camp ((at Stinson Beach) had 15 drownings in one week," she recalls, "and local people appealed to the A.R.C. As I was water safety chairman, the problem was turned over to me. I turned to Charlie for aid and he gave Bill Woodington and me a rough course in ocean rescue. From there, surf training for life savers developed and Charlie was quite instrumental n it."

Although Sava was best known as coach of champions, sort of swimming's answer to John Wooden or Vince Lombardi in his day, he made many other unselfish and unsung contributions to swimming in general, for which he rates a niche in the Hall of Fame.

With Beth Kaufman beating the drums, you can bet he'll make it.

HOT FLASH! — Martin Ransohoff, chairman of the board of Filmways, Inc., reportedly was in San Rafael yesterday negotiating the sale of Filmways' Sears Point International Raceway to a real estate development company. More I cannot tell you because more I do not know.

THE SPORTING GENTRY

Twins In The Swim

By RALPH CHATOIAN

They look alike and, when you're talking about speed, they swim alike, but the one swimming on her back is Pixie and the one flashing through the water on her stomach is Ginger.

I'm talking about the Massey twins, star swimmers for the Tamalpais Swim Club. Pixie specializes in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events and Ginger does her best in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke events.

The 14-year-old identical twins are in different eighth grade classes at Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley, luckily for the teachers who could find it a confusing problem identifying the pair.

WOMEN'S NATIONALS

Both of the Massey girls made it all the way to the women's nationals last month in Cincinnati, competing against the best swimmers in the country, including members of the U.S. Olympic team. They normally compete in age group swimming, but because of their fast times qualified for the senior women's nationals.

Pixie is the "veteran" swimmer of the two, since she started age group swimming about two weeks before Ginger. They started just before turning 10 and have come a long way in those four years.

Swimming takes up most of the free time of the two gals as they practice twice daily, before and after school, so they hardly have time for anything else. "And," adds Pixie, "if we do other sports it will affect the muscles we use for swimming."

SERIOUS MATTER

You see, swimming for these 14-year-old girls is already a serious matter, not like a dip in the pool on a sunny day. Both of them are already thinking of the 1972 Olympics and when they'll be 16.

"I hope to stay on in swimming and I'm going to really try hard to make the Olympics," said Pixie. And Ginger echos the same hopes, saying, "I don't know how I stand nationally, but I'm really hoping to improve enough for the Olympics." You can't say these young ladies aren't setting high enough standards.

The two of them get to do their specialities together in meets when it comes time for the medley relay for girls 13-14.

They're the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Massey of 431 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley. Massey is a civilian with the Department of Navy, a deputy industrial relations officer in the Military Sea Transportation Service.

Mr. and Mrs. Massey attend most of the meets in which their daughters are competing. "Usually we do more than just watch, by helping officiate or judge," said Massey.

ACCIDENTAL START

The young girls' father got them interested in age group swimming more or less by accident. They already knew how to swim, but he enrolled them in the Tamalpais Swim Club to improve their swimming, by taking formal lessons. It wasn't long before their talent was found.

Although school records list the girls as Ginger and Pixie, it is actually Virginia and Natalie respectively. "But they just never use those names," said their father.

Golfers Batter The Famed Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lee Trevino paid tribute to Gary Player after tying the little South African for the first-round lead in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

"It always helps to play behind Gary," the quick-quipping Mexican-American said Thursday. "He does such a wonderful job repairing the greens. He's out there tamping down every spike mark on every green.

"Why, that little man is bent over so much he looks like he's planting corn."

Trevino and Player, the top two money winners this year, matched 66s, four-under-par and led the massive assault on the proud old Colonial Country club course.

In all, a record 27 players bettered par 70 on the 7,142-yard layout, breaking the previous record of 20.

Among them was the limping little figure of Ben Hogan, a five-time winner of this event and playing in his home town for the first time in three years. He birdied the 16th and 17th for a 69, well among the leaders.

"It's always tough to play in your hometown," the 57-year old master said.

Most of the leaders said the demanding layout played easier than in the past, citing the relatively short rough in particular. But both Player and Trevino had a different idea.

"I don't know of a better or tougher golf course in the world," said the globe-trotting Player. "It has everything a good golf course should have. It's an ideal course."

"I've always said this is the hardest golf course I've ever played," said Trevino, the No. 1 money-winner this season and already a two-time champion.

He didn't miss a green, hitting his irons with rifle accuracy.

But he and Player held only a one-stroke lead over a group of five at 67—Frank Beard, R.H. Sikes, Johnny Pott, Gay Brewer and Bob Smith. Four more, Bruce Devlin, Jim Weichers, Terry Wilcox and Tom Shaw, were locked at 68.

Hogan, of course, headed the group at 69 that also included Bert Yancey, Gene Littler, Art Wall and Dave Stockton.

Jack Nicklaus had a 71, as did Ron Cerrudo. Defending champion Gardner Dickinson took a 73. Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper are not competing.

Marin Prep Trackmen Have A Great Day

Marin County Athletic League track and field stars took the North Coast Section Division III trials by Santa Rosa Junior College by storm yesterday, winning in four varsity and five Class B events.

Led by San Rafael High School's Bob Peterson, who streaked to a 9.7 win in the 100 yard dash and second in the 220, Marin teams qualified 54 places for the NCS finals next Saturday at Diablo Valley Junior College in Concord.

Redwood's Kevin Pusser won the mile, 4:28, and Chakra Choppel of San Marin won the 880, 1:58.3.

Oakland To Get East-West Game

OAKLAND (AP) — The annual East-West Shrine football game, granddaddy of all post-season collegiate all-star games and a fixture on the San Francisco Peninsula since 1925, will be played next Jan. 2 in the Oakland Coliseum.

Signing of a one-year contract for the game was announced jointly Thursday by Robert Nahas, president of Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc., and Potentate George Taylor of San Francisco's Islam Temple, in a news conference at the Coliseum Arena.

The switch to Oakland marks only the second time the game has left the Peninsula. It was played in New Orleans in 1941.

The game, which has produced $6 million in the past 45 years for the 19 crippled children's hospitals operated by the Shrine of North America, was played last year at Stanford. The previous two years it was played at Candlestick Park and before that in Kezar Stadium.

The game committee began searching for a new site because of the uncertainty of seating at Candlestick Park and the possibility that holding the game again in Stanford's 80,000-seat stadium would endanger the university's tax-free status.

Also, he said, the Stanford trustees have adopted a policy that proceeds from events on campus must go to the school.

Candlestick, which seats 47,000 for football, is due for construction this fall to add an upper deck and rollaway football bleachers in what is right field during the baseball season.

The Oakland coliseum seats 54,000 for football.

Exclusive Vacation On Tip Of Planet

Tired of the same old crowd on your vacation? Bored with the endless round of cocktail parties and guys in paisley cravats standing around talking about their golf handicaps? Palm Springs getting too crowded? Is the Cote D' Azur becoming the Cote D'Ennui?

Norman Dyhrenfurth has just the spot for you. Area Code Zero. Not a golf course within a continnent. Not a Cadillas in sight. The office can't get you by phone. The office can't get you by mail. The office can't get you by FBI. You are six miles from nowhere. The nights are cool and you won't run into the next-door neighbor you've been trying to get away from. Your next-door neighbor has claws. Or wings.

NEVER MIND your tuxedo. You won't be going to the theater. Never mind your Diner's Club card. No reservations necessary You won't need guns, passport photos, or other proof of identification. There won't be any border guards, customs or immigration. There won't be any riots, demonstrations, bumper stickers (or bumpers) either. Cancel your subscription to Time, Newsweek, the Wall Street Journal. You're going to make history, not read it. Nevermind if the market falls. Just make sure you don't.

Norman Dyhrenfurth, who led the first Americans to the summit of Everest seven years ago, is preparing another vacation in the world's penthouse. In the spring of 1971, he's going to take another tour group up the monarch of mountains, the peak the Tibetans called "The Goddess Mother of Earth," a promontory of the planet so lofty Asians believe Lord Buddha himself dwells there.

EVEREST WAS first scaled in 1953 by Sir Edmund Hillary and the Nepalese, Tenzing. It would be 10 years before the American Everest expedition of '63 would put six men on the summit in relays of two. Dyhrenfurth's American Mt. Everest expedition of that year, which left Jake Breitchenbach dead under 30 feet of falling ice, and which would shear the toes off two other members after a night of 40-below-zero weather at 28,000 feet, was an unqualified mountaineering success.

AMERICANS GROW quickly bored with a thing once done. We are a people preoccupied with records. We get to the moon, we want Mars. But Everest climbed is not Everest conquered. Dyhrenfurth has assembled an international team (including one woman) for an assault on the "unscaleable" southwest face of Everest. This approach, while it does not make every other one seem like a freeway by comparison, is a little bit like going up the Empire State Building on the OUTSIDE.

Everest is never apt to have Howard Johnson's restaurants along its approaches or a "Top O' The World" cocktail lounge atop it. It may not be Lord Buddha's abode, but it is a fortress of nature with formidable firepower. The last 7,000 feet must be negotiated midst a barrage of rockfall, snowfall, tornadic winds, 100- and 30-degree drops in temperature from noon till midnight, and 20-story deep cracks in the ice.

AS THIS is written, a Japanese team, only slightly less in number than the Yokohama city directory, is about to put a flag on the tip in an expedition that has already cost several lives.

It was only 118 years ago that the British Surveyor-General in India, Sir George Everest, singled out Sholoolungma (now "Everest") as the tip of the planet, and it was 101 years before man would set foot on it. It will, hopefully, be millenia before man sets a bulldozer on it.

NONETHELESS, NORMAN'S vacation plans for '71 are set. Anoxia, anemia, amnesia, snow blindness, thrombo phlebitis and all the other enticements of springtime in the Himalayas await. Donations must be sent to the International Himalayan Expedition 1971 at Aspen, Colorado, or Salzburg, Austria, because a mountain must be assaulted with money as well as with bravery.

IF ALL goes well, Norman and a party of 20 will spend the summer in the south of Tibet, up the deadly Khumbu Icefall, through the Valley of Silence and, finally, through the Zone of Death. Go now pay later. The cost? A mere trifle. A life or two. Two sets of toes or so. A finger here and there. Loss of memory, melancholia due to anoxia, or hyposia, or emphysema.

WHERE ELSE could you get so much for so little? Who needs the tables at Monte Carlo when you can play Tibetan roulette — your lungs against the mountain, your life against a crevasse, where the monsoon winds howl "make you rbets!" and 20 guys with heartbeats of 120 and lungs at degrees of 180 grunt, "You're faded."

A's Open Series With The Angels

OAKLAND (AP) — With their season record even at 16-16, the Oakland A's resume action tonight after a day's rest in the opener of a four-game series against the California Angels.

Jim Hunter, 5-2, has been selected by Manager John McNamara for mound duty against Rudy May, 2-2, of the Angels.

The A's drew even by whipping the Washington Senators 8-1 Wednesday night, and McNamara said he was encouraged.

"Things are starting to fall into place," he said.

A big part is overall pitching strength, he implied. John Odom notched his third win against two defeats by limiting Washington to only three hits in six innings.

Odom was out of action most of last month with a sore arm and he said work is letting him get his control back. He walked seven Senators Wednesday, but struck out five.

He left in the seventh when his shoulder stiffened, but the difficulty was regarded as temporary.

Rollie Fingers, 2-1 finished up for Odom and gained credit for his third save of the season.

Odom is scheduled to pitch again Sunday after Chuck Dobson, 2-4, goes Saturday against Tom Murphy, 0-2, of the Angels.

Fingers will go in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader. Pitching for the Angels will be Clyde Wright, 4-2, and Greg Garrett, 2-0.

Tiburon Tennis Tourney On Tap

Northern California's oldest tennis tournament, the 73rd annual Bay Counties Invitational, will be held tomorrow and Sunday and May 23-24 at the Tiburon Peninsula Club with most of the area's top netters participating.

The woman's top seeds are Eliza Pande and Marcie Louie.

Bruins' Coach Pulls Shocker—Resigns

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins are in the market for a new coach - and who wants to try to follow the footsteps of Harry Sinden?

Sinden, 37, shocked the sports world by quitting the Bruins Thursday just four days after leading the club to its first Stanley Cup in 29 years.

Sinden, who led the Bruins from a fourth place finish to a world championship in only four years at the helm, decided to call it quits while a champ in his hockey career.

Experienced in engineering, Sinden elected to go into the business field rather than continue at the helm of a National Hockey League power.

Sinden elected to join an old friend, David Stirling Jr., who is chairman of the board of Stirling Homex Corp. of Avon, N.Y.

FISH AND GAME

Major Deer Hunting Change Is Proposed

By AL GIDDINGS

One of the major changes proposed for the 1970 hunting regulations by the California Fish and Game Commission deals with use of deer tags in a one deer area.

It states: "Every person upon killing a deer in a one deer area shall immediately fill out and punch out the date of kill on both his 'A' and 'B' tags and attach them to the antlers of the deer."

Having to use both deer tags on one deer in a one deer area has a number of complications. No one planning on taking a coastal buck, thereby using one tag, can go to the one deer districts with only the remaining tag. If you hunt a two deer district and take a buck thereby using your 'A' tag, you will have to forfeit going to the one deer districts, but the commission has somewhat relented from its first proposal of the one deer per person rule, and will permit you to take two deer in the two deer areas using one tag on each buck taken.

Of course the objections to this change may be so great that the commission will leave the regulations as they were in past years.

DEER SEASON proposals to be acted upon by the commission May 29; Early coast, Aug 1 to Sept. 20; Northeastern season, Sept. 26, Oct. 25; Northern, Sept. 26-Nov. 1; late season, Sept. 26-Nov. 8.

Other proposed changes: Tags will be required to take mountain lions and a permit to keep one alive must be received from the F & G Commission.

PHEASANT SEASON from Nov. 21-Dec. 20 except for some southern counties is a major change actually permitting 30 days of hunting as compared to 16 days in the past. The bag and possession limit would remain at the 10 bird number.

QUAIL SEASON would be Oct. 31-Jan. 31 statewide with a special additional season for mountain quail in many of the north and northeastern counties. Bag and possession limit would be 10 quail per day, 10 in possession of all species in the aggregate.

CHUKARS — Oct. 31-Jan. 31 statewide with a limit of six per day and six in possession.

SAGE GROUSE — Sept. 5-6-7 in Modoc, Lassen and Mono counties, limit of two birds per season.

BRUSH, COTTONTAILS and pigmy rabbits and varying hare (Snowshoe) may be taken only July 4-Jan. 31 statewide with a limit of five rabbits per day in the aggregate of all species.

BEAR SEASON — Sept. 26-Jan. 3, one per season.

SIERRA AND Ruffled Grouse — Sept. 26-Oct. 11 in counties to be listed, two grouse in the aggregate per season, two in possession.

TURKEYS — Nov. 21-Nov. 29 in San Luis Obispo and Monterey counties and those portions of Mendocino, Trinity and Glenn counties lying within the Mendocino National Forest boundary, and those portions of Kern and Tulare counties lying easterly of the main fork of the Kern River and northerly of state highway 178; limit of two birds either sex per season.

TREE SQUIRRELS — Aug. 1-Jan. 31 in Marin, Sonoma, Lake and Napa counties ;four squirrels per day, four in possession. In other counties the season would be Sept. 26-Jan. 31.

First $200,000 Race In The Triple Crown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dust Commander, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and $181,604, is in Preakness. So is Hark The ck, winner of two nonstakes and $10,846.

In between these two extremes fall 12 other 3-year-olds who will take a shot at the first $200,000 race in the history of the Triple Crown.

If all 14 go to the post at 5:40 p.m., EDT, for the 1 3-16 mile classic, the gross purse will be $203,800, with $151,300 going to the winner.

The 95th Preakness at Pimlico will be televised by CBS from 5-6 p.m. EDT, and broadcast on radio from 5:25 to 5:45 p.m.

In order to give Dust Commander a chance at becoming the first Triple Crown winner since Citation won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1948, owner Bob Lehmann had to supplement the colt for $10,000 Thursday.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

Hitting the headpin too heavily is usually the cause of a split. To counteract splitting, deliberately aim at the pin to the right of the headpin for a while. To do this, move your starting position two or three boards to the left.

Drivers Aim For Pole Position In Indy Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Little Mario Andretti was back in action at the Indianapolis Speedway today, aiming for at least a front row shot at the Rich Memorial Day racing classic he won a year ago.

The 5-foot-4 Andretti, returning with another new car to replace the one he wrecked earlier in the week, joined other drivers in a final day of shakedowns leading to Saturday's run for the 500 pole position.

The conditions under which they were to work today were not expected to be ideal, however. An overnight rain left the famed old Speedway soggy and almost certainly slower. Furthermore, weather forecasters said more showers likely would fall during the day.

The 33-car field, representing the fastest cars in an original entry list of more than 70, will be determined in two weekends of qualifying. The fastest car in Saturday's first round wins the pole, worth $10,000, and gobs of prestige.

Joe Leonard, one of several threats to cop the honors this year, holds the one and four-lap records of 171.953 and 170.559 miles per hour, respectively. Most observers believe both marks will fall, and even Leonard has predicted a pole speed of 173.4 m.p.h.

The American League has scheduled 13 twilight-night doubleheaders this season.

Smothers Duo To Ride Tube Again

By DICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Smothers Brothers, who seem to cause a fuss wherever they go, will try their third television network, ABC, with a weekly one-hour summer series starting July 8.

And at a banquet where there were representatives of ABC-TV affiliate stations, the brothers displayed their acerbic wit again and gave little indication they will change their pattern.

The Smothers, of course, were fired by CBS-TV. And not too long ago, in a comeback special on NBC-TV, they aroused the ire of the Los Angeles police chief with a sketch satirizing policemen.

At this week's banquet, they did a short stint in a show that also included Johnny Cash, Petula Clark, Danny Thomas and The Young Americans. And they got a lot of laughs.

"It's great to be here," said brother Dick, playing again the fellow who is upset and impatient with Tom's jibes and insults.

Replied Tom: "It's great to be anywhere."

Tom also aimed another shot at CBS-TV, which, in canceling the brothers, said they were delivering their shows too late. He told the audience his new staff has been "working very hard to get our scripts in to the networks five years in advance —and my son and my mother are being held hostage."

Homeowning A Good Investment

By HARRY CRAFT

At a time when stock market prices are depressed, corporate profits are down — and in spite of tight money and high interest rates — home ownership still appears to be a pretty good investment.

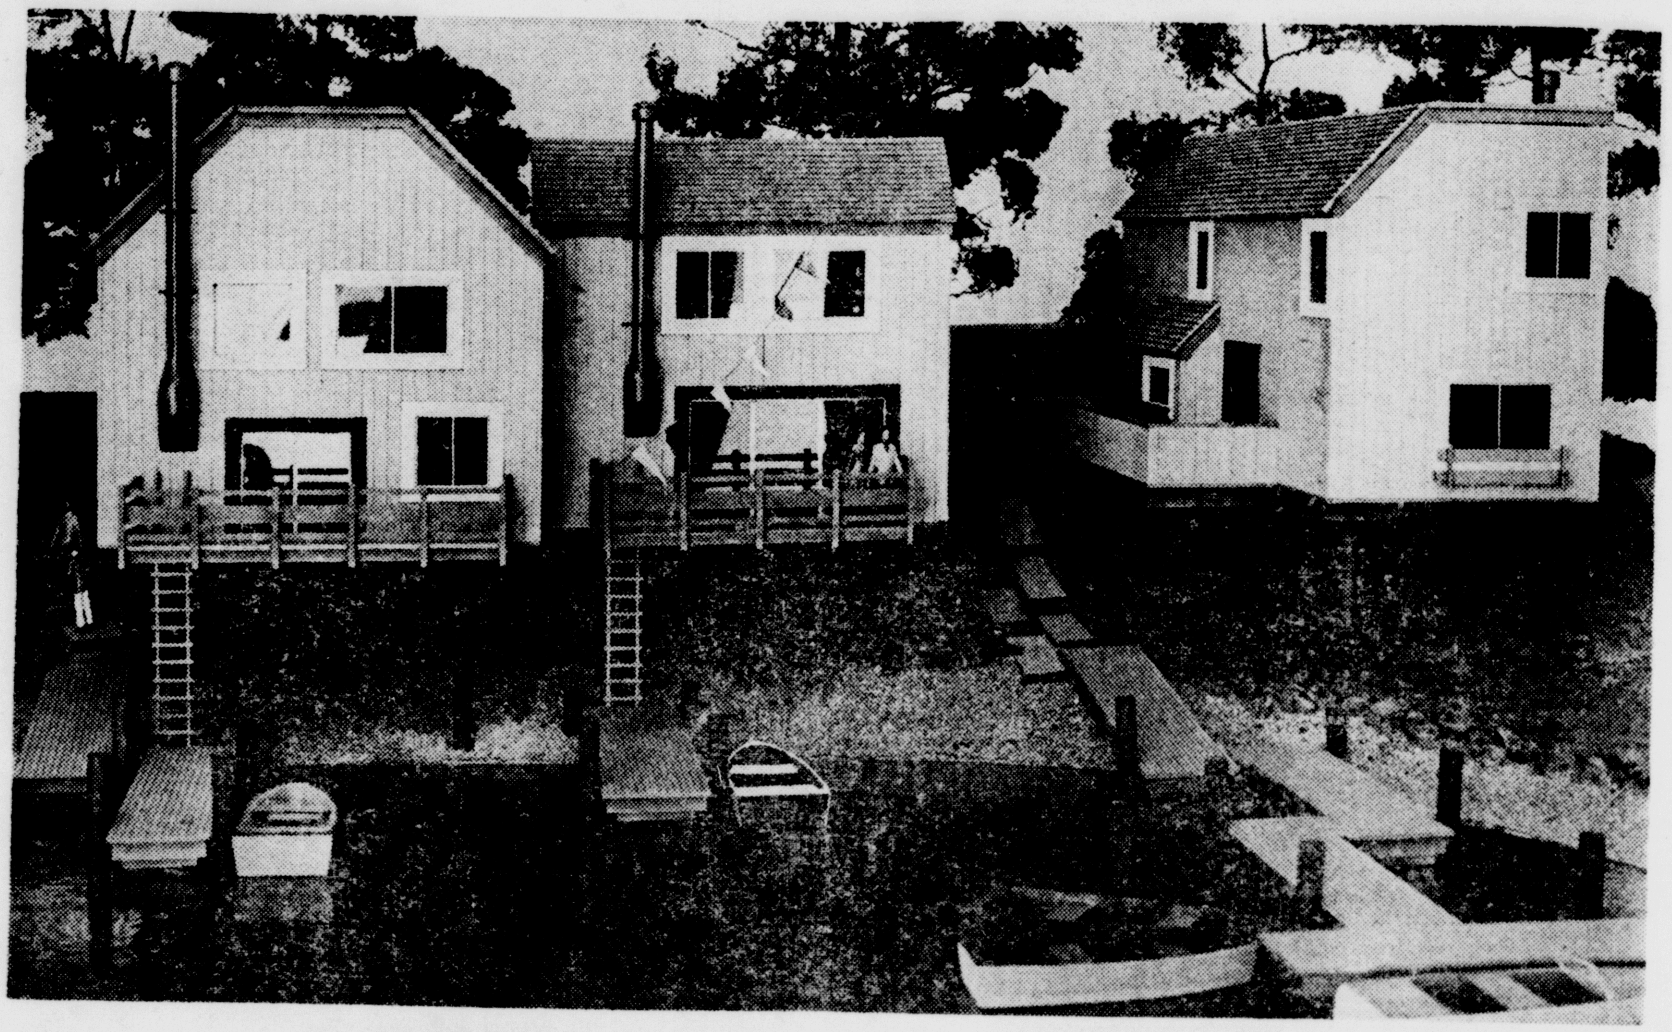
According to a 10-year study by Leonard P. Vidger, a professor at San Francisco State College, home prices in that area (and the same could probably be said of this side of the bay) have increased at an average rate of 7.5 per cent a year. This is a fair rate of return on an investment you are using all the while. It defrays, or helps a lot toward defraying interest on your home loan.

There are always good home values to be had in Marin County, but during the next week, which is being observed as Realtor Week, honoring the National Association of Real Estate Boards and its many local boards, members are carefully screening their listings for especially good buys.

Members of the Marin Real Estate Board make up approximately 95 per cent of all real estate brokerage offices in the county. As subscribers to Multiple Listing Service, all these offices keep in close touch with new houses on the market.

In addition, each office generally has a few exclusive listings of its own which it is giving special attention. The buyer is assured of being exposed to most of the best properties available when he deals with Realtor offices.

In recent years, here as elsewhere, the condominium has made a strong bid to residents who want the advantages that go with home ownership, but less of the responsibilities of upkeep.



MODEL BAHIA TOWNHOUSES

These first phase townhouse homes were designed by Warren Callister for the $100 million residential project of Hofmann Co. on the Petaluma River in Novato called Bahia. Master plan calls for a water-oriented residential and recreation community to include construction of 2,250 conventional single family homes, cluster homes and townhouses over the next seven years.

Realtor Week Is May 16-24

"Under all is the land" — five words that open the Realtor's Code of Ethics — have been selected as the theme of the 1970 observance of Realtor Week, May 16 - 24.

"Our observance," said W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors, Inc., "is one of hundreds planned throughout the nation this week to call the attention of the public to Realtors and the high professional services they render In the Marin County board we have 223 offices and 994 active, associate and affiliate members. This board enjoys one of the finest reputations in its field throughout the United States."

The preamble to the Realtor's Code of Ethics begins, "Under all is the land. Upon its wise utilization and widely allocated ownership depend the survival and growth of free institutions and of our civilization," Shafer noted.

"Home ownership is enjoyed by more than two-thirds of the families across the nation," he said, "a dream Realtors have aided materially in attaining. This record of home ownership is matched by few other countries in the world, but it can become an even greater boon as it is extended to increasing numbers of low-income families through special programs and efforts. This goal is just one of those incorporated in the Realtors' Make America Better program."

W. BRUCE SHAFER
Heads Marin Realtors

Shafer pointed out that the term Realtor is copyrighted and can only be used by a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and one of the more than 1,570 local boards throughout the country. To be eligible for membership a candidate must possess a record of business integrity, a superior knowledge of the business and subscribe to a strict code of ethics, he said.

There are more transportation, communications and public utility establishments in Pennsylvania than in any other state, according to Dun's Market Identifiers, a marketing service of Dun & Bradstreet. The Keystone State has 5,025 such establishments. New York is second with 4,923 and California third with 4,718.

Companies often give away souvenirs or offer samples of their products. Wine companies in New York, Ohio, and California gladly open up their "tasting rooms" after the visitors have seen the grape's progress from vineyard to bottle.

Good House Fits Its Environment

When you look at the outside of a house, can you tell whether it is well designed?

Most persons would hesitate to answer that question in the affirmative, fearful that they might be called on to define the reasons for their opinions. They need have no such hesitation, for an important element of good exterior house design is its effect on the onlooker. And a complete evaluation of the outside of a house must bear a relationship to its surroundings.

While a house design is the sum total of many things, inside and out, it must fit comfortably into its environment so that it appears to be part of it. No matter how architecturally sound it is, it loses part of its appeal when it does not do this.

This is why houses of traditional design have retained their popularity over the years. They seem to be part of the landscape, although it must be admitted there are some individual examples of traditional houses which hardly fit this description.

Houses of contemporary design have so-called "clean" lines. They stress beauty end function, generally disdaining ornamentation. They emanate an air of sophistication pleasing to many persons. It is unfortunate that contemporary design is often confused with modernistic design, which usually is "way out" architecture that may please the owner and a few others but is so innovative that it has a dubious resale value. Contemporary design, on the other hand, has a fairly general appeal if one remembers that the word "good" implies proper placement on a suitable site.

It thus becomes clear that, if you are having a house built, you should give considerable thought to a harmonious relationship between it and the land. A good architect keeps this constantly in mind in designing a custom house for an individual. Thousands of persons have houses built every year according to plans published in newspapers, magazines and other publications. These generally are sound plans, created by selected architects.

While changes in these plans are sometimes necessitated by the needs of an individual family, it is usually wise not to permit the builder to make changes in the natural growth present on your property. Too often a builder will have the land bulldozed indiscriminately, leaving a couple of large, old trees but pulling out dozens of smaller ones. Usually, a little extra planning and imagination will enable those immature trees to be left in place-to provide beauty and shade in the years ahead.

Flower Power Helps In Budget Planning

If you want to brighten your home on a budget, try flower power. With real flowers.

This season, window boxes are back in vogue. They are simple and inexpensive to maintain. They complement any home, from a colonial cottage to a super-modern ranch or a small city apartment. Best of all, they ease decorating problems, by allowing last year's curtains to open on a brand new view.

You can make your own window boxes or choose from ready-made boxes in a wide variety of materials. For most purposes, sturdy red cedar or California redwood boxes are best. They may be stained and shellacked, or painted with your favorite lively color. To guard against despoiling rust, you'll want to coat the metal brackets and trims with petroleum jelly from time to time.

Window-box flower growing requires very few tools. Your basic gardening kit can include just six items: pocket pruners with a pruning blade that folds like a knife, a watering can for dousing plants and mixing liquid fertilizer, a small spade, a miniature fork, a pair of gardening gloves and a large tube of multi-purpose petroleum jelly.

Ideally, this equipment should be kept in a chest, cabinet or drawer near the window box. If you have a captain's chest, a colonial cobbler's bench or a stackable storage cube, your problem is solved.

If your space is limited, simply hang the tools on dimestore racks inside a kitchen cabinet door, and find a cheerfully lacquered watering can that will double as a kitchen accessory.

Make it a point to take good care of your indoor gardening tools right from the start. Rust, which eats away at unprotected metal, will age the tools and flake on furniture and rugs. To avoid this annoyance, rinse each tool and dry it thoroughly after use, then coat the metal with a thin layer of petroleum jelly.

You can begin planting at the first warm sign of spring. After the window box is mounted, prepare it with a thin drainage layer of burlap of fiberglass to prevent nutrients from seeping away.

Next, add a layer of rich porous soil that stops about two to three inches from the top of the box to allow "breathing room." Finally, set your pot grown plants in place.

For full sun, balcony petunias, verbenas, ivy geraniums or lantanas are among your best choices. Other upright flowers that enjoy sunlight include dwarf marigolds, dwarf snapdragons and dwarf zinnias. Avoid tall flowers; they look top heavy and scraggly in a window box.

At a shady window or a window that gets nothern exposure, you should plant wishbone flowers (torenia), was begonias or coleum. These flowers need plenty of light and air, but do not require sunlight. They're ideal for urban window boxes, too, since they are wonderfully resistant to city smoke and soot.

Once planted, a flower box takes very little time or effort. And the effect? Sensational!

Nutshells Making Way Into Furniture

Pecan and walnut growers aren't throwing their shells away these days. Furniture manufacturers are buying them by the ton to produce furniture. When the shells are ground into a powder and combined with a polyester resin, a molded finish is formed that has a natural wood grain look.

The process makes furniture so realistic that even close inspection can't always tell wood from polyester furniture.

The Pipe Cleaner Is Valuable To Wives

In November 1921, when pipe cleaners first were introduced, they were available at the local tobacconists only. However, because of many innovations by women, pipe cleaners can now be bought in most novelty and gift stores in a variety of sizes and colors. Because of their flexibility and versatility, pipe cleaners have become an important staple for most shopping lists.

The Pipe and Tobacco Council, an industry group which advocates pipe smoking for men only, offered a list of suggestions to women on the household uses for pipe cleaners.

Any scissor will cut a pipe cleaner and by halving a package the housewife will have many handy freezing bag ties for storing or freezing leftovers or tying the families' luncheon sandwich bags.

When airing the bedrooms or other rooms, pipe cleaners can hold curtain and drapes in place, preventing them from blowing.

Did you ever pour from a bottle and get the sticky drippings down the side of the bottle or onto a clean tablecloth? Try wrapping a couple of pipe cleaners around the neck. They catch and absorb any slips.

Next time you want to hammer a small nail or thumbtack into the wall, wrap a pipe cleaner around it. You then will be able to hold the item in place and swing the hammer without hitting your finger or breaking your fingernails.

Design In Flowers Livens Up Homes

The flowers that bloom in the spring are showing their colors indoors these days. Upstairs, downstairs, all around the house, this year's bestdressed homes have flower power.

Living in a blooming bower is the new idea—a fresh, young look designed to liven up even the most tired rooms. The newest flowers make a smashing splash on fabric-backed vinyl wallcoverings — wonderfully wipe-able and just the thing for concealing patched plaster and less-than-perfect walls.

New Kind Of Tile Makes Amateur Flooring Easier

Home redecorating begins at the bottom this spring. Taking a tip from professional designers, do-it-yourselfers are looking down—focussing on the floor as the new center of fashion attention.

Making it all easy are the new flooring materials. The vinyl-asbestos tiles have pressure-sensitive adhesive backs, requiring no messy glue or cement. You lay them yourself, saving the cost of custom installation—traditionally the biggest part of any investment in a new fashion floor.

Tiles come in a wide range of colors, styles and patterns—just the encouragement the clever home decorator needs to show her fashionability. The tiles go down over wood, concrete or old floor covering, so there's no difficult preparation work or waiting time.

It's a quick way to redecorate and freshen up for spring. And if you follow these step-by-step instructions, you won't have to qualify as a professional to make expert fashion magic!

Advice On Buying Outdated

Young people get a great deal of advice from their elders and counselors about buying a home. Unfortunately, much of this advice is out-dated and therefore poor.

The youngsters are advised to buy a home whose purchase price is no more than two and one-half times their annual income. And they are advised to make as large a down payment as possible and to pay off the loan during the shortest possible time.

In a society where there is little job opportunity, where the population and the economy are stable, this is sound advice. But none of these factors is a reality any more, particularly in the western United States.

Here the opportunities for better jobs and higher pay multiply overnight. So people buy homes that cost three or three and one-half times their annual income. They are willing to gamble that their incomes will shortly rise to a level where the relationship between income and the home's value is more traditional.

In the meantime, any extra effort is worthwhile. The lenders are going along with this and, in fact, often base their credit approvals more on "Futures" than most buyers realize.

Job opportunity also implies greater mobility and population growth. If you know you're going to stay at one job and in one community all your life, certainly you'll want to make a big down payment on your home. But in a mobile society, moving is a fact of life.

The larger the down payment, the bigger the difference between your loan balance and your selling price at any given time. This "extra equity" just might become a sales impediment because there are very few people with big down payments in their pockets whereas there are many with small down payments.

This "extra equity" is compounded and multiplied by two other factors.

First, in the west, we have a greater population growth than anywhere in the United States; this means an upward pressure on real estate values. If you make a down payment on a home of $3000 and, during the course of five years, the home gains $3000 in value, you will have doubled your money, or achieved an effective rate of capital appreciation of 20 per cent per year.

But if you'd gotten into the house for only $1000 down, you would have quadrupled your money, or obtained an effective rate of capital appreciation of 60 per cent per year. This is called "leverage."

Second, in the United States, we have an inflationary economy. If you put as little money down on a house as you can and spread your payments over as long a period as possible, you will be paying off your purchase with cheaper and cheaper dollars.

Roses Still Favorite Of American Garden

Roses are far and away the all-American garden favorite. Yet, many novice gardeners hesitate to try roses, feeling that they are temperamental and require too much fuss.

Actually, while roses do need regular care, they need no more than any other part of the garden. In three easy steps, roses need pruning, feeding and spraying.

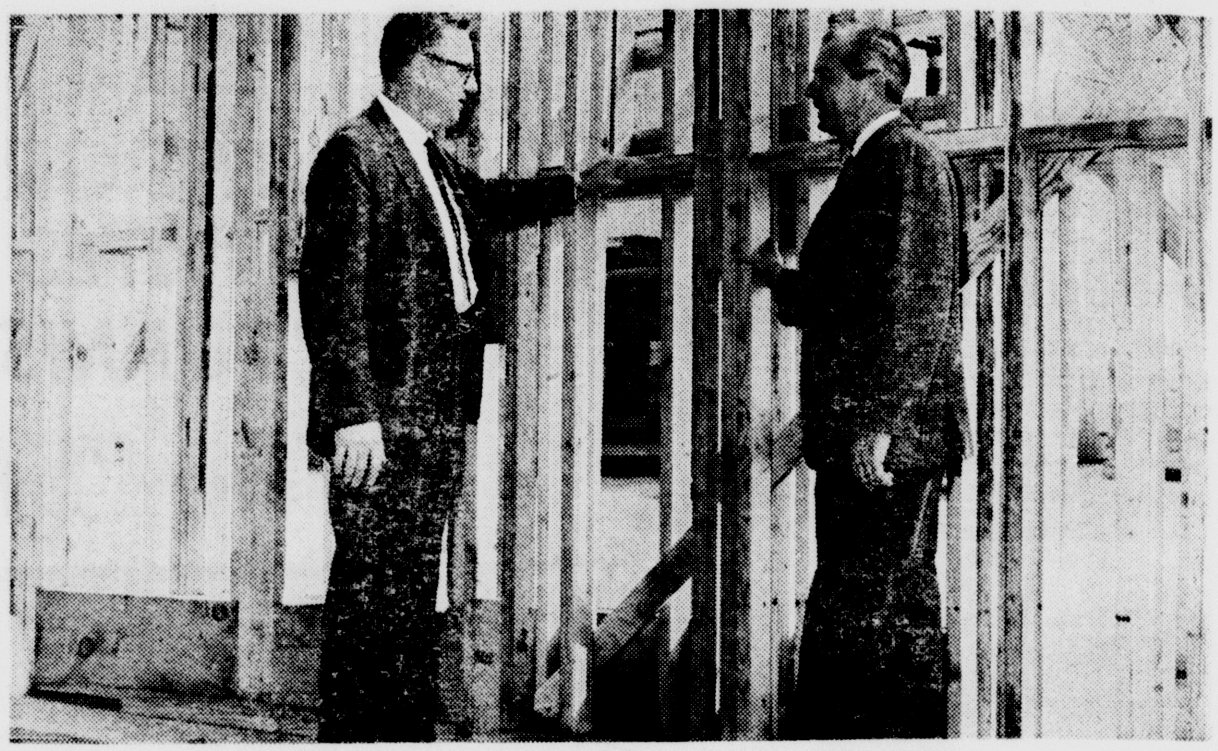
As warm spring weather arrives, cut back any dead or weakened branches. Thin plants out to three or four sturdy canes of 12 to 18 inches, to encourage lush growth. As flowers begin to appear, cut them often to assure blooming. Cut the stem just above any five-leaflet leaves. A new flower-bearing shoot will emerge from this joint, and in less than six weeks you'll have another rose.

For large, long-stemmed roses, pinch off all secondary buds, leaving only one per stem; for shorter stems and smaller flowers, just pinch off old blooms.

Watering and feeding are the normal garden chores. Although suburbanites find sprinklers easier, garden experts consider soakers better, since they don't wash away protective treatments.

Since roses respond to fairly heavy applications of a complete plant fertilizer, apply a half-cup per plant monthly through the spring and summer season.

The final step in growing lovely roses is keeping bothersome bugs at bay. Use a single, broad — spectrum insecticide spray.



PREASSEMBLED WALLS TESTED

Examining walls of a "manufactured" home used at Parkwood, a subdivision of Boise Cascade Building Co. in San Marin, Novato, are Evan Jeffrys (left), general manager of IDACO Lumber Co., the firm doing the preassembly work, and Boise Cascade regional manager Frank Parks. A new type of steel foundation is being used at Parkwood. Walls and roof are said to take only a day on the site for assembly.

You Can Have Short Vacations At Home

How about a half-hour vacation every day?

Vacations of one, two or more weeks are great. But a respite from the daily grind does wonders, too.

Not surprisingly, privacy is the key to the half-hour daily "vacation." The question is, when and where can the busy homemaker enjoy this luxury?

For one thing, the bedroom is the only room in the house that is not shared by all members of the family. With a minimum of additional furnishings, it can make an ideal "getaway" area where the homemaker can relax away from other activity centers of the home.

Ingredients could include a reading lamp, magazine rack, a wall speaker for piped-in music comfortable ottoman chair, and possibly, a small table which can serve as a hobby desk.

To enhance privacy, a folding screen or room divider can be an attractive decorating plus. Thin wall room dividers made of colorful translucent panels or hardboard can be economically installed floor-to-ceiling. Or the homemakers may prefer a folding screen made with the same materials that can conveniently be relocated or stored.

Color Is Key For Outdoor Planning

If fix-up funds for the patio are limited, there are inexpensive ways to create decorative excitement for your outdoor living room. The formula is simply to try some new ways with color, in small and large amounts, and still use existing furnishings.

Start by building your color plan from the floor up, to visually make the patio a colorful part of Nature's setting. Once you have a good color foundation, then concentrate on budget ways to add new fabric accents and new antiqued or enameled accents to a weatherbeaten table or an outmoded chair. For under ten dollars you can apply a concrete color stain to add a durable and sophisticated carpet of color to the patio floor. The stain is easy to apply and provides a colorful protection for the walking surface while maintaining the textural appeal of concrete.

Earthy tones, floral shades, spruce colors, a complete range of shades allows decorative dexterity to effect a variety of spirited patio moods that avoid drabness. Apply the stains with a roller, large paint brush, a spray gun or even a soft pushbroom. Depending on the intensity of the color desired, one coat of stain may do the job. But even if two coats are applied, it's still a low-cost and easy project.

Now bring out the furnishings and see how color can revamp their appeal. For the picnic table and bench that have been collecting dust and are marred from summer wear, first scrub them down thoroughly, sand rough areas, and apply a redwood stain that will revive the color, renew the charm and protect the surface from the elements.

Air Conditioning Needs Checkups

To maintain operating efficiency and economy, your home central air-conditioning system should be inspected periodically—twice a year. Many contractors now provide service contracts, which offer the easiest way for the home owner to handle routine maintenance.

Three major types of service contracts are available, one that covers inspection only, another for inspection and labor needed in servicing, and a third for inspection, labor, and parts.

Contracts should cover all climate control equipment, including electronic air cleaners, dehumidifiers, humidifiers, and the heating system.

It's Stereo Nowadays For Most Modern Homes

A house is not a home without stereo, nowadays.

Back a few years, "hi-fi" and the equipment it involved was strictly for the buffs—and the wife whose husband wasn't one considered herself lucky; all those bulky pieces and the noise!

Today, however, quality sound equipment ranks on a par with television, laundry washers and dryers, dishwashers and garbage disposals. It's something almost every homeowner has—or intends to get.

And today good music need not ruin the decor or the budget. Proper planning will do it.

The experts offer some advice.

For the ultimate in sound and beauty, the ideal time to start planning a home entertainment center is while your house is being built. While today's equipment is compact, and attractive, and does not demand a special setting, planning for things such as outlets in the proper places, speaker locations and such is simplest when done while the wiring is going in.

Even if you are moving into a ready-built house or a city apartment you can still enjoy sound that was unheard of 10 years ago. No more the big, black, bulky equipment of the 1940s with its network of tubes and wires all over the place.

Today's equipment is streamlined—and available in designs to suit any taste, Colonial, avant garde, French provincial. Prices have been streamlined, too.

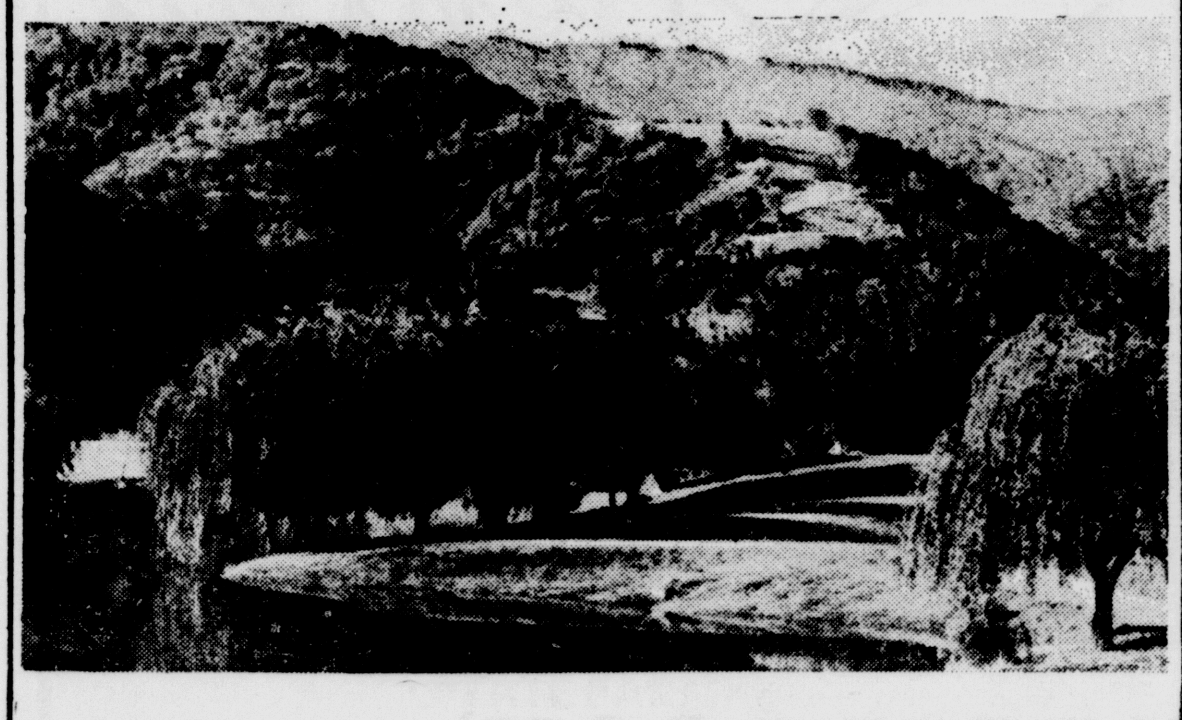
And the theory that music must be played at ear-splitting level to be enjoyed no longer holds. You can enjoy your favorite selections, hearing all the sounds you're supposed to hear, without forcing the neighbor to listen, too.

When it comes to planning for your sound system, you can design around it—in a music room or family room, for instance, or you can fit it in unobstrusively—even in a cabinet or closet. Ideally, you will plan for auxiliary sound in several rooms; perhaps even outdoors.

Your room can be any shape, but watch out if it is very long and narrow. You can overcome this by breaking up the wall space with bookshelves, tall cabinets or paintings. And if you're lucky enough to have, or be able to create, shallow wall niches or exposed ceiling beams, they will add handsome dividends when you put on that Tschaikovsky concerto or the latest effort of The Fifth Dimension.

Surface materials affect the pitch of blended sound. Smooth, hard, highly sound-reflective surfaces such as glass and bare floors emphasize the treble. Have sound absorbers such as curtains and rugs and, for any big expanse of glass, draw curtains of a soft, thick fabric.

SECLUSION AND PRIVACY IN A COUNTRY CLUB ATMOSPHERE



Seclusion is relaxed country living in a rambling home nestled in our quiet Valley. Golf, tennis and swimming are just part of the many social activities that center around the Marin Golf & Country Club, which, by the way is the focal point in our valley. But far more of your time will be spent in your sprawling country home, which like all our homes will be superbly designed with people in mind, and you'll enjoy such advantages as separate family rooms, caloric double ovens and perimeter heating. To be sure the natural beauty of the area is maintained, utilities are all underground. The homes blend into the surrounding countryside as if they had always been part of it, and the rough hewn redwood and stone fronts enhance this already breathtaking green and wooded scene. Visit us today, homes are ready for inspection and selection from $39,950 to $49,950.

Good News, Lady Luck Are Garden Goodies

Perhaps the most thrilling experience for the home gardener is to pluck the first lovely rose bloom that appears and to sniff its fragrance.

Some of the roses listed as very fragrant, according to the American Rose Society, are:

Crimson Glory, Etoile de Hollande, Good News, Kodes Perfecta, Lady Luck, living, Mirandy, Pink Peace, Pink Princess, Rose of Freedom, Sutter's Gold, Tapestry, The Doctor, Jiminy Cricket, Ma Perkins, High Time, Pink Chiffon, Spartan, Texan and Merry Widow.

A trip to a nursery when roses are in bloom in containers is a sure way for the home owner to find the roses whose aroma he likes best, simply by going around and sniffing the flowers, says the American Association of Nurserymen.

Most local nurserymen have their favorite roses with respect to their fragrance, while nursery catalogues almost invariably stress the fragrance of a rose if it has outstanding aroma.

House Of Future A Liquid?

Before the year 2000, the house you live in may come in a can of liquid and a roll of fabric — and be inflated like a balloon.

And by the end of this deccade, everything from your drinking water and pools your children swim in, to the garage you park your car in and acre-size farms will be protected by air-supported domes.

That's the prediction of Gordon B. Holcombe, of the Industrial Covers group, Pico Division of Sargent Industries, San Francisco. He is a pioneer in the design and construction of buildings utilizing coated fabrics — such as nylon, dacron or glass fibers — that are air-inflated, or stressed by cables or other mechanical means.

With major technological breakthroughs making construction fabrics long-lasting, durable, and more versatile than such rigid materials as iron or steel, this is what Mr. Holcombe forecasts:

By the end of this century — in less than 30 years — low cost, "air inflated" houses will be in widespread use. Constructed of highly decorative fabric, structurally supported by air from their own air conditioning systems, possibly made rigid by an extra coating of self-hardening liquid sprayed from a can, these air houses will be: easily assembled, easily divided into large rooms — with windows, lighting and insulation — and will last for 50 years or more.

Estimated cost of a 3,000-square foot air house, with a year-round interior garden: $10,000 at current market prices.

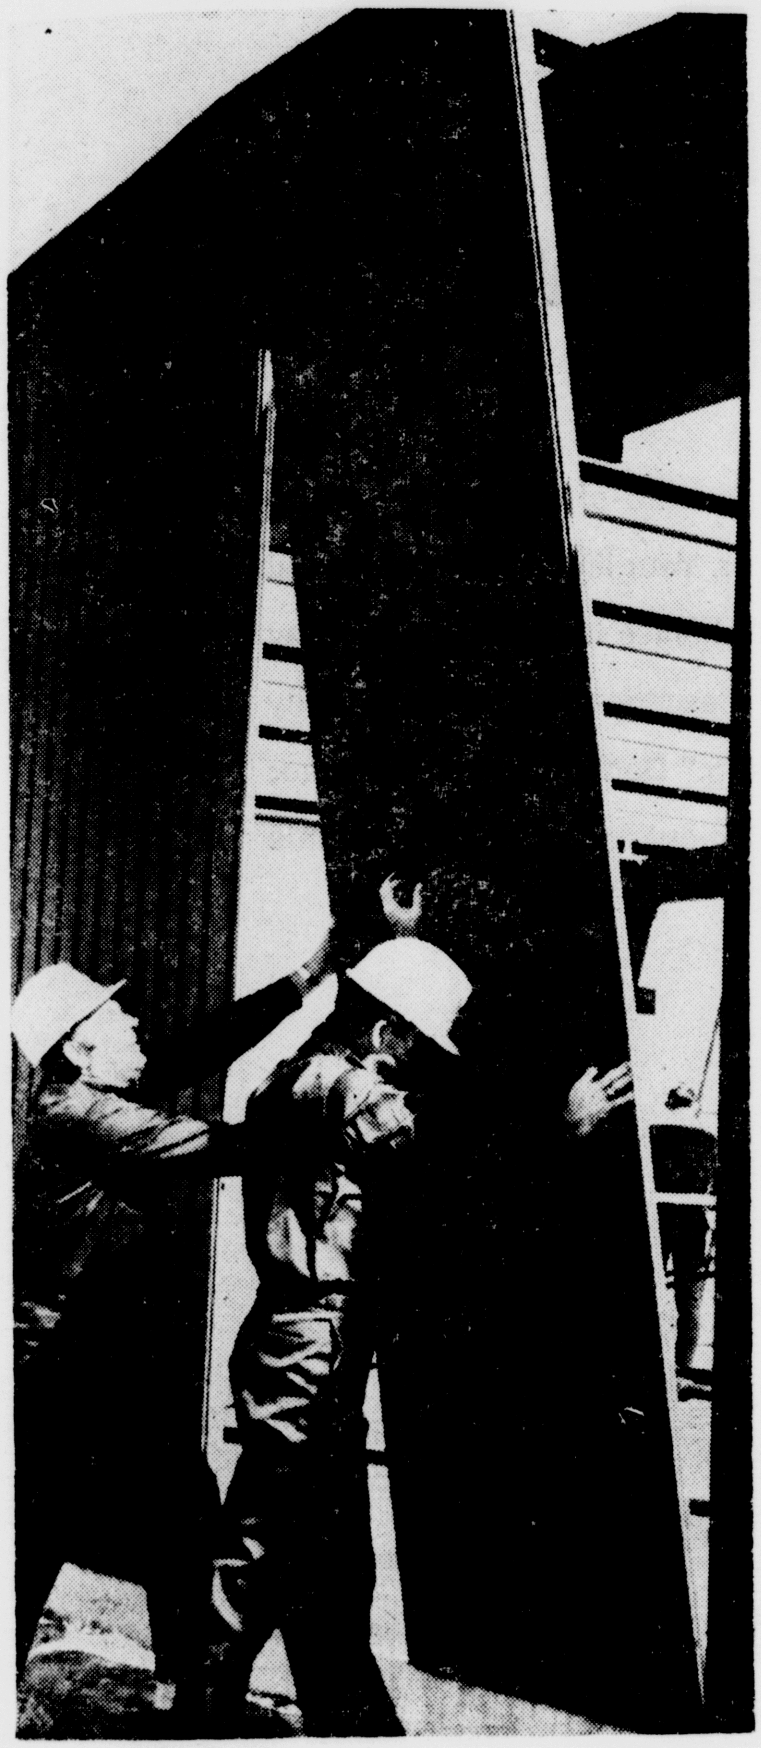
By 1980, portable "air cabins" for winter and summer vacation use will be a familiar fixture of America's recreational areas. Adaptable to any climate, they'll even be usable on water as air-inflated "house boats."

Within 10 years — reflecting a decade's preoccupation with environmental pollution — every important reservoir in the United States will be protected from evaporation, pollution and radioactive fallout by "floating roofs" or inflated fabric covers.

Increasingly greater numbers of public swimming pools, tennis courts and other outdoor recreational facilities will be usable year-round and in all weather — and stay much cleaner — because of inexpensive, easily maintained "air roofs." This will be equally true for everything from shopping malls to open-air theaters.

"Air houses" will come to industry in a big way in 1980. Air-inflated warehouses — covering tens of thousands of square feet — already are a reality in many areas of the country, and their low cost and structural longevity will make them commonplace in 10 years.

Hydroponic farms — where food is grown directly in nutrients — are expected to become a major source of the world's food by the year 2000. Holcombe predicts that such farms — acres in size — will be covered by air-supported roofs.



MODULAR WALL SYSTEM

As new ideas are explored for less costly housing, Stran-Steel Corp. has submitted these insulated wall panels constructed of colored steel interior and exterior facings with a polyurethan core. Units slide together and are interlocked by a multiple tongue and groove side joint. They are said to be strong enough to eliminate the need for supporting members at heights up to 14 feet.

A Dinner Party 'Cookout'

Just a handful of clever decorating tricks convert a "cookout" into a dinner party that takes full advantage of a balmy summer evening. The secret lies in creating the right atmosphere, and what gives a formal feeling better than a beautifully set table and appropriate "room" accessories?

Take a cue from your indoor dining room. Why not move that lovely framed picture from over the buffet out onto the patio? If the patio is flush with an outside wall of the house or garage, use the wall as you would indoors by hanging an arrangement of framed pictures. Floor-standing easels provide an ideal display for pictures and are easy to handle and move indoors or out, as well. Picture hanging techniques might be temporary or permanent for reuse later in the summer.

Since your patio furniture is probably combination "living" and "dining" pieces, place indoor-type accessories on end tables or a coffee table. Outdoor lighting might include dramatic lanterns, tall or short, set in the ground around the patio.

In Decorating, It Pays Not To Have Timid Plan

Although the art of interior decoration is one of the most delightful and rewarding of all activities, some women lose much of the pleasure through unnecessary timidity.

This shows itself in a number of ways. For instance, a woman will fall in love with a single piece of furniture from a specific period or style such as Early American or French Provinical, and in order to have it will reluctantly furnish the entire room in that style, thinking a properly designed room must reflect one style only.

Other women react to the desire for a single period piece with fear that, if set in the midst of other styles, it will seem absurd to decor-wise visitors, and so they limit their choices to modern pieces only.

The fact is that periods and styles may be mixed. Top interior designers mix everything from French Provincial and Modern, to Eastern and Western motifs. Feminine bedrooms may include wrought iron and glass furniture, often thought of as suitable only for outdoors, and primitive and spohisticated pieces may live in beautiful harmony in one room.

With a few simple tips to guide her, a woman's taste may range freely over the whole realm of traditional and contemporary design in search of pieces that express her personality. For example she shouldn't do all her buying at once, but plan her background and color scheme, then proceed slowly, selecting one piece of furniture at a time.

Top interior designers solve the problem of uniting pieces of varied periods by selecting a floor design which will blend into every style and period.

DUPLEX TOWNHOUSES UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Each unit has two full baths with luminous ceilings and ceramic tubs.

Some Things To Mull Over When Buying First Home

It's often said that the biggest investment the average American ever makes is the purchase of a home. When should you make it?

Most advisers would probably give a quick and simple answer: When you want to buy a house and can afford it. Careful thought, though, should go into determining what it is that you "want" in a home, and how much you can afford to pay, either buying or building.

Getting what you want in a home is as important as being able to afford it. Many houses that you can afford would be a poor investment in living, or financial, terms. While resale potential should not be an overriding factor in buying or building a house, it is what makes the purchase an investment.

Inferior materials and shoddy workmanship will not only be a blight on your life in the house but will undermine your investment. Good design, fine plumbing and heating equipment, broad use of quality materials will insure it, and add to your enjoyment of the home.

One rule of thumb is that a family can afford to pay two and a half times its annual income for a house. This guideline, however, does not take into consideration your particular circumstances. They can only be determined by a detailed examination of your family's assets, living expenses, present and likely future income.
